COL. LINDBERGH BETROTHED TO MISS ANNE S. MORROW; LANDS IN CUBA AFTER DELAY

ENVOY TELLS OF ENGAGEMENT

NAMES LINKED FREQUENTLY

WEDDING PLANS UNDECIDED

Ceremony May Be Held Here or in Mexican Capital in May or June.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 12.—While anxiety was being manifested over the fate of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in his flight from Belize, British Honduras, to Cuba today, his engagement to Miss Anne S. Morrow, daughter of the United States Ambassador to Mexico, was announced here.

The notice handed to the foreign newspaper correspondents this afternoon by the American Ambassador in his private room at the embassy read:

"Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow have announced the engagement of their daughter, Anne Spencer Morrow, to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh."

Names Long Coupled.

The Ambassador, except for the bare announcement, was uncommunicative, declining to discuss the engagement, the wedding date or the probable place where the ceremony will be performed.

Miss Morrow is the Ambassador's second daughter. She is 22 years old. Born at Englewood, N. J., she was educated at the Chapin School in New York and later at Smith College.

It is thought the marriage will be celebrated here, as Mr. Morrow recently returned from a long absence in the United States. Miss Morrow arrived this morning, having journeyed from the United States.

Rumor has long coupled the names of Miss Morrow and Colonel Lindbergh, and although well-informed circles have believed there was some ground for the reports published from time to time, nothing authoritative was ever announced.

Often Together in Mexico.

Colonel Lindbergh and Miss Morrow were often together when he was the guest of Ambassador Morrow after reaching Mexico City on his first stop on his first Central American flight in 1927. Although their public appearances together were infrequent, press reports at that time hinted at the likelihood of a future announcement such as was made today.

When, continuing his flight, he took off for Tampico, he made what was considered an impressive tribute to Miss Morrow with a most daring dive over the Ambassadorial party's heads at Valbuena Field.

The only section of Mexican society surprised by today's announcement is that which has always maintained that the famous aviator had no affection for any woman other than his mother.

Mr. Morrow in giving out the notice did so with evident pleasure. His daughter is one of the most charming and popular members of the American colony here.

When reports reached here that Colonel Lindbergh had landed at Cozumel, it was at first thought that he intended to fly here on his return trip with the air mail.

Wedding Set for May or June.

By The Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 12.—Colonel Lindbergh and Miss Morrow, it was learned authoritatively tonight, will be married either in May or June in Mexico City or New York. The principals still have under consideration the exact time and place, although when Ambassador Morrow announced the engagement he declined to give any details of their plans.

It is possible that the Ambassador and his family will go to New York for a visit in the early Spring in which event the wedding might be held at their home in Englewood, N. J., or in New York City. Otherwise Colonel Lindbergh would come to Mexico City and would undoubtedly fly here.

Miss Anne Morrow, like her father and family, is a member of the Presbyterian Church. Ambassador Morrow in Mexico City attends the Union Church which includes all Protestant denominations. Miss Morrow and Colonel Lindbergh have not yet decided what denominational minister will perform the ceremony.

Miss Morrow has flown with her

LINDBERGH'S DAY IN AIR.

Flying From Belize to Havana, He Was Forced to Alight at La Fe Bay, Cuba, for Fuel. His Delay Caused Anxiety for a Time.

LINDBERGH REACHES HAVANA IN EVENING

Arrives Six Hours Late Due to Air Surveys and Refueling on Way From Belize.

HALTED ON MEXICAN COAST

With Escort Mail Plane, He Will Complete Panama-to-Miami Flight This Morning.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Feb. 12.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh landed here at 7:48 o'clock this evening, six hours after the expected time of his arrival from Belize, British Honduras, on the return flight inaugurating the Pan-American Airways mail line between Florida and the Panama Canal Zone.

The escort mail plane from the Canal Zone, piloted by Raymond J. Merritt, preceded Lindbergh, landing at Columbia Field at 6:29 P. M.

Colonel Lindbergh explained the delay in reaching here as due in large part to heavy seas at Cozumel Island, Mexico, where the Sikorsky amphibian planes stopped this morning to refuel. Four hours were lost there taxiing for a quiet position and taking on gasoline and in a difficult take-off again.

He had also spent some time making a survey along the coast of British Honduras and Yucatan for landing fields for the Pan-American air service.

Colonel Lindbergh accompanied Ambassador Judah, who with his wife had awaited the flier at the field, to the American Embassy to spend the night there. He plans to take off for Miami at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning.

From there he will go on to Washington and New York and will later make several transcontinental flights inspecting air mail lines.

Landed First at La Fe, Cuba.

HAVANA, Feb. 12 (AP).—Colonel Lindbergh left Belize at 6:12 A. M. and had been expected to reach Miami, the starting point of his air mail tour, late today. It was not until early evening that word was received that he had landed safely at La Fe, an isolated port 100 miles west of Havana. He refueled there before continuing on to this city.

The Colonel was first sighted over Havana at 7:37 P. M., when he flashed the signal lights on his plane. At the air field, the authorities had hastily mobilized flood and search lights which, although not entirely adequate, illumined it sufficiently for Lindbergh to make a perfect landing. He circled the field three times before choosing the pathway of the greatest light.

Lindbergh was the first to clamber out of the plane, followed by Colonel John Hambleton, vice president of

280,000 CHEER POPE; GET BLESSING IN RAIN; ROME ACCLAIMS KING

St. Peter's Resounds to Shouts of 'Long Live Pope!' by 80,000 at Anniversary Service.

CITY OF FLAGS AND LIGHT

King Salutes Populace Serenading Him en Accord With Vatican—Powers Felicitate Pope.

By ARNALDO CORTESI.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Feb. 12.—The Pope regained his temporal power yesterday, and today the population of Rome proved to him that he has fully reconquered the hearts of all Italians, irrespective of political parties—if indeed he had ever lost them.

First in St. Peter's Basilica, where he went to attend mass on the occasion of the seventh anniversary of his coronation, and then in St. Peter's Square, where he blessed multitudes from the height of the outer balcony of the basilica, Pius XI was received with wild applause, with frantic cheering, with unbounded enthusiasm and with every evidence of affection, admiration and love. Wherever he appeared his presence gave rise to extraordinary scenes of popular devotion. No conquering hero of the days of old was received like that.

Huge crowds stood for hours wedged tightly in St. Peter's Basilica in order to catch a fleeting glimpse of the Pontiff being carried aloft in the sedia gestatoria to the high altar over the heads of his faithful. Other and even more immense crowds patiently braved seething rainstorms all morning in order to receive the papal blessing in St. Peter's Square. It is calculated that 80,000 persons inside the basilica and 200,000 outside in the square today roared their admiration to the Pope.

King and Mussolini Cheered.

King Victor Emmanuel also came in for his share of manifestations of popular devotion. Despite the rain, which continued uninterruptedly all day, the whole of Rome gathered this evening outside the royal palace and noisily expressed its devotion to their Italian sovereigns, who appeared on the balcony and acknowledged the cheers again and again. The Romans would have liked to express their joy at the reconciliation with the Papacy also to Premier Mussolini also, but all demonstrations were strictly forbidden. Despite this, however, the crowd, after cheering the King, gathered outside Signor Mussolini's windows at the Foreign Office and called insistently for Il Duce to appear on the balcony. All of its efforts were unavailing, however. Signor Mussolini's windows remained obstinately closed and the crowd gradually and reluctantly melted under the pouring rain.

The chief feature of the day was the Pope's blessing of massed Italian troops, of the banners of all Rome's Fascist sections and of an enormous mass of people from the outer balcony of St. Peter's Basilica. Yesterday the Pontiff, speaking to Lenten preachers, indicated that he did not propose to show himself on the balcony. Today, however, he was forced to change his mind by the insistence of the Roman people, who shouted for the Pope until they got their way. By blessing the Italian troops, the Fascist militia and the people, the Pope implicitly acknowledged that all reasons for animosity between the Holy See and Italy were now over.

The Italo-Vatican pacification has moved the Italian people more deeply

Army Fliers Reach Altitude of 39,000 Feet; Run Out of Fuel at 76 Degrees Below Zero

By The Associated Press.

DAYTON, Ohio, Feb. 12.—Flying to an approximate height of 39,000 feet, where the temperature was 76 degrees below zero, two army fliers from Wright Field narrowly missed the altitude record today and then lost all chances for official claim to it by being forced down at Columbus, out of gasoline.

Lieutenant Harry Johnson, Air Corps pilot, and Captain A. W. Stevens, photographer, hopped off from the army air field here at 2:26 P. M. today and came down at Norton Field, Columbus, seventy miles away, at 4:30. They promptly refueled their plane and returned to Wright Field, landing at 5:20 P. M.

Their altimeter showed an "indicated height" of 39,000 feet. Wright Field officials said, but the actual altitude must have been "considerably lower." The indicated altitude, they said, would have had to be "well above 40,000" before their two sealed barographs would have shown an altitude greater than 39,420, the official record, established by Lieutenant C. C. Champion, United States Navy flier, on July 25, 1927.

The barographs, installed in the plane by representatives of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, will not be sent to the Federal Bureau of Standards at Washington for calibration, officials said, because the men did not descend at their starting place and because the indicated altitude did not justify claims for an official record.

Lieutenant Johnson's face was frozen just below the eye, but officers said he would soon be normal again. Otherwise both men were in good condition. They were equipped with electrically heated goggles and gloves.

They estimated they were about seventy miles east of Columbus, in the region of Zanesville, at the highest point of their flight. They glided westward as their fuel ran low and made the army field at Columbus just before it gave out.

A bad storm was encountered at 39,000 feet, they said, and there was no visibility. Fearing they could not find their way back, and with their gas about out, they began to descend. They will try again, probably within a few days.

The fliers used the army airplane XCO-5, the same machine used by Lieutenant John Macready, Lieutenant James Doolittle and Captain St. Clair Streett in altitude flights. It has one 400-horsepower Liberty motor with special supercharger.

The cockpit of the plane was heavily padded to protect occupants from low temperatures and liquid oxygen vaporizing into a face mask for breathing purposes.

LILY LANGTRY DIES ON RIVIERA AT 74

WAS IDOLIZED BY SOCIETY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 12.—Lady de Bathe, best known by the name of Lily Langtry, under which she attained fame as an actress, died here today of heart disease. She was taken seriously ill several months ago with influenza and had gradually improved, but was unable to survive a relapse.

She Knew End was Near.

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 12 (AP).—Lily Langtry, the famous beauty, had been ailing for the past three weeks. Her condition grew worse with the cold weather which has been sweeping all parts of Europe during the last few days.

Mrs. Peat, for sixteen years her constant companion, told the correspondent that the actress was taken ill three weeks ago just after returning from London, got worse in a day or two and had to be put to bed.

"When she knew she had influenza," said Mrs. Peat, "we talked together and she felt then that she never would get out of that bed. You see, she knew her heart was weak.

"I would talk with her after the doctor had left her each day," Mrs. Peat continued, "but always she would shake her beautiful head and say:

"'I know I am at the end. I shall never get better, dear.'

"Only last night she said to me:

"'I am going, dear; I am very, very sorry, but I am going. Good-bye.'"

A World-Famous Beauty.

No woman of the last half of the nineteenth century was so much talked about as Lily Langtry, known all over the world in the height of her fame as the "Jersey Lily." A noted beauty, a famous actress, the owner of the best racing stable in England, a subject for gossip that involved the highest circles of English society, Lily Langtry a generation ago was being compared to Mme. de Pompadour and even (by no less a judge than Oscar Wilde) to Helen of Troy.

To Americans of thirty years and more ago she was a familiar figure from her frequent stage appearances. The foundation of her fortune was laid here on her first tour of the country and she often returned for engagements, the last one being in 1915. The attraction, however, was not her acting, which, though competent, was never unusually good. It was the glamour which enveloped her name ever since she joined the "Marlborough" set which surrounded the Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII, in 1878.

"Lily" was originally a nickname for Emélie Charlotte. She was the daughter of the Very Rev. W. C. E. Le Breton, dean of the Isle of Jersey, England, and was born on Oct. 13, 1854, at St. Hilliers, a small town on the island. As a child she was something of a tomboy, according to her own account, with a decided will of her own and a masculine courage, but she was given the typical upbringing of an English family of the upper middle class.

One night when she was 18 years old, an Irish yachtsman, Edward Langtry, the son of a wealthy Belfast ship merchant, put in at St. Hilliers to avoid a storm and was invited by the dean to spend the evening at his home. There he met the dean's daughter and immediately fell in love with her. Two years later, on March 12, 1874, they were married and several years after that moved to London.

By that time she had matured into a woman of unusual beauty and charm. An acquaintance, who knew her then, described her as "a woman

SCHACHT CALLS LEVY ON REICH VERY HEAVY

YOUNG INDICATES DISSENT

Holding War Burdens Greater Than Reich's, Allies Will Resist Reduction.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The real work of the experts' committee began today in an entirely normal way when Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, first German delegate, painted to his fellow-delegates a picture of a Germany still struggling to get on her feet and whose degree of success had been grossly exaggerated.

While he did not mention the recent annual report of S. Parker Gilbert, the Agent General for Reparation Payments, it was quite plain that it will be most difficult to draw from Dr. Schacht's premises the conclusions Mr. Gilbert drew, the most pertinent of which was that Germany could pay the normal Dawes plan annuity of 2,500,000,000 marks ($600,000,000) without difficulty.

While it is not announced that Dr. Schacht invited the experts to come to Germany to see on the spot that he was right, nevertheless, he insisted that the subject of Germany's annuities should be approached now from a purely objective point of view.

Unfortunately for Dr. Schacht's success, the opinion has now become very widespread that Germany in paying the Dawes annuities is no more heavily taxed than are England and France for liquidation of the war.

Dr. Schacht's Arguments.

While no official communication has been given out regarding the speech of the head of the Reichsbank, it is understood that Dr. Schacht emphasized that German industry, and especially agriculture, were still far from being on a normal basis and that the burden now laid upon Germany to produce the Dawes annuity within Germany was very heavy.

As for payments outside of Germany, the head of the Reichsbank is said to have made the point he has often made before, that these transfers have been made largely through the use of credits obtained in foreign loans and that if it should be decided, as has been proposed, that the transfer clause should be abolished, most careful and expert study should be given to the problem of Germany's ability to transfer wealth abroad. Especially, he argued, do Germans attach the greatest importance to this, because if the reparation debt is put on the same basis as Germany's commercial debt, a miscalculation might result in serious danger to the German and world economic position.

The argument of Dr. Schacht is quite clearly directed toward the conclusion that if there is to be a new deal on reparations involving abolition of the transfer clause, prudence requires a diminution in the standard Dawes annuity of 2,500,000,000 marks.

Dr. Schacht's statement was made at the morning session. In the afternoon there was discussion of it, no details of which were made public. However, it is known that the British experts have with them a calculation that application of the index of prosperity would, on the basis of the development of German economy as set forth by German Government figures, indicate a probable increase of 3 per cent annually in German payments, which means that in twelve or fourteen years, should the Dawes plan continue in operation, the Germans would face a payment of more than 3,000,000,000 marks annually instead of 2,500,000,000.

The French experts are said to have in hand a calculation prepared by Premier Poincaré indicating that

COOLIDGE SUGGESTS CAPPER'S PROPOSAL GOES A BIT TOO FAR

But He Is Sympathetic With General Idea of Curbing Arms Shipments.

WANTS TO STUDY SUBJECT

Impression Is Given That He Is More Favorable to the Porter Resolution.

PARIS ENTHUSIASM DROPS

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—While President Coolidge is in sympathy with the principle of preventing the shipment of munitions in certain circumstances to nations engaged in hostilities, enunciated in the resolution offered yesterday by Senator Capper of Kansas for adding strength to the multilateral treaty renouncing war, his disposition is to suspend opinion, pending study of the subject.

This attitude was made known at the White House today, where it was said also that while Mr. Coolidge had not read the Capper resolution he had perused comments on it. The impression he had formed, according to what was described as his reaction, was that the proposal of the Kansas Senator went further than the President deemed it wise to go.

There is doubt as to whether the views so far credited to Mr. Coolidge regarding the Capper resolution also apply to the resolution introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Porter, under whose provisions the President could bar the export of war material to any nation, whether or not a signatory to the Kellogg pact, where there was even a threat of war or disturbance likely to bring on hostilities.

Attitude Toward Porter Proposal.

Part of what was said in explanation of the President's attitude has left the impression that he was more inclined to look with favor on Mr. Porter's proposal than on that of Senator Capper. He is aware, it was stated, that he has the power to stop the shipment of arms and munitions to any American country where internal disorder or hostilities due to international conflicts exist. He is also empowered to stop exports of arms to countries like China, where the United States has extra-territorial rights.

The President was represented as believing that such authority might be extended to include all countries, not only when there were domestic outbreaks but when warfare between nations was in progress. This comment apparently had direct application to the Porter plan, which, according to its author, who is chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, has the endorsement of Secretary Kellogg.

The Capper resolution provides that an embargo on the shipment of war supplies may be applied by the President, at his discretion, against any subscribing nation which violates the Kellogg-Briand pact. The Porter resolution, likewise framed to aid in the enforcement of the multilateral treaty, invests the President with authority, in his discretion, to place an embargo on shipments of war supplies destined for any country where "conditions of domestic violence or international conflict exist or are threatened."

The Porter resolution, as its author explained, is an extension of the legal authority at present conferred on the President to stop shipment of muni-

"Sun Lamps" to Tan Cheeks Of Members of Congress

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Synthetic tan for those who have been no nearer Palm Beach than the House Office Building is the latest health fad for members of the House of Representatives.

Several "sun lamps," of a type recently pronounced by the Bureau of Standards to be the best man-made reproduction of sunlight, are to be installed in the shower rooms of the House Office Building tomorrow, it was announced tonight.

DEMOCRAT NAMED WESTCHESTER JUDGE

Roosevelt Appoints Moore to Children's Court to Succeed the Late Judge Appell.

MOVE TO CUT THE SALARY

Mastick Urges Reduction From $15,000 to $10,000—Disavows Political Reasons.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 12.—Governor Roosevelt announced today the appointment of Benjamin W. Moore, Democratic leader of Westchester County, as judge of the Children's Court of that county to succeed the late Judge George C. Appell.

Almost at the same time, Senator Seabury C. Mastick, Republican, of Westchester, introduced a bill in the Legislature reducing the salary of the Westchester Children's Court judge from $15,000 to $10,000 a year.

Senator Mastick insisted the bill was not introduced because the Governor had appointed the Democratic leader of Westchester County to the judicial position.

"I was requested by the Westchester County Board of Supervisors to introduce the bill in an effort to equalize the judicial salaries in the county," Senator Mastick said. "I want to make it clear that the bill was not introduced because of political reasons. No other county in the State, with the exception of New York, pays its Children's Court judge more than $10,000 a year."

Until Jan. 1 of this year the salary of the Children's Court judge of Westchester had been $10,000. Under a bill passed by the Legislature in 1928 the salary was increased to $15,000.

Referred to Finance Committee.

When Mr. Moore's nomination was sent to the Senate by the Governor, Senator Knight, Republican leader, moved that it be referred to the Finance Committee.

"There may be no objection to Mr. Moore's confirmation, not due, however, to the fact that he is the Democratic leader of Westchester County," Senator Knight, "He comes here with that recommendation."

"I resent that slurring and almost insulting remark," exclaimed Senator Downing, Democratic leader, jumping to his feet.

Senator Knight insisted that Senator Downing was out of order and threatened to invoke parliamentary discipline.

"If ill becomes the Senator to be running around the floor and shouting," Senator Knight said, looking directly at Senator Downing.

"You will find no change in me," Senator Downing replied.

"We will find a change in him,"

LAGUARDIA BRINGS CHARGE

Says Bar Members Have Complained of 'Grave Irregularities.'

BANKRUPTCY ACTS SCORED

Committee Would Recommend 'Exoneration, Condemnation or Impeachment.'

WINSLOW PROMISES TO AID

Resents 'Unjustifiable' Attack and Declares His Name Will Be Cleared.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—A series of accusations imputing improper conduct in the administration of justice to Judge Francis A. Winslow of the Southern District of New York were made in a resolution offered in the House today by Representative LaGuardia of New York, to authorize the House Judiciary Committee to investigate his fitness for office and to report its findings, together with recommendations of exoneration, condemnation or impeachment.

The resolution accuses Judge Winslow of nepotism, favoritism in awarding receiverships, intimidation of witnesses, harassing of lawyers and other acts that, it is alleged, have given rise to "general rumor and impression among members of the bar and the public of unjudicial, unfair and improper conduct on the part of said Judge Winslow."

The resolution recites that there have recently appeared news articles "showing the repeated appointments and favors" received by "one Marcus Helfand," a New York City attorney in Judge Winslow's court, and "that the said judge has been the willing recipient of favors, tokens and other considerations from the said Helfand."

Fare Case Ruling Attacked.

Judge Winslow's action in signing an order restraining State courts from passing on the Interborough Rapid Transit 7-cent fare case is dealt with by the resolution, which charges that the controverted order was approved by the jurist without opportunity to familiarize himself "with the facts in the case."

Improper conduct by Judge Winslow in connection with an application for a parole for Meyer Kaplan, formerly confined in Atlanta prison, is alleged. Here it is charged that Kaplan "has stated that he obtained a suspension of sentence and was placed on probation by said Judge Winslow through improper and unlawful methods."

It is further charged that Judge Winslow limited his appointments of receivers to "a small group of men," and that one of those included in this "ring" was "one David Steinhardt, indicted for shortage in his accounts," and who, the resolution alleges, "was repeatedly appointed a receiver by Judge Winslow."

Sirovich Backs LaGuardia.

Mr. LaGuardia's demand for an investigation of Judge Winslow's conduct was endorsed by Representative Sirovich, New York Democrat, who in a speech in the House today said he had just completed a six weeks' investigation of the case. Representative Wainwright, who represents the New York district in which Judge Winslow resides, insisted that every opportunity should be afforded the jurist to reply to the charges. The case was brought up on the floor by Mr. LaGuardia and led to lively debate of more than an hour. The resolution was referred to the House Judiciary Committee, which at an early meeting will decide just what disposition shall be made of it.

Text of the Resolution.

The text of the LaGuardia resolution follows:

Whereas it appears that there have been grave irregularities in connection with the administration of justice by Francis A. Winslow, a Federal Judge in and for the Southern District of New York; and

Whereas there have recently appeared in the public press news articles showing the repeated appointments and favors received by one Marcus Helfand, an attorney in New York City, and that intimate friendship has grown up between the said Judge Francis A. BAY OF WHALES, Antarctica, Feb. 12.—The weather has continued execrable and we are still beating up and down in a stiff northeaster waiting for this period of storm to pass. Last night it began to clear and we thought our troubles were over for a time, but this morning the wind shifted from its temporary place in the east to the north and began to freshen.

The barometer is going up but, as has been said before, that does not seem to mean much at times down here. This is the seventh day of unrest and it does not appear now as if we would be able to get back to the bay ice for some time.

Commander Byrd's flagship is practically unloaded and one more day will finish the work. Last night the City of New York went in and tied up in calm water alongside the ice, but this morning the wind shifted, the sea rose and we were forced to put out again.

The position is complicated now by the fact that this long and unusual spell of wind from the east and north has brought down a lot of heavy pack ice from the unknown region above us and, so as not to be caught between it and the bay ice and squeezed, we have had to thread our way through the large floes and get entirely outside the bay in open sea.

The conditions we have met in the past week must be unusual, for Captain Roald Amundsen's Fram only put out to sea twice during her stay here, whereas we have lost track of the number of times we have left the bay ice to avoid being thrown up against it by the sea.

Coolidges Will Depart Promptly on March 4; Packing Up His Gifts Is a Huge Problem

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—President and Mrs. Coolidge will leave Washington early on the afternoon of March 4 for their home at Northampton, Mass., where he will remain for some time before deciding on a permanent residence.

As soon after the inauguration ceremonies as possible the President and Mrs. Coolidge will depart, hoping to make the trip of seven hours to Northampton without traveling by sleeper.

It was said at the White House today that Mrs. Coolidge was anxious to be at the bedside of her mother, Mrs. Lemira Goodhue, who has been seriously ill for a long time at the Northampton Hospital.

Friends of the President say he may ultimately make his home in a suburb of Boston unless he should finally accept a position taking him into another State. The general belief is that his residence in the old home will be for a year or so and that he will spend a portion of the Summer months at the homestead in Plymouth, Vt., where he took the oath of office in August, 1923.

The President let it be known today that he was having more trouble getting out of the White House than into it, due to the necessity of packing up the presents and souvenirs he has accumulated in the past five and a half years.

The Coolidges came to the White House with eight trunks. They will go out with twice that number as well as 150 boxes and barrels.

Already fifty boxes have been sent to Northampton. Each day others are being sent away so that on March 4, the Coolidges will be ready to step into a car and ride away with only handbags.

The President is in rare good health as he enters the three final weeks of his administration. He is heavier than usual, although his nervous system has suffered from the ordeal of office. This, his physician, Dr. Coupal, has assured him, will soon be restored to normal condition by outdoor recreation.

Now a warm devotee of fishing and hunting, Mr. Coolidge has promised to return to the scene of his first try at trout and may spend a few weeks in Yellowstone Park next Summer.

Winslow they must retain said Marcus Helfand as co-attorney or special counsel because of his influence with said Judge Winslow, pointing to the almost unbroken line of favorable rulings and decisions he has obtained, all of which has given rise to general rumor and impression among members of the bar and the public of unjudicial, unfair and improper conduct on the part of said Judge Winslow.

Charges "Ring" Exists.

Whereas the said Judge Winslow has made repeated appointments of a small group of men to receiverships and special masters, which group in turn appoints to other positions persons closely associated with said Judge Winslow either by ties of marriage, previous business relationship or personal favor, constituting said group into a ring which, through its commonly known connections and influence with said Judge Winslow, has harassed legitimate business and has depleted with excessive expenses and fees, all approved by said Judge Winslow, bankrupt estates, thereby preventing legitimate creditors from obtaining their just distributive share of the estate, all of which seems to be known among the members of the bar and the public in said Southern District of New York; and

Whereas included in this ring is one David Steinhardt, indicted for shortage in his accounts as receiver for larceny and who is now a fugitive from justice, who was repeatedly appointed by the said Francis A. Winslow as receiver, notwithstanding that he had not properly accounted in many estates previously entrusted to him by the said Judge Winslow; and

Whereas in many bankruptcy proceedings the said Judge Francis A. Winslow was improperly influenced by the said Marcus Helfand and other members of his favored group and ruled improperly by reason of such influence to the detriment of creditors and the proper administration of justice; and

Whereas there has been severe criticism of the conduct of said Judge Winslow upon the bench, this criticism including the harassing of attorneys, the intimidation of witnesses, the conduct of a case in such a manner as to prejudice the jury in favor of one of the parties, the refusal to permit the stenographer to make a complete record of the case, and of altering the record after the stenographer has made a transcript, all of which tending to the miscarriage of justice and conduct reprehensible in a judicial officer.

Action in Fare Case Cited.

Whereas there has been frequent criticism of the manner in which said Judge Winslow has handled cases affecting large corporations, especially his action in the Interborough Rapid Transit seven-cent fare case when he signed an order restraining the State courts from considering this matter, the order being signed at his home in another city than that in which the court for the Southern District of New York was located or the city where the actions were to be heard without an opportunity of familiarizing himself with all the facts in the case and before he could have had an opportunity to ascertain the merits of the application for the said order and being signed at night only a few hours before the State court was to hear argument, and being signed after the district judge before whom the matter properly came had refused to consider the application for an injunction; and

Whereas, prompted by improper motives and considerations, among which was the sudden appearance as a special counsel of the aforesaid Marcus Helfand after the completion of the trial and solely for the purpose of obtaining special consideration and favor, the said Judge Winslow imposed an unusually light sentence of thirty days in the city jail on one Walter Cutterson, convicted of having used the mails in a scheme to defraud; and the said mild sentence having ostensibly been justified in open court on a promise of restitution to the extent of $100,000 to the several persons, victims of the fraud, while the said Judge Winslow then and there denied the motion of the Assistant District Attorney to make such light sentence conditioned on the actual restitution of the money to the victims of the fraud.

Improper Trial Conduct Charged.

Whereas, the said Judge Winslow improperly and for other improper considerations so conducted the trial of a certain criminal case as to prejudice the jury against the Government of the United States prosecuting said case, so interjected himself in the examination of witnesses as to intimidate the witnesses or to confuse the issues, so abused and harassed the Assistant District Attorney charged with the trial of the case as to discredit him entirely to the jury, all with the improper purpose and intent of obtaining a verdict of acquittal for the said defendant then on trial before him; and

Whereas, one Meyer Kaplan has stated that he obtained a suspension of sentence and was placed on probation by said Judge Winslow through improper and unlawful methods, and that he was finally committed to Atlanta Penitentiary by the said Judge Winslow because he was unable or failed to complete an arrangement made by and with the said Judge Winslow; and

Whereas, said Judge Winslow has knowledge of the said statement, charge and accusation made by said Meyer Kaplan since his release from Atlanta, but has taken no action to make the said Meyer Kaplan answerable in contempt proceedings or otherwise, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary of the House be and is hereby instructed to proceed immediately with an investigation of the conduct of Judge Francis A. Winslow in relation to his conduct in office, to the charges herein alleged and of such other facts concerning the said Judge Francis A. Winslow as may be presented to said committee which may prove his unfitness for office.

Justice Department Would Aid.

The committee is authorized to call upon the Department of Justice for its assistance and cooperation in the conduct of this inquiry.

The committee is instructed to inquire fully into the whole nature and extent of the allegations made covering Judge Francis A. Winslow. The committee is instructed, after its investigation, to report the result of its findings to the House, together with recommendations of exoneration, condemnation or impeachment. For the purpose of completing this investigation the Committee on the Judiciary is authorized to appoint a subcommittee of such size, as it may determine, which shall have, while so employed, all the power in respect to this investigation and process as is possessed by the whole committee, and such subcommittee is authorized to conduct its hearings while the House is in session. The committee shall have power to send for persons and papers and administer oaths and shall have the right to report at any time.

La Guardia Explains Action.

"At times," Mr. La Guardia said in his speech, "it becomes necessary for a member to invoke the machinery provided in the Constitution to ascertain whether a judge of the Federal court has been guilty of crimes and misdemeanors to warrant his impeachment. We have a situation in the Southern District of New York so bad that it has shocked both bench and bar; so bad that it is reflecting on the integrity of the court; and unless we have an investigation either to ascertain the truth of these charges or otherwise, the people of that district will lose confidence in that court."

Mr. LaGuardia then read his resolution.

Representative Michener of Michigan, member of the Judiciary Committee, interrupted Mr. LaGuardia to ask why he did not formally impeach the judge if he believed the charges outlined in the resolution were true. Mr. Michener left the impression that it was his opinion that a formal impeachment, as he suggested, would result in an immediate inquiry by the House Judiciary Committee. Mr. LaGuardia said he preferred an investigation without the formality of a demand for impeachment because the Judiciary Committee had power to issue subpoenas, and was thus able to get at facts beyond the power of an individual member to obtain.

It was for the committee to determine, he said, whether grounds exist in the Winslow case to warrant it in presenting articles of impeachment.

Mr. LaGuardia asserted that the impeachment processes set up by the Constitution were so cumbersome as to make action under them in the present case almost impossible. He pointed out that Mr. Sirovich had been working on the Winslow case several weeks, and that the two members, one a Republican and the other a Democrat, had joined in presenting the matter to the House in order that the accusation might not be construed as a partisan attack.

"This is a duty imposed on us which we cannot escape," said Mr. LaGuardia. "It is unpleasant and distasteful but we cannot sit here, coming from the district in which these conditions are charged to exist, without taking the action I am at this time."

He declared the course he proposed was followed in the Judge English case which, he said, would never have reached the House if an investigation had not been advised in advance, instead of resorting to the procedure of impeachment prescribed by the Constitution.

"No one could do more than I have done," he said, "or more than the gentleman from New York (Mr. Sirovich) in getting these facts into such shape as to present them to the committee.

"Now the committee can make a preliminary investigation, come back to the House and get the necessary authority to send out subpoenas and bring in the witnesses. The gentleman from Michigan knows that no member of the bar is safe in testifying unless he does so under a subpoena. The gentleman must know it is impossible to go into court and get all the records necessary to establish the allegations contained in my charges."

"Now, I say to the gentleman," Mr. Michener interrupted, "that if the things which he has suggested are true, is the gentleman afraid of the responsibility of putting the machinery for proper investigation into motion?"

Calls Winslow "Knave or Fool."

"The gentleman is not afraid of any responsibility," Mr. LaGuardia retorted, "and the gentleman from Michigan knows the gentleman from New York well enough to know he is not afraid, but the gentleman is lawyer enough to know he must proceed in a careful and orderly manner, and I know that the witnesses we require in order to draft proper articles of impeachment in this case can only be brought here by power of subpoena in the committee.

Reviewing incidents that led to the decision of himself and Mr. LaGuardia to act in the case, Mr. Sirovich told of the circumstances under which Meyer and Abe Kaplan became involved in the New York courts.

"I think Judge Winslow is either a knave or a fool," said Mr. Sirovich. "I think he has no right to be upon the bench, and if he was a fool—by the way, I have forgotten that Kaplan told him he was going to Europe with the judge a month later and we looked it up for the purpose of finding out if it was true, and sure enough, through the medium of a New York newspaper, we found that the judge and he had sailed together on the Hamburg-American Line in July.

"So, I believe in fairness to justice, in fairness to truth, the judiciary committee should investigate. If an imposition has been placed upon the judge, he is entitled to be exonerated, and he is entitled to be investigated."

Praises Winslow's Record.

Mr. Wainwright, speaking as one who had long known Judge Winslow, said that the resolution should be adopted and "some means or methods be provided for carrying it on to enable Judge Winslow to clear his fair name."

"I have known him thirty years," said Mr. Wainwright. "He is a respected citizen and resident of my County of Westchester. For two terms he was district attorney of my county. He was one of the leaders of the bar of my county. He has been intrusted with all kinds of legal responsibility and trusts of a civil and legal nature.

"It would come as a great shock to the citizens of my county to have charges of this kind made against a man in whom we have had such great confidence for so many years. We all know that, dealing with the elements of society judges deal with, they sometimes are subject to a very unfortunate situation. So far as I am personally concerned, knowing Judge Winslow personally, as I have for many years, it would take a good deal to persuade me that the charges that have been made on the floor here are true, and that circumstances referred to are not subject to satisfactory explanation."

"Does the gentleman know whether these charges are being investigated by the Department of Justice?" Mr. Michener asked. Mr. Wainwright replied that he was not so informed.

"And, if the charges have been made and are being investigated by the Department of Justice in an orderly manner, without publicity," Mr. Michener resumed, "would the gentleman feel that this man should be investigated by Congress unless some one in Congress was able to assume responsibility of following up the due procedure of impeachment?"

"I will say," Mr. Wainwright replied, "I have seen suggestions of this kind in the papers, but I am not familiar with the charges or the fact, but if this is so, if there is a method or means by which these charges can be investigated by the Department of Justice, it would probably answer the purpose in order that finally the matter might come before Congress with a report such as might be made by the Department of Justice."

WINSLOW RESENTS CHARGES.

Promises to Aid Inquiry Which, He Says, Will Clear Him.

Judge Winslow issued a brief statement last night at his home, 64 Alta Avenue, Yonkers, in which he expressed resentment at Representative LaGuardia's "unjustifiable criticism." He added, however, that he would cooperate with any committee that might be named to investigate his acts, and felt sure such an investigation would result in his complete exoneration.

Judge Winslow refused to see a reporter who called at his home, but in answer to a message about Mr. LaGuardia's resolution, sent down from upstairs the following written statement:

The only comment I can make at this time, pending the receipt of a complete copy of the resolution presented by Representative LaGuardia, and an examination of its contents, is to say that while, of course, I am resentful of this utterly unjustifiable criticism of my judicial conduct, I shall afford any committee that may be appointed to examine into my conduct every facility for a complete and thorough investigation, convinced that it can produce no other result than my complete exoneration from any charge of misconduct in the administration of my official duties.

Helfand Is Not Reached.

At the home of Marcus Helfand, 858 West End Avenue, who was mentioned by Mr. LaGuardia as having received favors from Judge Winslow, it was said last night that he was not in and could not be reached until this morning. United States Attorney Tuttle declined to comment on the resolution.

Mr. LaGuardia's resolution demanding an investigation of the court practices of Federal Judge Winslow is the first action taken in connection with investigations of the bankruptcy situation in New York in which the name of any judge has been adversely mentioned.

Representative William I. Sirovich introduced a somewhat similar resolution for an investigation with a view to possible impeachment proceedings, but his resolution referred generally to Federal judges of this district, without mentioning any one by name.

It is understood that most, if not all, of the Federal judges of the Southern District of New York would welcome an investigation but do not feel that it is their place to make such a demand. Publicity in connection with the bankruptcy investigation and the resolutions presented at Washington have left them, it is said, in an uncomfortable situation, without the privilege of taking the lead in having the whole matter thoroughly aired.

The statement by Mr. LaGuardia in his resolution, that Mr. Helfand was favored by Judge Winslow, is regarded as indicating a possible connection between Mr. LaGuardia's information and that being sought by the Federal grand jury now investigating the bankruptcy situation throughout the Southern District of New York.

Helfand Went Before Grand Jury.

Mr. Helfand and also a clerk from his law office at 225 Broadway were questioned recently by the grand jury. No information was made public with respect to the line of inquiry than being followed by the grand jury. Mr. LaGuardia's mention, in that connection, of the existence of a "ring" is the first actual mention of the names of any persons alleged to be a part of such a ring. None of the indictments thus far returned by the grand jury have indicated that more than two persons worked together illegally. One of these was David Steinhardt and the other was Max Pinner, a Federal Court employe said to have received $100,000 from Steinhardt. Pinner has not been indicted.

It was recalled yesterday that the Federal judges of this district were the first to start the bankruptcy inquiry by reporting to Mr. Tuttle that David Steinhardt, fugitive attorney and receiver, under indictment for embezzlement, was short some $50,000 in his bankruptcy accounts.

As the investigation of the grand jury progressed the Federal judges again took action to clear up the situation by removing Charles Shongood as United States Auctioneer, a position he had held for almost a quarter of a century. His dismissal by order of the judges was followed by his indictment on charges of conspiracy and embezzlement.

The district judges went even further in their efforts to straighten out the bankruptcy tangle by appointing the Irving Trust Company as official receiver in bankruptcy and, later, by naming the Underwriters' Salvage Company of New York as official custodian in bankruptcy.

Mr. Tuttle received a telegram yesterday from Assistant United States Attorney George J. Mintzer who went to Canada last Saturday night on information that Steinhardt was in hiding somewhere in the Dominion. In his wire Mr. Mintzer said:

"No results as yet. Will return to office Wednesday."

Leon Turner, a brother-in-law of Steinhardt, was questioned yesterday by Assistant United States Attorney Edward Silver about a published report that he had said Steinhardt was a victim of higher-ups, and also that Turner himself had lost money as a result of investing in accordance with Steinhardt's advice.

Turner said the published report was not correct, that he knew nothing of any "higher-ups" in connection with Steinhardt's affairs and that he had never lost money through investments made upon Steinhardt's advice.

The grand jury will resume its inquiry today.

GET STEINHARDT CLUE.

Detectives Hunting Him in Canada Go to Ottawa.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Feb. 12.—When detectives searching for David Steinhardt, missing United States Federal bankruptcy receiver, arrived in Ormstown last night after a fruitless search all over the near-by district, they were told that Steinhardt had been seen there on two occasions, once in disguise, since his flight from New York City in January.

The detectives have a clue which leads them to believe that Steinhardt is at present in Ottawa, and they left Ormstown for the capital today.

TO STUDY BANKRUPTCY LAW

City Bar Association Will Get Report of Committee Tonight.

The Association of the Bar of the City of New York will receive tonight for discussion and action the report of its special committee on the bankruptcy law. Special interest attaches to the report in view of the bankruptcy investigation under way by the Federal Grand Jury and also in view of charges made before the House in Washington yesterday by Representative F. H. La Guardia.

At the meeting, which will be held at the headquarters of the association, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, there will be reports from the committee on courts of limited jurisdiction and the committee on criminal courts, law and procedure, and also on important matters considered at the annual meeting of the New York State Bar Association, including reforms in the New York law of property and a bureau to inquire into the defects in the administration of justice.

SENATOR ASKS DATA ON RESERVE BOARD

Shipstead Inquires If Foreign Governments Were Consulted on Rediscounts.

BROOKHART DENOUNCES LAW

Characterizes It as "a Failure" as He Criticizes Stock Market Speculation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The attention of the Senate was again focused today on the Federal Reserve System when Senator Shipstead introduced a resolution asking the Federal Reserve Board whether it had consulted with foreign government banks on changes in rediscount rates, and Senator Brookhart characterized the Federal Reserve law as "the most colossal failure in all legislative history."

The Shipstead resolution requests the board to inform the Senate as soon as possible concerning agreements or understandings made by it or any of its officers "with the Bank of England, Bank of France or any other foreign bank of foreign acceptance corporation relative to the raising or lowering" of the Federal Reserve rates since Jan. 1, 1924.

The board is also asked to report "the ostensible or admitted reasons given, if any," for such agreements or understandings.

Puts Questions to Board.

The resolution continues:

"If such agreements were made and were effectuated, what, in the opinion of the board, was the resulting effect upon the international shipments of gold?

"What, in the opinion of the board, was the resulting effect upon the pyramiding of bank credit and the general credit structure, speculation and the price of stocks and bonds and commodity prices, including agriculture?

"What information, if any, does the board possess in regard to the amount of foreign money or credit represented in the call loan report of the New York bank clearings within the last year?"

The resolution further requested the board to give to the Senate information and suggestions "helpful to enact legislation for the purpose of stabilizing the international exchange, the domestic price level and the value of the dollars as a medium of exchange."

Senator Brookhart, in a speech, quoted Senator Glass, author of the Federal Reserve act, as saying the law was intended "to cut away the cancer of speculation."

Reserve Law Is Assailed.

"It is quite evident that the 'cancer of speculation' was to be cut out of American business by the law," Senator Brookhart said. "If it failed in this, it failed in its primary purpose. But what has come of the law's operation? During the past few months stock-gambling loans have run over $6,000,000,000. The cancer is now nine times as large as before the operation. Therefore, upon the question of its primary purpose, as expressed by the authors of the law, the law is the most colossal failure in all legislative history."

The Senator said he had introduced a bill to stop any bank from making a speculative loan in the same way that the Federal Reserve banks are prohibited from rediscounting such a loan.

"Why should a speculative loan be outlawed in the Reserve Bank for rediscount and at the same time be legalized as an original loan by the member bank?" he asked. "It should be outlawed all along the line. It is preposterous to claim that the Government of the United States or of the various States should be called upon to furnish a banking system to sustain an institution of stock gamblers.

"Another bill would prohibit one ordinary bank from paying another ordinary bank for redeposits, and turn this item of Reserve Bank business into the Reserve banks. It would require the Reserve Bank to pay a 2 per cent interest rate. This would increase the volume of Reserve Bank business very greatly.

Proposes State Bank Measure.

"These provisions have been criticized by the statement that they would drive all the business into the State banks. I have anticipated that argument and offered another bill to require the State banks to comply with the same rules or be denied the use of the United States mails and the privileges of interstate commerce. This would put all the banks under the same system of rules.

"Unless something of the kind is done, we are now headed for the greatest panic in the history of the world. The recent action of the Federal Reserve Board, while in the right direction, is powerless to actually stop this fabulous bubble of stock inflation. Perhaps it has gone too far already to be stopped by anything but a panic. In conclusion I want to ask:

"Shall the Congress of the United States remain an impotent onlooker in this ruthless destruction of the prosperity of the great masses of our people?"

Representative Clarke of New York attacked the board in a speech in the House.

"If the Federal Reserve Board can continue to exercise arbitrary power and influence ups and downs in the market," he said, "it is the greatest get-rich body, in possibilities, in the world.

"If it is the board's duty to intrude in Wall Street, it must also be its duty to stop speculation in Florida real estate that has left a trail of hardships to multitudes, and the boom in Texas real estate and oil. I believe we in Congress have erred in creating too many of these ultra-aristocratic bureaucracies."

SEEKS FEDERAL USURY LAW.

Ex-State Senator Davis Confers With Members of Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—A Federal usury law to limit rates for call and time money and to end what it characterizes as "money gambling," so far as possible, is being sought by the National Association for Procuring the Enactment of a National Usury Statute, of which former State Senator David Floyd Davis of New York City, is president.

Mr. Davis said after conferring with members of Congress that bills for such a law may be introduced. Although he and his associates believe that the measure would be a "valuable adjunct" to the Federal Reserve act, they do not feel that it should be passed as an amendment to the reserve act.

The proposal would not interfere with State rights, it was said, since the law would be flexible, leaving with the Secretary of the Treasury the power to promulgate the rates for the various States with due regard to State usury statutes.

The Treasury Department would be made the central agency, however, for the enforcement of the national law and the differing States' rates.

"It is the view of those interesting themselves in the enactment of the proposed law," Mr. Davis said, "that had an adequate call money usury law been in existence, there would have been no occasion for the reverberant warnings to the Federal Reserve member banks of the New York district; and, of course, neither the subsequent ill-advised entanglement of the Federal Reserve Board at Washington, nor the still more unfortunate resultant effect on stock market values, which have so badly and unwarrantedly affected stockholders.

"Those enlisted in this movement consider the necessity of 'warning' the member banks of the New York district as clear evidence that there was disloyalty, and, to put it gently, unethical practices existing within their own family circle; and they believe the temptation of high call money rates was the corrupting influence. They hold that the removal of temptation is the safest and surest way to defeat greed of this kind, if it exists, or might come to exist, in the future."

WARNS BANKS TO ACT AGAINST SPECULATION

E. C. Bendere Tells Pennsylvania Group That Small Traders and Women Should Be Barred.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—Bankers were advised here today to take strong measures to keep small traders out of the stock market, to restrain themselves from similar speculation, and to "return to the principles of old-fashioned banking."

Edward C. Bendere of Cassatt & Co. of New York and Philadelphia declared in an address before Group 2 of the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association that clerks, stenographers and "woman as a class" should be kept out of the market.

Seventy-five per cent of the men who have been in the market for the last five years have not made any money, he said. He asserted that individual bankers should adopt a conservative policy and not attempt to take a short-cut to huge profits.

"The cycle will turn and I want to issue the warning now," Mr. Bendere said. In 75 per cent of the cases the market is reaching a point where it is beyond itself. Most women have no place in the market, temperamentally.

"The majority of brokers and investment bankers are not in sympathy with the present trend of the stock market. The greatest opportunity for investment has passed, until there is a complete reconstruction.

"I am much concerned whether you bankers are not getting out of touch with your customers and allowing them to get out of control. Frequently we stock brokers refuse an account, and often an indignant woman leaves us—and I mean all brokers—and goes to her own banker and then goes into the market with all she has because she has not been warned by him.

"The greatest trouble is that many of you bankers are in the market yourselves. You haven't the courage to tell others to keep out, because the more people in the market the more bullish it will be. Remember that the market declines faster than it upturns, and that it is harder to get out than it is to get in.

"As a class, women should be kept out of the market due to their temperamental condition. A few of them are better suited than most men for stock market speculation, but these are exceptions. Twenty per cent of the persons in the market in the last year have been women, and it is getting to be ridiculous.

"People are going crazy and mortgaging their homes. The reaction is coming and to some it will be too late."

Mr. Bendere further criticized business men for sitting in broker's offices from the opening of the market until late in the afternoon and expecting to carry on their business as well. If they want to gratify the American mania for speculation let them do it quietly, he said, adding that the whole country is so overenthusiastic that it is neglecting its business.

He warned the bankers not to underestimate the Federal Reserve Board and said it was justified in studying conditions and issuing warnings.

OPPOSE WIDER SCOPE FOR SAVINGS BANKS

Legislative Committee Will Reject Most of the Demands for Law Revisions.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 12.—Demands that the field for savings banks investments be broadened and that the legal limit on deposits be increased from $7,500 to $10,000 will not be heeded by the legislative joint savings banks committee, which is preparing to submit its report to the Legislature soon after March 1. The committee has spent several months investigating the subject.

Demands that savings banks have trust powers, that they be permitted to establish branches in cities or counties where they are doing business, and that they get the right to engage in the small unsecured loan business, in which loans carry interest at a high rate, are likely to be opposed by the committee in its report, it was learned tonight.

Assemblyman Cheney, chairman of the committee, is authority for the statement that if the committee brings in a report it will not recommend that legislation demanded by the savings banks be enacted, which would add Canadian Government securities to their list of legal investments.

It could not be learned tonight whether the committee would report in favor of a complete revision of that section of the banking law which deals with investments by savings banks in railroad securities. That section in the present statute limits investment in such securities to a comparatively small list defined by name, and this is held to be an antiquated method of dealing with the situation.

The Savings Banks Association has asked that this entire section be repealed and new legislation substituted.

German Ship in Distress Off France.

BUSTAMENTE BACKS US ON WORLD COURT

He Tells Atlanta Citizenship Conference He Expects Body to Meet Senate's Reservations.

URGES SUPPORT FOR PEACE

Political Science Session Hears Attack on South for "One-Party Rule" and Other Papers.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Feb. 12.—Declaring that "no one could suppose that the United States aspired to an international privilege" in demanding certain reservations in becoming a member of the World Court, Judge Antonio de Bustamente, Cuban jurist and a member of the World Court, tonight defended the position of this country in its attitude toward the Court. Judge Bustamente gave the opening address at the Southeastern Citizenship Conference assembled at Emory University which followed the close of the Southeastern Political Science Conference.

Stating that in his opinion it was not the nature of the reservations proposed by the United States Senate which has kept the United States out of the Court, Judge Bustamente explained that the nature of the organizations of the Court made these reservations unacceptable at this time and predicted that changes would be made. He continued:

"It is now approaching the time for election of new judges and amendment of the present statutes. The commission, which will convene on March 12 under the guidance of Elihu Root, the author of the present court plan, may serve to overcome all difficulties. The commission will take in account the attitude of the United States and seek a way to satisfy it by a solution that will please everybody."

History of World Court Traced.

His address traced the history of the Court and detailed the negotiations for our adherence to it, and ended with an appeal to all nations to further the world peace movement, exemplified in the Kellogg pact, by adherence to the World Court. He declared:

"The moment is propitious for incorporating in formulas, accepted by all, the will and the deed of the civilized nations of the globe. The last war has left in the political and diplomatic atmosphere longings for peace. We have all seen it, more or less, close at hand, and the whole world is still suffering from its economic consequences. It was as every one of the armed struggles that preceded it has been, a calamity for humanity, and it is necessary to place as many obstacles as may be possible in the path of these great convulsions.

"Justice has ever been the most insurmountable barrier to force and the most effective preventive to frustrate it. Progress and civilization turn their supplicating eyes to justice, as their greatest inspiration and their strongest protection."

Lobbyists Are Described.

At the morning session of the Political Science Conference, Dr. H. J. Pearce Jr. of Brenau College, Gainesville, in a paper on "Government by Lobby," described the present-day influence of lobbyists as amounting virtually to a "third house of the government."

The birth, growth and present-day operations of the lobbyist and lobbyist organizations and their effect on national and State governments were described at length by Dr. Pearce.

The "one-party system," which he said prevails in the South and which he blamed for the South's "lack of interest in elections" and the fact that the South had produced no more statesmen than it has since the Civil War, was discussed by Professor George R. Sherrill of Clemson College.

In speaking on the "New Peace in the Caribbean," Dr. Philip Davidson of Agnes Scott College, substituting for Dr. Wickers of Miami University, showed how our interest in Latin-American countries grew with the acquisition of Porto Rico and Panama and the protectorate over Cuba, and traced the economic and financial expansion of this area under American influence.

At the afternoon session on international relations, A. T. Piyzoides, editor of the Greek daily Atlantis, discussed "the final transformation of the Fascist régime."

"Carribean Relations of the United States" was discussed by Professor Cyrus F. Wicker of Miami University.

SENATORS WANT VOTE ON COTTON BILL

Action on Measure to Prevent Future Sales Is Delayed at Smith's Request.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP).—The bill of Senator Caraway to prevent the sale of cotton and grain in future markets was subjected to further scrutiny in the Senate today by a demand of several Senators for a vote, which was denied on the ground that the measure was too important for quick decision.

After several Senators had spoken, cries of "vote, vote," were heard. Senator Smith, Democrat, of South Carolina, asked that the voting be postponed for at least another day because several Senators desired to present further information in opposition to the proposal.

The measure was endorsed by Senator Capper, who said that, while the bill went perhaps farther than he would have it, he intended to vote for every measure "which will help to control the reckless gambling in the necessities of life."

Senator Brookhart also advocated speedy adoption of the bill as a means of relieving cotton and grain growers from what he described as the evils they suffered under the present system of trading in futures. Senator Smith, however, declared that there was as much, if not more, good in the system as there was bad, and said the cotton exchanges already had adopted most of the reforms suggested by the Senate committee which investigated the cotton trading conditions last Spring.

Senator Caraway made an effort to curb further debate, but Senator Smith objected. He explained that several Senators not in attendance today desire to be heard, and suggested that the limit on debate be proposed tomorrow. Senator Caraway agreed to postpone the request.

LIVES OF PORTES GIL AND CALLES MENACED

Foes Also Threaten to Kidnap Ex-President's Daughter—More Bombs Found.

PRESIDENT WARNS REBELS

He Orders Seizure of Property of Those Who Inspire Revolt Against Mexican Regime.

HE ACCUSES CATHOLICS

Portes Gil Says Attack on Train Was Dictated by Religious 'Fanatics' and Not Politically Inspired.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Threatening letters have been received by President Emilio Portes Gil and his predecessor in office, Plutarco Elias Calles. Three more unexploded bombs have been found in residences of prominent members of the National Revolutionary Party, which is dedicated to preserve the politics of Senor Calles and General Alvaro Obregon, the President-elect who was assassinated last July.

The letters received by former President Calles also threatened the kidnapping of his daughter, Ernestina, wife of Thomas Arnold Robinson of New York, now in business in Mexico City. The letters were said to resemble similar ones received by General Obregon before his assassination.

In a signed statement to Mexico City newspapers tonight President Emilio Portes Gil said that the government was convinced that the authors of the bomb attempt against his life Sunday morning were "elements who undoubtedly obeyed exalted, fanatical Catholics."

The President said the conclusion was based on investigations after the dynamiting of his special train, which disclosed religious propaganda near the scene of the blast. He said there was not the slightest proof to back up the contention of newspapers here that the plot was of political origin.

Some of the anonymous letters received at the Calles residence read:

"We will get you. We will get your daughter, Ernestina. You will be punished through her. You said that you would leave Mexico when you left office. You have not done so. You will pay by your daughter being taken away."

Persons close to the family are sure that nothing could hurt Señor Calles as much as an injury to his daughter. Her husband was an American aviator in the World War and is the son of a wealthy Michigan sugar man.

Loiterers Seen Near Robinson Home

Since Saturday, when José de Leon Toral was put to death by a firing squad for the assassination of General Obregon, strangers in a large automobile have been seen near the Robinson residence. Mrs. Robinson laughed at the threats to kidnap her, but nevertheless the authorities insisted upon sending guards to her home.

She studied in New York and California before her marriage. Mr. Robinson met his bride in New York and fell so much in love with her that he moved to Mexico City and established himself in business here. His courtship was successful and President Calles gave his approval to the wedding. The Robinsons now have a young daughter, who is believed to be the only North American grandchild of a Latin American President or former President.

President Calles has repeatedly dismissed guards sent to his house since he retired from the presidency. In view of the demonstrations which accompanied the execution and funeral of Toral and the dynamiting on Sunday of the private train of President Portes Gil, the authorities tonight sent guards to the Calles house and insisted that they remain there whether the former President likes it or not.

Some of the threatening notes were written on white cloth. They read: "This fell from Heaven," and then was added that unless the religious question was settled the recipient of the warning would meet death.

Names of Leaders Withheld.

The names of the political leaders in whose separate residence the three new bombs were found were not authorized for publication in order that the police guard around them might be tightened and the investigation not impeded.

The bombs were believed by persons in touch with the situation to be similar to those recently placed in the office of Governor Aaron Saenz, candidate for the nomination as President of the Revolutionary party. It was recalled also that an attempt was made to bomb General Obregon before he was killed by Toral.

The police are working upon the theory that the bombs and threatening letters were inspired by extremists in the religious controversy. Redoubled precautions have been taken to protect all officials of the government and prominent supporters of the policies of Señors Calles and Obregon.

President Portes Gil's Statement.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 12.—In connection with the tumultuous disorders which took place Sunday afternoon on the occasion of the burial of José de Leon Toral, President Portes Gil issued a long statement just after midnight today in which he did not hesitate to reopen the Catholic controversy, charging extremists of that faith with responsibility for those and other disorders.

After detailing the causes of the disturbances from the official viewpoint, the statement says that the arrest of the most violent manifestants and even the execution of others who might commit additional crimes would not be sufficient punishment. It then goes on to say, in part, substantially:

"The government believes that economic action would be more efficacious. It will seize the property of those found to be the authors or accomplices of rebellious activity and will find means of continuing the work of the Mexican revolution by delivering the new lands to farmers for cooperative working and in all cases care will be exercised to prevent fraud or injustice.

"The government further states that no influence or friendship shall interfere with the strict application of the law. Certain of its duty, it will not allow itself to be detained or to be swayed by newspaper criticism, which is expected. The nation will be the judge of our action and rally around the government and the revolutionary group, which is struggling on behalf of our less fortunate citizens and not join the parasites who would regain those privileges which the revolution took from them.

"Upon execution of the sentence on General Obregon's murderer Catholic elements on Sunday adopted a subversive attitude contrary to the law and in contrast with the benevolent attitude the authorities have adopted regarding the so-called religious conflict. It would appear that steps taken by the government to separate itself from religious questions have contributed, contrary to what might have been expected, allowing the prejudices of the Catholic masses to be stirred up by those exploiting them for political reasons. Those leaders have associated themselves with a crime condemned by the entire nation by glorifying the perpetrators.

"The government has sufficient evidence to enable it to state that, in addition to the conduct of leading newspapers which have repeated their policy of praising the assassin without mentioning the cowardliness or repugnance of his crime, there were certain elements which systematically recruited mourners to accompany the body of the criminal, duly executed according to law, to the cemetery. They did so with a great show but in nothing like a becoming manner.

Government Blame Denied.

"The government cannot accept the conduct of these Catholic elements as resulting from religious persecution on its part. According to the program outlined by the previous administration, the present authorities have gradually abolished, except as regards holding religious services, the restrictive measures which were adopted when the conflict began. There is, therefore, nothing now to show that the state of conflict in which the Executive department once played a leading rôle still continues.

"The hidden instigators of such excesses are not sincere Catholics defending the religion of their ancestors or the integrity of their consciences. All they wish is to find some way of saving the interests the revolution is taking from them. That is proved undoubtedly by the murders of farmers which have been committed under the cry of 'Christ the King!' and the unquestioned protection fanatical rebels have received from the so-called Mexican aristocracy."

Reliable sources consulted hold that there is no doubt that the government intends to carry out the threatened confiscations. No opinion can be expressed as to the value or number of holdings which may be affected. That will be possible only when the authorities have arrested those accused of rebellious activity.

LINDBERGH TO WED MISS ANNE S. MORROW

fiance several times in Mexico and New York. Their love of the air is one of their strongest bonds. She flew with him here last November when he stopped here while on his Mexican hunting trip.

Miss Morrow and Mrs. Morrow arrived here just before noon today from Laredo, Texas. They were seventeen hours late because of interruption to traffic caused by the Sunday night bombing of the train of President Portes Gil. The bridge destroyed by the dynamiters has not been replaced and all passengers have to change trains at that point.

Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, Colonel Lindbergh's mother, is now en route to the United States from Constantinople, where she has taught for six months in an American school where a sister of Ambassador Morrow also teaches.

Miss Anne Morrow is described by her friends as a quiet, sweet and attractive girl, studious but at the same time domestic. She is said to be interested in modern artistic and literary movements and in world affairs, but at the same time to be of the home-loving type.

Engagement Pleases Calles.

Former President Plutarco Elias Calles, who as Chief Executive personally welcomed Colonel Lindbergh on the completion of his historic flight from Washington, was most happy when informed tonight by The Associated Press of the engagement of the aviator and Miss Anne S. Morrow. President Calles said:

"This is a great pleasure to me. As you know, I am very fond of both these young people. As Mexico has been the scene of their romance, I sincerely hope that they will be married in this country. Certainly their own people cannot hold them nearer to their hearts and wish them more happiness than we Mexicans. These two families and these two young people are very dear to us Mexicans.

"They have our best wishes for, and I know they will have, a happy married life."

Ernestina Calles, daughter of the former President, and her husband, Thomas Arnold Robinson, cabled felicitations to Colonel Lindbergh and urged him to be married in Mexico City. Mrs. Robinson, who is a close friend of the Morrow family and was one of the first to sense the romance, merely said when the engagement was announced:

"I told you so."

A small group of friends who gathered at the embassy tonight for dinner extended their felicitations to Miss Morrow on learning of the announcement of her engagement.

Lindbergh Has "Nothing to Say."

HAVANA, Feb. 12 (AP).—Colonel Lindbergh was ready to discuss all details of his flight today but when reporters attempted to learn his plans for marrying Miss Morrow, it was another story.

"I will confine all my remarks to aviation," the Colonel said.

When copies of cables from The Associated Press correspondent in Mexico City telling of the formal announcement of his engagement were shown to him, Colonel Lindbergh said, "well, then you know all about it and I have nothing to say."

The aviator indicated, however, that he expects to fly soon to the Pacific Coast, from where it would be a matter of a short day's flight to Mexico City.

Won Smith College Prizes.

Miss Anne S. Morrow, whose engagement to Colonel Lindbergh was announced yesterday in Mexico City, was graduated from Smith College last year after winning in May two prizes for proficiency in scholarship, the Mary Augusta Jordan prize for the most original piece of literary work in prose or verse during her college course, and also the Elizabeth Montagu prize for the best essay on "Women of Dr. Johnson's Time."

There have been many persistent rumors of the engagement of Miss Anne Morrow to Colonel Lindbergh ever since the Colonel first visited the Morrows at the embassy in Mexico City in December, 1927, when he and Miss Morrow first met. All were denied, although when Ambassador Morrow was asked about the rumored engagement last December, after one of Colonel Lindbergh's visits, he said:

"That is a purely personal affair and there is nothing to be said."

The engagement of Colonel Lindbergh to one of the daughters of Ambassador Morrow has been rumored for some time, but the reports were indefinite as to just which one it would be—Anne or Elisabeth, her older sister, according to The Associated Press.

Mrs. J. J. Morrow, their aunt, was quoted as saying that both girls had told her several times there was nothing to the rumor, as "Lindy isn't a bit sentimental and doesn't care for girls."

She also was quoted as saying it was her attitude, and she thought the attitude of the rest of the family, that if Colonel Lindbergh wanted to marry a Morrow "he'd have to give up flying."

Viewed Lindbergh's Trophies.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 12 (AP).—Miss Anna Morrow saw the trophies of the aviator's historic flights for the first time Friday, Miss Morrow and her mother made a special stop here to visit the collection in the Missouri Historical Society museum on their way to Mexico City.

It was necessary to make special arrangements before their arrival to have the exhibit open, and they spent more than an hour there. Miss Morrow was particularly interested in the trophies of the "Flying Colonel's" Mexican and Latin-American flights, Mrs. Nettie H. Beauregard, the curator, said.

BEGAN CAREER TWO YEARS AGO

Lindbergh Started His Climb to Glory at 25.

It was two years ago this month, when he had just passed his twenty-fifth birthday, that Charles A. Lindbergh started the preparations for the achievement that was to place him with Orville and Wilbur Wright in his relation to aviation. While flying his lonely way through the night on his regular mail route between St. Louis and Chicago he decided to enter for the Orteig prize, $25,000, to be awarded for the first non-stop flight across the Atlantic between New York and Paris.

With the singleness of purpose that has characterized all his achievements he set out to raise funds for the attempt. After failing to buy the plane in which Chamberlin was to follow him across the Atlantic he went to the other side of the country and there in the Ryan factory at San Diego the Spirit of St. Louis was planned in a conference that lasted twenty-four hours.

Three months later he dropped down out of the sky on Curtiss Field, ready for the flight, quiet, shy, smiling, courteous, making no promises nor predictions, save the statement that he was "going as soon as the weather was right."

On the morning of May 20, when the weather at Roosevelt Field was far from right, he took off and within thirty-three hours his plane was at rest on Le Bourget Field near Paris. The flight was accomplished, but Lindbergh's work had only begun.

A French nation grieving for Nungesser and Coli, turned to rejoicing and received the young American pilot with that whole-hearted enthusiasm so characteristically French.

As the guest of Ambassador Herrick and with the greatest solo flight of all time accomplished, the unknown mail pilot became one of the world's most famous men. Statesmen here and abroad quick to recognize the potentialities of this young man's act wondered and worried a little on how he would carry it off.

Their amazement at his flight was to be equalled by their surprise at his poise and balance, and ability to accommodate himself to all sorts of extraordinary circumstances and the charm that showed no flaw under pitiless publicity.

He called first of all on Mme. Nungesser and the French loved him for this thoughtful gesture. In his first speech he paid tribute to them and said that what they had attempted was far more difficult than his own achievement.

After Paris came Brussels and London, then Washington and New York. Only through stratagem and secrecy was he able to find repose. Hotels were impossible and Lindbergh wherever he went formed the habit of staying with friends, most of whom he made on his return from Europe. Frequently when in New York he visited at the Morrow home in Englewood.

Business opportunities of all sorts were presented to him, but he would listen to no project that was not directly concerned with aviation. When asked by the Prince of Wales as to his plans he answered:

"I am going to keep on flying."

And he has. During the eventful Summer of 1927 he flew thousands of miles, preaching in cities in every State his theme of airports and airplanes.

This tour under the auspices of the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, of which his friend, Harry S. Guggenheim, is president, was soon followed by another, a sequel, in a way, to his transoceanic flight. At the request of the President and other government officials he made a good-will tour of Central America, Mexico and the Antilles and while at Mexico City he spent Christmas at the home of Ambassador Morrow. He arrived in Havana during the session of the Pan-American Congress and then flew non-stop to St. Louis.

His desire then and still is to step down from his public place and resume life once more as a private citizen. His friends tell him that it is impossible, and still he persists in the attempt. Traveling always by air he frequently takes off suddenly for an unannounced destination and drops in unheralded wherever night finds him. He was made a director of the Guggenheim Fund with a sort of roving commission, however, and his duties as he conceives them to aviation, allow him little freedom from the public eye.

Last May he accepted an appointment as technical adviser and chairman of the technical committee of the Transcontinental Air Transport, the air-rail combination headed by C. M. Keys, president of the Curtiss Company, in which the Pennsylvania Railroad is participating. In this capacity Colonel Lindbergh and his committee have planned a coast-to-coast air line, which expects to be carrying passengers within a few months. His work, however, for this company does not limit him to that one activity, and when Pan-American Airways, Inc., asked him to fly the first mail plane of its new route through Central America over the airway that he blazed a year ago he gladly accepted. He took off from Miami on the morning of Feb. 4, his twenty-seventh birthday, flying a Sikorsky amphibian. Another plane of the same type accompanied him, and it was flown by Ray Merritt, who used to fly the air mail with him between St. Louis and Chicago.

WAS POPULAR AT SMITH.

Miss Morrow Wrote Ivy Day Song for Her Class.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Feb. 12 (AP).—Friends of Miss Anne Spencer Morrow at Smith College tonight recalled her as one of the most popular members of the Class of '28. Besides showing decided scholastic aptitude, she was prominent in numerous social and extracurricular activities.

She wrote the Ivy Day song for her class and a senior song as well. She was a member of the Manuscript Club, the International Relations Club and the Alpha Fraternity and was an usher at the junior prom.

Miss Morrow's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Cutter Morrow, is a trustee of the college, and Miss Morrow has the added distinction of being one of the "granddaughters" of Smith.

the Pan-American Airways, and Lieutenant Christian Schilt of the Marine Corps, who is on leave of absence from Managua in order to act as superintendent of the new mail route.

United States Ambassador and Mrs. Noble Brandon Judah, who had waited many hours, were the first to shake the hand of the aviator. Airways officers, attendants, Cuban Army aviation cadets and civilians joined in a cheer when the Colonel brought his plane to rest.

Plans Transcontinental Hop Soon.

"My future plans are rather indefinite," Colonel Lindbergh said, "but I expect within the next several days to take a plane over the transcontinental air line from New York to the West. I will fly from Miami to New York probably on Thursday."

He said that he had not accepted an invitation to be present at the inauguration of Herbert Hoover on March 4, and said that he would not know whether he would visit the President-elect in Florida until he reaches Miami.

Merritt reached La Fe at 3:23 P. M., and in a telephone message here at once said Colonel Lindbergh was a short distance behind him. Lindbergh landed at La Fe at 3:55 o'clock.

In the escort plane with Merritt were Chief Petty Officer Frank E. Ormsby of the navy as co-pilot and John Donohue, mechanic. Ormsby said on their arrival here that neither his party nor that of Lindbergh had encountered any adverse flying weather nor had they had any trouble with their planes.

He expressed surprise that anxiety had been felt, for he had believed that it was known that time was to be taken for the survey.

The scheduled time of arrival of the planes with 800 pounds of air mail from the Panama Canal Zone was 1:45 P. M., but during the afternoon Pan-American Airway officials said they were not worried over Lindbergh's delay, despite reported bad weather over the Carribean. They pointed out that the Colonel was one day ahead of time and that he had no set schedule to make, which allowed him the privilege of stopping anywhere along the route. Inasmuch as Colonel Hambleton was with the Colonel, it was understood that they might stop on Cozumel Island.

Crowds which had gathered before noon to greet the famous flyer had dwindled to a handful after a long wait of more than two hours. Ambassador Judah had come early, but left the field soon after 2 o'clock when the Colonel did not arrive, returning to greet him in the evening.

Lindbergh Phones to Miami.

As soon as Colonel Lindbergh landed at Havana last night he and Colonel John Hambleton, vice president of the Pan-American Airways, talked by telephone with J. M. Eaton, general traffic manager of the line in Miami, and informed Mr. Eaton that they had been delayed four and one-half hours in taking on fuel at Cozumel Island, off the Mexican coast.

The Havana call came in for Mr. Eaton while he was talking over another telephone to THE NEW YORK TIMES, and during his conversation with Colonel Lindbergh the wires were held open to THE TIMES editorial rooms in New York.

"He had a fine trip with clear weather all the way," Mr. Eaton said. "At Cozumel we have a fuel station, and both planes stopped there. The gasoline had to be put aboard the plane from small boats, and the operation is a long and tedious one. After putting aboard fuel sufficient for the trip to Cuba they took off and stopped again for more fuel at La Fe."

Head winds were reported along the route, but nothing was said about weather in the conversation between Mr. Eaton and Colonel Lindbergh save that it had been fine all the way through.

The planes will probably leave Havana for Miami early this morning, arriving at the Pan-American Airport about 9:15 A. M.

Inspected Site of Belize Field.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELIZE, Honduras, Feb. 12.—After a halt here since yesterday noon in which he inspected a proposed site for a landing field for the Pan American Airways passenger-mail route between the United States and the Panama Canal Zone, Colonel Lindbergh took off about 7 o'clock this morning, local time [the take-off was reported otherwise as at 6.12 A. M., Eastern Standard Time], for Havana, 500 miles distant.

Lindbergh's escort mail plane, piloted by Raymond J. Merritt, took off just before the Colonel started. The two were expected to reach Havana between 1 and 2 P. M. and be in Miami with the first return air mail from the Canal Zone in time for an early supper.

Colonel Lindbergh appeared over Belize on his flight from Managua, Nicaragua, yesterday, just after a heavy rain. He had climbed to 11,000 feet over the Honduran mountains to escape the storm. He reached here unexpectedly early and had landed his Sikorsky amphibian on the waterfront ramp, built for his landing here Feb. 4 on the trip south, before the crowd could reach him. Merritt landed soon afterward.

The flier was entertained overnight at Government House.

BOMBAY BECOMES QUIETER.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BOMBAY, Feb. 12.—More murderous assaults in lonely spots were reported this morning but the city as a whole was much quieter.

About half of the mills and railroad workshops resumed work, the tramcars have begun running and the streets have assumed the usual appearance of activity.

The exodus of the panic-stricken Hindus continues, however, and so far at least 20,000 have left the city with more streaming hourly toward the railroad stations.

The troops in the mill area have begun patrolling while the workers are going to or from work. Already they have made 700 arrests and the authorities believe they have the riots, which began more than a week ago, under control.

PUT ON STEVENS FACULTY.

T. N. Sanders, W. A. Shoudy and S. G. Frantz Appointed by Institute.

Dr. Harvey N. Davis, president of Stevens Institute of Technology, announced yesterday the addition of three members to the faculty and research personnel of the institute at the opening of the second regular term.

Professor Thomas N. Sanders is appointed lecturer in the Department of Economics of Engineering. He is professor of industrial accounting in the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

William Allen Shoudy, consulting engineer and now professor in mechanical engineering at Columbia University, is appointed lecturer in the Department of Economics of Engineering.

PLANE DOWN IN THE GULF.

Steamers and Aircraft Hunt R. F. Hoyt's Amphibian—Pilot Missing.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 12 (AP).—Two United Fruit Company steamships and boats from Key West were reported tonight to be searching for an amphibian airplane owned by Richard F. Hoyt, New York and Boston capitalist, which was believed to be floating in the Gulf of Mexico about thirty-five miles southeast of Key West.

The amphibian, which was piloted by Lieutenant Steven Calloway, left Havana today for Miami, but the pilot of a mail plane from Cuba, which arrived here early tonight, reported that he had sighted a plane which he believed to be the Hoyt amphibian floating on the water off Key West. Mr. Hoyt was not aboard and no one was known to have been with Calloway.

MOVE TO STABILIZE OIL PRODUCTION

Petroleum Institute Executives Decide to Name Regional Boards of Inquiry.

LOOK TO LEGISLATIVE CURB

Elimination of Overproduction and Waste Sought in Wide Scope of Study.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 12.—Further action to stabilize the production of the oil industry was taken today by the American Petroleum Institute when the executive committee of the board of directors voted the appointment of four regional committees to consider the problem from the angle of world supply.

At last night's session of the board of directors, which lasted until after midnight, a resolution was passed favoring legislative action to curtail the present overproduction of crude oil and conserve production through more economical distribution of oil and natural gas.

The decision of the executive board was in keeping with this resolution and the two actions were declared by E. B. Reese, president of the institute and head of the Barnsdall Oil Company of Tulsa, Okla., to be a concerted effort toward stabilization. He expected that the regional committees would be named next Monday.

The four committees will be the Pacific Coast Committee, the Internal Committee, the Gulf and Atlantic Coast Committee, and the Mexico and Northern South America Committee. The number of members on each was not determined, but Mr. Reeser said the representation would be large in order to widen the scope.

They will report back to a general committee which will consider the results and make further recommendations for definite action by the institute.

The purpose of the committees, Mr. Reeser said, was to try to solve the problems of wastage and overproduction. The wastage both above and under the ground was immense, he continued, and one hope was that the oil reserves could be conserved underground thereby eliminating much of the waste and the added cost to production of storage.

The natural gas element was important, he said, as the depletion of the reserves made it necessary to pump the oil and thus increased production costs.

In the resolutions passed last night by the directors, the wastage of oil and the overproduction were attributed to diversified ownership of an oil pool, from which the different lease holders sought to draw as much oil as possible.

Competition, requiring the producer to take the oil from his wells in order to keep up with other producers, also was cited as a cause of waste, requiring legislation to correct.

TURKS BAN FOREIGN WIVES.

New Law Affects All Officials and Is Retroactive.

ANGORA, Turkey, Feb. 12 (AP).—Any official, high or low, of the Turkish Republic who henceforth takes a foreigner to wife must immediately resign in order to conform to a law just passed by the National Assembly.

The previous law applied only to officers of the army and navy and to officials of the Department of Foreign Affairs. The regulations respecting those men are now made retroactive, a fact which will cause a number of important resignations.

COOLIDGE DOUBTFUL OF CAPPER PROPOSAL

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

tions of war to "any American country" where disorders prevail.

It was mentioned at the White House that a bill pending in Congress provides that munitions of war shall not be shipped to any nation which is engaged in hostilities. With respect to this it was said that the President conceived that there would be objection to such a practice, because it would be a handicap to many small nations which do not manufacture arms and munitions, if they became involved in hostilities with nations which do.

No direct statement of the President's attitude toward this measure was obtained, but the inference was that he believed it went too far.

Much of the discussion here concerning the Porter and Capper resolutions involves the contention that they place too great a responsibility on the President in empowering him to determine when an embargo shall be applied. It is asserted that not only would any President be reluctant to accept such a responsibility but that Congress, which under the Constitution has the right to declare and make war, would be reluctant to give it to him.

Something of this view was reflected in a statement made today by Senator Edge of New Jersey, a Republican member of the Committee on Foreign Relations, with references to the Capper resolution. His chief argument, however, was that an embargo would be likely to involve the United States in war.

"The Capper resolution," said Senator Edge, "strikes me as a proposal that would quite likely put the United States into war while trying to avert it. In the event of hostilities between nations, it appears to be the intent of the resolution to hold the President responsible for a decision as to which nation is the aggressor.

"Under the broad interpretation of the multilateral treaty in such a contingency, self-defense will provide a multitude of excuses. I cannot imagine a surer method of creating an international misunderstanding than to have the United States place responsibility for war.

"The adoption of such a resolution is an invitation to put the United States in the very middle of every international broil in any part of the world. Even the League of Nations, where we are asked to participate with other nations, never suggested that we alone become the war umpire of the world, as seems to be provided by the Capper proposal."

FIRST ENTHUSIASM IS COOLED IN PARIS

News That Capper Resolution Will Go Over Till Next Congress Session Is Unwelcome.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Publication of dispatches from Washington saying that there is little probability of action by Congress before next December on Senator Capper's resolution for an arms embargo by the United States on signatories violating the Kellogg pact by going to war has cooled the first enthusiasm felt in Paris over the proposal. And, naturally, one hears it remarked often that Senator Capper introduced a similar resolution in December, 1927, and nothing came of it.

However, the development of American opinion respecting the idea will be watched closely by European nations, and if it, or something like it, became a subject of official proclamation, as, for example, in President Hoover's inaugural address, it would quickly receive added attention.

For, after all, it must be admitted that there is always danger in foreign discussion of proposals made by individual members of the parliaments of other nations, because so often it has turned out that the government did not support such suggestions.

But it can be repeated that if the American Government came forward with a proposal for an international agreement along the lines laid down by Senator Capper, there could be small doubt of successful results.

Senator Borah's point that the Kellogg treaty does not need any sanctions meets with little assent in Paris. Here it is felt that is like saying that if every one joined the church and promised to be good there would be no more sinning—a theory which is said to derive weakness from the circumstance that there are so many church members in jail. The European nations are rather committed to the idea that the best way to prevent a violation of world peace is to make it plain beforehand that such an attempt would not be a profitable undertaking. This leads them to agree with Senator Capper rather than with Senator Borah.

It can, in all events, be stated that no piece of news from America in a long time has attracted the attention drawn by Senator Capper's resolution. To Europe, its adoption would signify that America meant to back up her treaty.

GENEVA DENIES INSPIRING.

Had Nothing to Do With Capper Resolution, Says Drummond.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Feb. 12.—American press reports received here hinting that the League really inspired the Capper resolution were emphatically denied tonight by Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary General. He said:

"The first I knew of the Capper resolution was from THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent on Sunday."

The manifest surprise shown by all League officials on hearing of the Capper resolution adds weight to this denial. It was further pointed out here that Mr. Capper has not visited Geneva in recent years.

League officials call the charge that the League inspired the resolution "ludicrous" and a "manoeuvre apparently intended to defeat it."

Geneva continues to follow the resolution with deep interest and the tendency is more and more to stress its importance both for peace and the League.

One diplomat, who shares the general belief here that the resolution was the logical consequence of the pact, explained the connection thus today:

"Even without the resolution, if the pact were ever violated the League Council undoubtedly would cable to Washington stating that the pact had been broken and asking the President who the violator was and the position the United States intended to take toward the violator.

"The League would be forced to take such a step, since most of the pact signers are also League members and the Council would desire to act in concert with the United States. The United States could not very well avoid deciding who was the violator nor, once that step had been taken, declaring an embargo.

"The Capper resolution simply forewarns the world that the United States already foresees this logical consequence of the pact. By thus removing all doubt on this point, it makes the risk to a violator of the pact so tremendous that it is hard to conceive of a war breaking out if the resolution is adopted."

PREFERS THE CAPPER PLAN.

Professor Brown of Princeton Compares the Arms Embargo Measures.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 12.—Philip Marshall Brown, professor of International Law at Princeton University, expressed the opinion tonight that the main difference between the Capper and Potter resolutions in support of the Kellogg Anti-War Treaty was the contrasting attitudes taken in regard to the justice of a waring nations cause.

"The Capper resolution as I understand it," said Professor Brown, "embodies the principle that no help should be given to an international outlaw. The Porter resolution apparently embodies the principle that no arms or munitions should reach any nation or fation engaged in war, whether guilty or innocent of wrongdoing.

The Capper resolution aims to take into account the justice of a cause. The Porter resolution would ignore entirely the qustion of justice. It aims to stop fighting by starving the fighters, whether they are for liberty and justice or tyranny and injustice. It seems seems an affront to the American idea of fair play and the sacred right of revolution.

"The Capper resolution expresses a great and noble ideal, the moral principal that no nation has the right to remain neutral in the presence of an international crime. If the United States prefers to preserve its entire liberty of judgment and action with respect to the League of Nations and European affairs in general, this does not mean callous indifference to ethical questions of right and wrong. It may mean freedom in a given situation to abandon strict neutrality when that attitude might prove utterly ignominious.

But an abandonment of neutrality carries enormous responsibilities. It may well mean war if another nation resents the embargo on the shipment of arms and munitions of war. To place on the President the sole responsibility of such a decision would seem most questionable.

"But the proposition that the United States should be prepared of its own free will and initiative to stand on the side of justice when the issue is clear and momentous would seem entitled to the utmost respect and support.

PARKER SEES BRITAIN BACKING CAPPER PLAN

Writer, Here, Deplores Borah's Opposition to Proposal—Says Senator Should Travel.

Sir Gilbert Parker, novelist and publicist, said at the Gotham Hotel yesterday that he thoroughly approved of Senator Arthur Capper's resolution now in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, providing for an embargo of war materials and economic boycott to be declared by the President of the United States against any nation violating the Kellogg multilateral peace treaty. The attitude of Great Britain, according to Sir Gilbert, would undoubtedly be favorable.

He expressed regret at the report that Senator Borah, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, had criticized the Capper resolution and would probably oppose it.

"I am going to say what I wish would happen," said Sir Gilbert. "You Americans are fond of traveling, and I wish that Senator Borah would go to England. I think that Senator Borah is a very, very big man; but I also think that one day in any country is worth ten weeks reading about it. How can a man understand Europe unless he goes there?"

Sir Gilbert said he deplored the talk he heard among so many Americans "who ought to know better," of the eventual possibility of a war between England and the United States. "It's nonsense," he said. "We simply couldn't afford it. Our taxation at present is more than three times as much per head as in the United States, and that settles it."

At the age of 67, Sir Gilbert said he was inclined to put aside his interest in politics in favor of writing. "Politics don't last," he said, "but books do." He has already written more than thirty novels and historical works, and he says he still finds "the public always turns to romance."

SUMMER WATER HEATING

Now!

A BUILDING OPERATOR called in his agent and the superintendent of one of his properties to discuss the installation of new equipment. It was a routine conference—but one remark that the superintendent casually dropped started a train of thought which led to definite action. It was this: "It's as much trouble to keep the water hot in the summertime as it is to heat the whole building during the winter."

Taking advantage of low gas rates, expressly designed for large volume water heating, the owner has now installed complete automatic storage equipment for summer use, while retaining his coal-fired boiler for the winter period.

Your gas company believes that, in this way, it has solved the problem of summer water heating, particularly in apartment houses, office and loft buildings and commercial establishments.

Low gas rates, made possible by off-peak business, offer a splendid field for real economies in the management of your buildings. Other important savings, made with gas, include the labor of handling raw fuels, firing and removing ashes; storage space for fuel and the cost of cleaning furniture, coverings, etc., soiled by smoke and soot.

Your gas company has a staff of experts who will be glad to estimate your requirements without the slightest obligation. Don't put it off! We are at your service today.

100 DIE IN EUROPE AS COLD HOLDS GRIP

PARIS MARDI GRAS CRIPPLED

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Frost tightened its devastating grip on Europe tonight, and dispatches reaching here were even more alarming than those of yesterday. The situation was worse in Danish waters, Zeeland being practically cut off. Ice breakers and ferries were unable to force their way across the Great Belt. Altogether 1,400 passengers are marooned on ice-bound ferries. One shipload reached shore afoot after a perilous journey across the ice.

More than sixty vessels are ice-bound in Danish waters, and two have grounded at Anholt owing to drifting ice.

The temperature dropped further throughout France, reaching 18.4 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit, at Belfort. The Meuse was frozen over at Verdun, where 9 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit, was registered. Heavy snow has fallen over the Riviera. In Paris braziers were lighted in the streets to aid the homeless. Steam trawlers entered Boulogne docks covered by solid masses of ice, a spectacle which even the oldest inhabitant had never seen before.

Motor Across Zuyder Zee.

Ships crossing the North Sea were all white. People are now motoring across the Zuyder Zee, where the frost is the severest for a century. All the Dutch canals are frozen and 600 Rhine barges are stuck in one lock at Rotterdam. Five have already been crushed and it is expected others will be damaged.

Airplanes from Hamburg and Kiel flew over Kiel Bay with food for the crews of imprisoned ships but failed to locate any vessels. Large stretches of Lake Constance are frozen and the Chiemsee is covered with transparent ice.

Frost, it is reported, obscured the vision of the engine driver of the Berlin-Munich express last night which was in collision with the Berlin-Stuttgart express at Burgkemnitz. The guard of the Stuttgart train and seventeen others were killed. A. Zollner, a Chicago business man, was injured. A group of German rail men, with their ears muffled against the intense cold, failed to hear the whistle of an approaching train and four were killed.

Railway services in Czechoslovakia have been reduced one-third, many operatives being the victims of influenza. The schools have been closed. Northern Swedish ports have been closed and a government ice-breaker has been severely damaged in endeavoring to succor a number of vessels icebound in the Oresund Channel. Stockholm's most powerful icebreaker has now been dispatched to their assistance.

Field Kitchens Opened.

According to a Bucharest dispatch, ten people have been frozen to death at Campina, sixteen in the Buzeu region, three in Bukavina and fourteen in Bessarabia. The water supply for railway engines has been frozen and some Balkan lines are covered by drifts twenty-three feet deep. The ice on the Danube is more than six feet thick at Oltenitza. The Simplon express after having been buried eleven days in a snow drift has reached Chatalja, Greece.

The temperature at Vienna was 21 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit, yesterday and was almost as low today. Field kitchens have been placed near heated rooms where people, after obtaining their rations, can warm themselves. Temporary shelters have been erected and are kept open the clock around. Prices are rising owing to a scarcity of new food supplies. Temperatures as low as 30 degrees below zero have been recorded in country districts.

Poland is experiencing the coldest spell in 103 years, the whole country being blanketed in snow. The railways are completely at a standstill. No coal has been delivered in Warsaw for some days and there is now a shortage. The authorities are placing small stoves at the street corners and are distributing free coffee to the poor.

Gales continued on the south and east coasts of England today and the frost was intensified. There was prolonged sunshine in many parts, but the cold remained severe. Meteorologists forecast still lower temperatures.

Many roads in South Wales were impassable following a two-day storm, and numerous vehicles have been stranded since Monday night through accident caused by skidding on frozen roads. In a blinding snowstorm three members of the crew of the coasting steamer Deventia were rescued by breeches buoy on the South Devon coast. The vessel grounded near Hope Cove, and Coast Guards, after several attempts, succeeded in getting a rocket line across. Later the Plymouth lifeboat, one of the most modern in the world, manoeuvred alongside and rescued the remaining ten men.

The storms appear to be almost world-wide. A dispatch from Darwin, Australia, says that of six pearling luggers which left Broome ten days ago for Darwin only three arrived, and they were practically stripped of masts and sails. The boats met a severe hurricane and it is feared the others have been lost.

Wolves Attack Children.

LONDON, Wednesday, Feb. 13 (AP).—A Vienna dispatch to The Express says that a pack of 100 wolves broke through the mud walls of a school near Javina yesterday and killed sixteen children. Two soldiers and four gendarmes who went to the rescue were also killed.

(Available Gazetteers do not list any town named Javina.)

Except in Turkey, where a sudden rise in temperature today brought welcome relief to the suffering population, there was no indication tonight of a break in the extreme cold which holds all Europe with the exception of Spain, Portugal and Italy.

It is impossible as yet to estimate the toll of deaths, but they will probably run into hundreds. There are innumerable cases of frostbite.

The British Isles escaped the worst of the cold, but even here the temperature was unusually extreme. Switzerland, Berne, Davos, Schaffhausen and Zurich reported temperatures of 11.2 below zero Fahrenheit, while in the Canton of Zoug the minimum of 30 below was reached.

The Isle of Jersey had the deepest fall of snow today in a quarter of a century. It was two feet deep in some places. The midlands and Northern England also had heavy snows, and Scotland was swept by a veritable blizzard. Snowdrifts twelve and fifteen feet deep in some sections blocked railways. Two trains were caught in a snowdrift near Stanraer, but the passengers were rescued. In the same district a hearse with a coffin was abandoned in a drift.

Great alarm is felt in Constantinople concerning the effect of the melting snow on the dome of St. Sophia, across the interior of which a second deep crack has been found zigzagging.

French Carnival Checked.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The traditional Mardi Gras merrymaking and carnival spirit today were greatly curtailed—in fact almost omitted entirely—because of the severe cold spell which is gripping Paris and which kept everyone indoors who was not absolutely obliged to be abroad.

The possibility that the Seine will freeze if the low temperature persists is being seriously considered. All trains were late and some in Eastern France were blocked by snow. The transcontinental expresses are retarded from twelve to twenty-four hours.

Commercial air travel is temporarily paralyzed and Van Lear Black, the American publisher, was unable to continue from Le Bourget his long flight across Europe, Africa and Asia, which he began yesterday from Croydon England.

The French Riviera has not escaped the cold wave, and snow fell again at Cannes today.

Thirty Ships Held in Baltic.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—Thirty ships are stuck in the ice in the Baltic Sea. Flying the British, Swedish, Norwegian, Estonian, Russian and Polish flags, they are sending out S O S calls. As many of them are without provisions, the situation is grave, and the battleships Schleswig-Holstein and Alsace, after having refueled and taken in provisions, left Kiel harbor this morning, speeding to the rescue.

Some ships have already been freed, including German, Russian, English, Danish and French vessels. The Schleswig-Holstein was repeatedly in danger of being frozen in herself, and sometimes she had to cut through ice nearly two feet thick.

Three workmen were killed and over a score were injured by an acetylene gas explosion at Barmen in the Ruhr Basin today.

While workmen were trying to thaw a tank inside which carbide had frozen the tank exploded, completely demolishing the entire plant.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Feb. 12.—There was a slight rise in temperature today, but it was insufficient to affect anything but the mercury in the thermometer. Vienna's dashing youths and maidens, who usually join the Corso or promenade up and down the fashionable Kaerntnerstrasse at midday, have migrated to the Danube, where the latest craze is to pick one's way from one side of the river to the other through the miniature icebergs. The water and coal situation continues to be most critical, and in the several thousand or more apartment blocks where the municipal officials have detected bathing the supplies have been cut off from the water mains.

On the Brenner frontier between Austrian North Tyrol and the Italian South Tyrol five smugglers bringing silks from Italy were caught in an avalanche on the Wolfendorn Mountain and swept to death. A search for their bodies is proceeding.

The wolf plague is moving westward. Near Marburg, just south of the Austrian frontier, a farmer named Franz Sunko of Gruberberg heard suspicious noises in the sheep pens. He went out armed with a cudgel only and found to his horror a pack of wolves. He attacked them with his cudgel, but, as his wife and family watched from a window, the unfortunate man was literally torn to pieces. A peasant taking his produce to market at Misocls, Hungary, was overtaken by wolves and escaped only by sacrificing one of his horses.

On the Bulgarian coast it is possible to walk three miles out from the shore. All the Yugoslav telephone and cable services have been interrupted by the frost.

Viennese meteorologists predict a continuation of arctic conditions over Central Europe, though they consider the centre of the depression is gradually moving westward toward the coasts of Scotland.

Seven Belgians Perish.

ANTWERP, Belgium, Feb. 12 (AP).—The coldest day in fifty years in Belgium claimed seven more victims today. Many people collapsed in the streets. Railway traffic was seriously hampered, when locomotives were stopped by frozen steampipes and ice-locked signals.

All rivers, including the Maas and Scheld, were frozen. Droves of wild boars attacked villagers in Southern Belgium.

Frost Kills 34 Gypsies.

WARSAW, Feb. 12 (AP).—A whole gypsy band consisting of thirty-four men, women and children, were found frozen to death today in their encampment in the forest near Lublin by forest guards.

Many other deaths from cold were reported. The export of coal has stopped and all industry and commerce is hampered by the disorganization of the railways. Temperatures of 76 degrees below zero Fahrenheit have been recorded in some places.

Eighty-Mile Gale at Trieste.

TRIESTE, Italy, Feb. 12 (AP).—This port is suffering from an extreme cold wave. The thermometer today registered 3.2 degrees Fahrenheit, while an eighty-mile-an-hour wind stopped all activity on the streets and made navigation almost impossible. Several hundred were injured in falls.

Swans Frozen in German River Are Thawed Out by Firemen

SPANDAU, Germany, Feb. 12 (AP).—The Fire Department performed today the unusual job of thawing out six swans which had frozen tight in the ice on the Havel River.

The fire fighters applied warm water to the ice until the swans were liberated.

COLD GALE DISTURBS KING.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—A fierce gale which uprooted adjacent trees and dashed frozen spray on the windows overlooking the Channel, disturbed King George's rest at Craigwell House at Bognor in Sussex last night.

The storm was accompanied by 14 degrees of frost, Fahrenheit. It was not until after dawn that the King obtained any restful sleep. Later the sun streamed into the royal apartment uninterruptedly for more than seven hours and Sir Stanley Hewett, now the sole doctor with the King, declared he was satisfied with his condition.

Disturbing reports reached London this afternoon that Craigwell House, with its expansive windows, had been found cold and drafty, and unsuitable for the royal patient, when the unexpected blizzard came from the usually warm southern quarter. Apparently the whole royal household was wakeful at the time, but assurance was given tonight that the mansion was entirely satisfactory. The maximum temperature at Bognor today was 29 Fahrenheit.

For the first time since the Queen's arrival at "Sunshine House," the weather permitted her to take an automobile drive today. She visited the beautiful grounds at Arundel Castle, the ancestral home of the Duke of Norfolk, and afterward drove along the Bognor parade. She smiled happily in response to the greetings of the townspeople.

MERCURY DROPS TO 19.

Warmer Weather Is Forecast for Later in the Week.

The thermometer dropped yesterday to a minimum of 19 degrees above zero at 6:45 A. M., but failed to set any new records for the season. Jan. 14 still holds the season record with a minimum of 6 degrees above zero, while Feb. 4 was the coldest day thus far for the month. The minimum on Feb. 4 was just one degree lower than yesterday, 18.

In fact, yesterday was not even an unusually cold Feb. 12. In 1914 the thermometer dropped to 2 below zero on Feb. 12. The maximum temperature yesterday was 29 degrees at 2:15 P. M. By 10 o'clock last night it had dropped again to 22 degrees. But the Weather Bureau officials predicted it would not go much lower than 20 degrees this morning. The forecast for today was cloudy with little change in temperature. There is, however, a prospect of warmer weather later in the week. And there is no snow in sight.

BROTHER SUCCEEDS JOHANN

Prince Franz von Paula Is New Ruler of Liechtenstein.

TROPPAU, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 12 (AP).—Prince Franz von Paula, brother of the Prince Johann II of Liechtenstein, was proclaimed ruling Prince of the tiny principality of 11,000 souls today.

The belief was expressed Monday, when Prince Johann II died, that possibly a nephew, also named Johann, might succeed to the throne. Previously the Prince's subjects had discussed the possibility of joining the Swiss Federation upon the death of Johann II, known as "the Good" because of his many benevolences, including the payment of all taxes for his "household," as he called his realm.

33 ESCAPE FROM SHIP DRIFTING ON ROCKS

The Alloway Breaks From Tow Off Alaska—Japanese Freighter Aground With 25 Aboard.

DUTCH HARBOR, Alaska, Feb. 12 (AP).—With the freighter Alloway only a few yards from the beach of Unimak Pass late today, all except one man had been taken from the vessel. His thirty-three companions fought their way in life boats to the steamer Montauk, 500 yards away.

Almost within sight of safe anchorage the Alloway was torn away from the Montauk's tow line and drifted toward the rocks. The crew, worn from a heroic battle with disabled engines and mountainous seas, was ordered into boats.

There was no room in the narrow entrance to Unimak Pass for the Montauk to maneuver into position to get another line aboard. The Montauk took the Alloway in tow yesterday. The Alloway, which was on her way to the Orient to be scrapped, had a large cargo of lumber and other goods. Her position was not far from the spot where the big Japanese freighter Meiyo Maru went aground early today.

The Meiyo Maru, with twenty-five men aboard, is awaiting the arrival of several rescue ships reported to be speeding to her aid.

She is reported to be foundering on the rocks after having sent out wireless appeals for help.

ITALIANS PREPARE TO VOTE.

Mussolini's Name Heads Electoral List of Three Groups.

ROME, Feb. 12 (AP).—Premier Mussolini has been named as the first candidate on the electoral lists of industrial workers' and transport workers' syndicates which will be submitted to the Grand Council of Fascism on Feb. 25.

The Premier also heads the Chamber of Deputies' list prepared by the Elementary School Teachers' Association, which met today. They claimed him as their own, inasmuch as he started his career as a country school teacher.

Electoral activity in Italy will be considerably increased tomorrow with the meeting here of the national confederation of Fascist commercial syndicates, called to select forty-eight candidates for seats in the new Chamber of Deputies, to be elected by nation-wide plebiscite on March 24.

The list to be drawn up will, in accordance with the terms of the new electoral law, be submitted to the Fascist Grand Council, now an integral organ of the Fascist Italian State. That body, the directing and coordinating governmental organization of the land, has full power to select candidates from the list submitted, to add others, or to reject it as a whole.

The Grand Council's task is to select a final list of 400 choices for membership in the Chamber, which will be submitted en bloc to the electorate on Palm Sunday (March 24), the voters to pass on it by marking a yes or no on their ballots.

These new silk crepe frocks with their fine tight pleatings will be a spontaneous success

Sometimes these fine tight pleatings form a slender sophisticated skirt, sometimes they are used in tiers; at other times they form a border on wide collars, or a new treatment in cuffs; particularly effective are the crisp little taffeta fan pleats that are used in many new ways on our frocks; but always these tiny tight pleats tend to lengthen the line of a frock, and lend to it an individuality and a feminine charm that is decidedly chic . . .

PRINCE'S PHYSICIAN WILL DEFEND BOOTH

News That British Heir's Doctor Will Testify With Others Today Surprises Council.

GENERAL WILL NOT APPEAR

Appeal Made by His Side to Lloyd George and MacDonald to Mediate—Latter Is Willing.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Sir Thomas Holder, physician to the Prince of Wales and one of the outstanding specialists of the country, will appear as a witness in behalf of General Bramwell Booth, commander of the Salvation Army, when his case comes before the High Council of the Army at Sunbury-on-Thames tomorrow.

The news that Sir Thomas had been called took the High Council by surprise, for it had been supposed that only W. A. Jowitt, the General's lawyer, would be present to state the old leader's case. Mr. Jowitt announced, however, tonight that in addition to Sir Thomas, General Booth's two personal physicians would testify as well as two former officers of the Salvation Army. Although the General will not be present in person, it is apparent that he is preparing to train his heaviest artillery on the "reformers" in the council who are still trying to adjudicate him "unfit."

The General's doctors are John Weir and Ernest Wardlaw Milne. They have attended him since the beginning of his illness and issued bulletins recently saying his health was much improved. The laymen who will speak for the General are G. A. Pollard, former Salvation Army commissioner and Maurice Whitelow, also a former Salvationist officer. It is these former officers together with former Commissioner Frank Smith, who have been the most bitter in their denunciations of the High Council and the most determined that the General should keep his post. No active commissioner outside the General's family now remains loyal—not even the few who stood by him early in the present crisis.

What effect will all these witnesses have on the Council? With the medical evidence of the physicians, the testimony of the former officers and the powerful oratory of Mr. Jowitt, the General will present a formidable case. Council members profess to be keeping open minds just as if they had never declared the General "unfit." They are still bitter at the Booth family for having gone to court, and it is problematical what part this bitterness will play in tomorrow's crucial proceedings at Sunbury. In a last-minute appeal today Mrs. Booth, the General's wife, begged the Council not to oust the General, who had given fifty-four years of devoted service to the Army's welfare. She asserted that if the General was finally removed from office it would mean the shattering of the army and would cause the secession of hundreds of workers and officers the world over.

Both David Lloyd George and Ramsay MacDonald have been asked to make an eleventh-hour attempt to secure a peaceful settlement of the dispute between the General and the High Council, The Daily Express understands.

Representatives acting on behalf of the General, it is stated, approached Mr. Lloyd George and asked him to act as an intermediary. He intimated, however, that he did not think the moment opportune for his intervention.

Mr. MacDonald, similarly approached, expressed his willingness to put his services at the disposal of both parties if such a step were mutually agreeable.

LEYDEN TOWN HALL BURNS.

Dutch Town's 16th Century Edifice and Contents Destroyed.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 12.—The famous town hall at Leyden, dating from 1595, was destroyed by fire early this morning with all its antiquities and archives. Freezing of the nearby canal handicapped the firemen so that the blaze spread to four neighboring houses and threatened the centre of the historic town.

A telephone girl at the central postoffice discovered the blaze at 4:30 o'clock. When the firemen arrived they had to chop a hole in the ice to get water. An engine was rushed all the way from The Hague but could not work for an hour because it was frozen. In the bitter cold of 5 degrees above zero the engines and firemen alike were soon encrusted with ice.

The former town hall was partly destroyed by fire after an explosion in 1481. The building burned today was erected in 1595 by Rudolph Van Bentheim after a design by Lieven de Key. The big clock was made at Delft in 1572 and had boomed out the hours ever since it was installed.

Other serious fires occurred in Holland today. The Flora Theatre in Amsterdam was wrecked. At Gouda municipal workshop fire headquarters were entirely destroyed, including one engine which could not be removed.

'VAN GOGHS' FAKES, SAYS BERLIN EXPERT

OPINION ON THEM DIVIDED

Some Experts Support Justi, While Others Say Canvases Sold by Berlin Dealer Are Genuine.

BERLIN, Feb. 12 (AP).—Professor Ludwig Justi, Director of the National Gallery, who was appointed by the Prussian police to pass upon the genuineness of about thirty paintings credited to the Dutch artist Vincent Van Gogh, said today that he would report his belief that they were spurious. The paintings were sold at an average of $12,000 each by Otto Wacker, an art dealer who maintains their genuineness.

The dealer's opinion is shared by two German experts on Van Gogh's work, J. Meier-Graefe and Hans Rosenhagen, a Dutch expert. Dr. Bremmer has also sided with the dealer, but M. De La Faille, another Dutch expert, holds the same view as Dr. Justi, although up to November he thought the works were authentic.

Dr. Justi said that he was delaying his report to the police until he had received a formal finding by chemists who had analyzed the paint on the disputed pictures. He is also awaiting the arrival of two alleged Van Gogh paintings from America, one belonging to the Art Museum at Buffalo, N. Y., and the other to a private collector in New York.

Dr. Justi said he saw several artistic differences between genuine work of the Dutch master and the disputed paintings.

"In the spurious works the brush strokes are timid, as though the imitator had feared that he might shoot beyond the length of the original from which he copied," said the expert. "In the genuine works the strokes are bold and are executed with the self-assurance of one who knew exactly what he wanted to do.

"Another interesting point is that all the Wacker Van Goghs are what, in professional language, are called 'réprises' that is, they are returns to earlier motifs. Now, while it is true that Van Gogh sometimes used an earlier subject for a second work, it is very curious that among the entire thirty-three disputed paintings there is not one new idea or subject."

Van Gogh was one of the leaders of post-Impressionism. He was born in Holland in 1853 but did most of his mature work after moving to France.

MRS. HAHN DEFENDS HER PAINTING TODAY

To Be Questioned in Her Suit Against Duveen on History of Alleged Leonardo.

The jury which has heard Sir Joseph Duveen for five days explaining the judgment which he applies in his great art business, is to hear today from Mrs. Andrée Hahn of Kansas City, who is suing him for $500,000 in the Supreme Court here for slander of a painting.

Mrs. Hahn knows very little about art, her counsel told the jury in his opening, but she inherited a painting in France which her family always believed to have been by Leonardo da Vinci.

"It is a copy," Sir Joseph has admitted saying publicly in 1920, without seeing the Hahn painting. "The original 'La Belle Ferronnière' is in the Louvre."

The Kansas City Art Institute, to which Mrs. Hahn had hoped to sell the painting for $250,000, thereupon lost interest in it, according to her counsel, S. Lawrence Miller, and Mrs. Hahn and her husband have devoted the past nine years to collecting evidence to prove Sir Joseph was wrong. They set the cost of Sir Joseph's single paragraph of criticism at $500,000.

Mrs. Hahn will be asked today about the history of her painting during the four centuries since Leonardo lived. Her counsel has indicated to the jury that it came into her family in Brittany about a century ago and through one of Napoleon's aides, and that Mrs. Hahn had no idea how much it was worth until she came to America after the war and decided to sell the heirloom.

Her counsel contends Sir Joseph falsely and maliciously pronounced the painting a copy to preserve his "stranglehold on the old picture business," knowing that the great prestige of his judgment would kill the sale, as it did.

After Mrs. Hahn has told the jury the reasons for her faith in the picture, the foremost art specialists of the world, either in person or by deposition, will testify for both sides by applying all the apparatus of the higher criticism to the Hahn painting, which is present in court, and to the Louvre painting, which is represented by photograph.

In the preparation of this case, however, the experts had an opportunity four years ago to compare the Hahn painting directly with the Louvre painting in Paris.

PERSHING IN PARIS, HAD GRIP AT SEA

General Was Taken Ill on the Leviathan, but Says He Feels Better.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—General John J. Pershing arrived here tonight suffering from grip, for which he had been treated aboard the United States liner Leviathan.

"This is very frigid weather for Paris," he remarked at the Hotel Crillon, to which he hurried on alighting from the boat train from Cherbourg.

The General said he caught a heavy cold in New York two days before sailing and had a rather high fever during the trip, but thought he had virtually recovered, adding:

"I doubt if I really had the flu. Anyhow, the fever is all gone now."

He said that Ambassador Fletcher, who continued on the Leviathan to Southampton, also had a cold and was "resting" during the voyage but did not seem to be seriously indisposed.

The General was noticeably pale when he landed at Cherbourg during a heavy snowfall. It was said he had remained in bed throughout the crossing, but he attended to the details of disembarkation with his sister, Miss May Pershing, and ate a hearty meal in the boat train's restaurant.

the index of prosperity might well boost the Dawes plan annuities to 4,000,000,000 marks in twelve or fourteen years.

Expected Allied Counter-Arguments.

On the German contention that the Reich already is heavily taxed to pay in marks the Dawes annuity regardless of the transfer problem, the Allies may be expected to bring forth the argument that this year the taxpayers of France pay something more than 20,000,000,000 francs, or $800,000,000, for liquidation of their domestic and foreign war debt. The English taxpayers have to put up something like $1,250,000,000. They will thus undoubtedly draw the conclusion that the burden of 2,500,000,000 marks, or $600,000,000, is not an incommensurate burden on the taxpayers of the Reich.

Thus it will be seen that the experts' work begins according to Hoyle. Doubtless, after some more discussion of the German statement, the French will make a declaration of their position. It is expected that the first week of work will be well taken up by consideration of these positions, and it should be added that there is very small chance of the Germans winning their case for reassessment of Germany's capacity for payment, it being held by the Allies that the Dawes committee did that task very well and that four years' operation of the plan has confirmed its worth.

And so today's proceedings as well as those which will now follow for several days may be, in the light of the real task of the committee, only sparring for positions from which to launch real proposals which, except in the case of the Americans, will represent the presentation by the various delegations of the position of their respective governments.

Dawes Plan Championed by Young.

PARIS, Feb. 12 (AP).—The chief bone of contention in the reparation question, whether the Dawes Plan requires completion or revision and how, was reached in today's session of the "Young committee."

Dr. Schacht, who had the floor presenting his version of Germany's economic strength, provoked questions from the other delegates as to the rate of taxation in Germany compared with other countries and as to the scale of wages, while it prompted the remark by Owen D. Young, chairman of the committee, that the working of the Dawes Plan seemed to show up so satisfactorily that the question might be asked:

"Why is the new committee here?"

In the course of a ten-minute address Mr. Young is reported as having answered Dr. Schacht:

"Thanks for the implied appreciation of the Dawes Plan payments."

The question thus raised was felt to show that Mr. Young, although speaking in the most diplomatic terms, appeared prepared to defend the work of the first Dawes committee, as which he played so prominent a part, and the manner in which it has been carried out by Mr. Gilbert.

The impression of several of the delegations was that the United States would oppose any radical change in the letter and spirit of the Dawes Plan.

It is understood that when Dr. Schacht resumes his exposition of Germany's viewpoint he will take occasion to reply to some of Mr. Young's financial arguments.

The impression of today's session was particularly favorable in French circles, where Mr. Young's remarks were commented upon significantly. The French delegates were most careful to take no part in the discussion, leaving expression of the open difference of opinion on the working of the Dawes Plan to Mr. Young and Dr. Schacht.

Dr. Schacht spoke in English, but parts of his remarks had to be translated into French for the other delegates. The Germans occasionally asked for translation of remarks of the other delegates into their own language, but generally the English understood by some or all of the delegations sufficed.

than anything else since Benito Mussolini's march on Rome more than six years ago. Since the earliest hours of this morning the whole of Rome appeared to be on the move, thick lines of people hurrying through the streets, gayly decorated with Italian and Papal flags, toward St. Peter's. Many hours before the mass was timed to start, the Basilica was packed to overflowing, while St. Peter's Square was beginning to fill with those who, having been unable to obtain entrance tickets, resigned themselves to wait in the rain for the Papal benediction.

The Scene in St. Peter's.

St. Peter's wore an appearance which it has only on great occasions. The tribunes were filled with gentlemen in full evening dress and ladies looking unusual in high-necked black dresses and with black Spanish mantillas on their heads. The remainder of the church was filled with a seething sea of black dresses and staring, eager faces. Gorgeously dressed gentlemen in medieval costumes, whose names, whose traditions, whose dresses and whose very appearance dated back to the Middle Ages, hurried to fro busily. Swiss Guards in their colorful uniforms stood guard at each side of the high altar, their figures dwarfed by the colossal proportions of the church.

Priests in somber ecclesiastical garb, gorgeous Bishops and Patriarchs and ascetic monks moved in and out of the crowd. Many-hued Noble Guards, Palatine Guards and Papal gendarmes added their mite to the riot of color. Thousands upon thousands of flickering candles were reflected from the cool marble columns and pillars, and thin wisps of fragrant incense rising from the altar completed the scene.

Trumpets Announce the Pope.

The Pope's coming was heralded by a blare of famous silver trumpets which flooded the church with a mellow, liquid melody. The hush which followed was broken by roars, cheers, salvos and handclapping when the Pope, carried on high on the sedia gestatoria, appeared at the door of the Chapel of the Sacrament. He wore the gorgeous triregnum or triple crown and was enveloped in an ample white silk cloak beautifully embroidered in gold. As he raised his hand in blessing the green fisherman's ring blazed at his finger.

Before him walked a double row of venerable white-haired Cardinals in scarlet robes, over which they wore the ermine capes of ceremonial occasions. Swiss Guards, carrying enormous serpentine swords of the highest lay dignitaries of the papal court in Mediaeval costumes with Elizabethan ruffs and wearing slender rapiers at their belts, surrounded him. Two flabelli, or semi-circular white ostrich feather fans, borne aloft on long poles at each side, lent a note of added splendor to the scene.

The Pope appeared deeply moved. Emotion was clearly painted on his features, which on public occasions usually are entirely immobile. His eyes swept clearly over the crowd, tossing like a sea in a tempest, but the heightened color of his face and a slight tremor of his lips bore witness to the depth of his emotion. Each time he raised a hand in blessing waves of enthusiasm and wild cheering swept over the crowd. Some fell to their knees, others waved handkerchiefs and all shouted their devotion. Cries of "Long live the Pope and King!" and "Long live the Pope of conciliation!" were heard.

Pontiff Ascends the Throne.

Traversing the whole length of the church, the Pontiff descended from the sedia gestatoria before the high altar and took his seat on the throne covered with white damask and surmounted by a red damask canopy erected to the left of the altar. Hidden electric lights played upon him, throwing him into bold relief—the cynosure of all eyes. All the Cardinals immediately left their seats, filed before him and kissed his ring in a sign of fealty. Then the service began, to which the Pope listened from his throne. The same scenes of enthusiasm occurred when at the end of the service he reentered the sedia gestatoria and returned to his apartment.

While the mass was being sung St. Peter's Square had been completely filled by a huge crowd waiting patiently in the rain under upraised umbrellas. The whole of the vast piazza was black with shiny umbrellas. When it became know that the Pope had returned to his apartment a mighty shout was raised.

"We want the Pope! We want the Pope!" 200,000 throats shouted in unison.

At last the door to the balcony over the main entrance of St. Peter's was thrown open and a small group of Cardinals appeared. Then a few seconds later the Pope's white figure, dwarfed by distance, appeared against the background of the Cardinals' scarlet robes and he raised one white-clad arm in blessing.

All Kneel in Downpour.

The crowd as one man dropped to its knees, the umbrellas disappeared as if by magic and hats were removed from every head. Thus the immense crowd of 200,000 persons received the papal blessings bareheaded under a pouring rain and kneeling on the rain-soaked pavement. Another mighty shout accompanied the Pope's retirement into the Vatican again.

Equal enthusiasm was displayed in the demonstrations at the King's palace. Rain still fell heavily, but huge crowds gathered, nevertheless, and cheered and shouted until the King and Queen appeared on the balcony and received a tremendous ovation. When they retired the cheering broke out again and they were forced to return to the balcony time and time again. From the Royal Palace the crowd moved to the Palazzo Chigi, where it improvised a great demonstration to Signor Mussolini, but Il Duce refused to show himself and the crowd gradually dispersed.

At night the rain ceased and Rome again wore a most festive appearance. All the streets were brightly illuminated in celebration of the Italo-Vatican conciliation. Even the facade of St. Peter's was illuminated with torches, drawing many sightseers. Many ecclesiastical institutions, among which were the American College, flew the Italian flag in addition to the papal flag, while many government buildings, including the Palazzo Chigi, the seat of the Foreign Office, flew the papal flag side by side with the Italian colors. The Capitol, seat of the municipality, hoisted on its highest tower Italian and papal flags and the colors of the city.

No Adverse Comment by Powers.

ROME, Feb. 12 (AP).—Vatican circles stated today that Pope Pius had received the warmest congratulations from all quarters on the agreement with Italy settling the Roman question.

It was stated that no critical observation, much less any protest, had been made by any of the representatives of the foreign powers at the Vatican regarding the conciliation with the Italian Government.

Home Town Awaits Pope.

DESIO, Italy, Feb. 12 (AP).—This little town, on the outskirts of Milan, where Pope Pius XI was born, was in full fête for him today. As soon as the news of the treaty acknowledging the Papacy as an independent sovereignty became known, the populace poured into the streets, waving hats and handkerchiefs.

One zealot climbed the spire of the principal church and affixed the Italian tricolor alongside the cross.

Elderly inhabitants who knew Pope Pius when he was the young Father Achille Ratti could scarcely restrain their emotions.

"Now he will be able to return to his own Desio," they said.

Impressive Celebration in London.

LONDON, Feb. 12 (AP).—A celebration of the anniversary of the coronation of the Pope in Westminster Cathedral this evening was conducted with exceptional impressiveness because of the accompanying celebration of the settlement of the Roman question and the golden jubilee year of the priesthood of Pope Pius XI.

Bishop Bidwell presided at a solemn Te Deum and benediction service in the absence of Cardinal Bourne, who is convalescing from influenza. The Cardinal, however, left his sick-room afterward to hold a reception at the Archbishop's house, at which nearly every foreign Ambassador and Minister, Catholic members of Parliament and representatives of other religious bodies were present.

No change is expected in British diplomatic relations as a result of the new treaty and concordat. Henry Getty Chilton has been Minister to the Holy See since he was transferred from the British Embassy at Washington last year.

Reaction of Berlin.

BERLIN, Feb. 12 (AP).—The Papal anniversary was celebrated here at a solemn high mass in St. Hedwig's Church. The service was attended by dignitaries of the Prussian State, members of the Diplomatic Corps, the Catholic nobility and Catholic students and other delegations, who bore colorful banners, the Apostolic Nuncio, Mgr. Eugenio Pacelli, officiated.

SEES PAPAL POLICY CHANGE.

Marshall Says Accord Would Not Have Been Acceptable in 1870.

The action of Pope Pius XI in agreeing to the settlement with Italy indicates a great change in papal policy, according to Charles C. Marshall, retired lawyer and author of the open letter on Church and State to Governor Smith in the April, 1927, issue of the Atlantic Monthly.

When asked yesterday at his home, 117 West Fifty-fifth Street, what he thought of the agreement, Mr. Marshall said:

"The agreement recognizing the Pope as sovereign over the newly created Vatican State ought not of itself to invite hostile criticism."

"Do you consider that Mussolini or the Pope got the greater advantage?"

"That is not so important as whether each made a valuable contribution to religious and political progress," said Mr. Marshall.

"I believe that each did, as matters are recorded up to date. The long struggle seems to conclude without disparagement to the dignity of the Pope, and at the same time with his recognition of the civic primacy of the Italian people within the Papal States, of which until 1870 he was King.

Plebiscite of 1870 Recalled.

"The real party in interest is not Mussolini but the Italian people, whose representative he is. I do not think the agreement can be correctly weighed except by those who understand the relation of the two sovereignties which the Pope has claimed to exercise—his temporal, political or territorial sovereignty, which existed over the Papal States and their people until 1870, and his pontifical sovereignty which exists over Roman Catholics throughout the world in virtue of his office as Bishop of Rome and Supreme Pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church.

"In 1870 the Italian people in the Papal States, responding to the democratic movement then in progress, voted against the continuance of the temporal or political sovereignty of the Pope over them and elected Victor Emmanuel II as King with a constitutional government in place of the Pope. The popular voted stood 133,681 for Victor Emmanuel as against 1,507 for the Pope. The vote was a popular expression in favor of government by the consent of the governed, recorded by the Italian people acting in virtue of their civic primacy. That situation has been successfully maintained for over half a century.

Pope Retired to Vatican.

"The Pope at that time (Pius IX) refused to recognize that civic primacy, excommunicated many of those participating in the change and withdrew himself within the Vatican as a voluntary prisoner. His successors have continued his policy.

"The Italian Government has always conceded a certain extraterritorial character to the Vatican palace and gardens, but no political sovereignty has hitherto been conceded to the Pope. The agreement now concedes such a political sovereignty and recognizes a few hundred acres of land enclosing the Vatican as the Vatican State and the Pope as sovereign over the same. He may emerge from his voluntary imprisonment as much a King as the present Victor Emmanuel III."

"Do you consider, then, that the present Pope has made a radical change in the papal policy?" Mr. Marshall was asked.

"Any one who knows anything of history knows that Pius IX would never have accepted what Pius XI has now agreed to. Pius IX would never by any act have recognized de facto or de jure the civic primacy of the Italian people as supreme in the determination of political government over the territory which had been comprised within the States of the Church. The action of Pius XI seems to me to involve such recognition and indicates a great change in papal policy.

Sees Nobility in Utterance.

"There is nobility in the Pope's reported statement that he has asked as little as possible and a significance in his waiver of what he has not asked that seems to show a mind fixed on higher things than earthly power. Even those not of his church can sympathize with the view that as the Supreme Pontiff of a church that claims to be supranational he can not best with a residence free from national menace or control, although they may at the same time question whether even a vestige of sovereignty is any support to one who claims to be the Vicar of Christ."

CHURCHILL DEPICTS SOCIALISM AS RUIN

In an Electoral Speech He Presages Disaster to Britain if Labor Is Victorious.

POINTS TO SOVIET RUSSIA

Chancellor of the Exchequer Contrasts Conditions There and in the United States.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12. — Winston Churchill raised the hair on the heads of 2,000 members of the anti-Socialist Union tonight as he pictured the cataclysms awaiting England if the Labor Party should win the general election.

A new general strike, a gigantic economic and social breakdown and the downfall of parliamentary institutions were only a few of the terrifying visions conjured up by the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

His speech is regarded as a clear indication that the Conservative party will fight the general election on an anti-Socialist issue with Churchill in charge of the Tories' powder magazine.

Just as in the 1924 general election Mr. Churchill introduced Soviet Russia as a bugaboo, but did something new tonight in picturing the United States as the greatest and most admirable contrast to the Soviet system.

"Show me the parts of this country which at the present time are in the deepest depression," he exclaimed; "show me the industries which are most laggard and at the same time you will be showing me the parts where the withering doctrines of Socialism have won the greatest measure of acceptance.

"If you wish to see the greatest and most terrible example you have only to look at the contrast presented today between the welfare of the Russian and American people."

The approaching general election held enormous risks for Britain and should not under any circumstances be entered upon light-heartedly by the Conservatives, he told his hearers.

"On some Summer night," he warned, "we shall go to bed a strong and tranquil nation, recovering slowly but surely our prosperity after the great war. Next morning we may wake up and find that control of Britain and all its worldwide affairs has been handed over for four or five years to the men who only two years ago were managing the general strike and trying to shatter by a single dastardly blow the economic life of the whole island and its ancient parliamentary Constitution.

"We may wake up to find we have helped to launch poor old England out upon a voyage the end of which no man could foresee."

The Laborites would not be in office on sufferance, as in 1924, Mr. Churchill went on, but they would be in power and would not have an excuse for not bringing about a Socialist state.

"They will be bound to attempt nationalization of the great industries and services," he said. "They have already pledged themselves to lay their uninstructed hands on our banking system. They will be bound to impose large additions to the income tax and direct tax. They will bring back the Russian Bolsheviki, who will immediately get busy in the mines and factories as well as among the armed forces, planning another general strike."

He foreshadowed an even worse catastrophe than the general strike of 1926. He foresaw a Socialist strike committee sending orders to strike pickets and Cabinet Ministers at the same moment. He pictured an economic and social breakdown so enormous that Parliamentary institutions might easily be overturned or brushed to one side.

"I think men and women will feel very much ashamed of themselves," he said solemnly, "if they find they have let these grave dangers and evils loose upon the country by voting against the government or simply by sitting home in unworthy apathy."

He set his face firmly against the efforts to have the British Government resume diplomatic relations with the Soviet, but said there was nothing to prevent ordinary trade growing up with Russia.

"The United States, which never recognized the Bolsheviki or allowed them to disturb its country, has done better trade with them than we have done by all the efforts we have made to conciliate them and all the risks we have run," the speaker concluded.

SEPPALA TAKES LEAD IN SLED DOG RACE

St. Godard, Yesterday's Winner, Trails Alaskan by 11 Minutes on Second Day's Grind.

LACONIA, N. H., Feb. 12 (AP).—Leonhard Seppala, veteran musher from Nome, and his team of Siberian huskies jumped into the lead in the New England championship sled-dog race today by winning the second leg of forty miles with an elapsed time of 3 hours 59 minutes 7 seconds.

The Alaskan, winner of the last two New England championship events, finished 11 minutes and 43 seconds ahead of Emil St. Godard of Le Pas, Manitoba, who started this morning with a lead of 3 minutes and 10 seconds. Thus Seppala's rugged huskies were able to change their first day's setback into an advantage of 8 minutes and 33 seconds.

St. Godard started with five dogs and finished with four, while Seppala crossed the line with each of his seven huskies in harness. When the former struck the Six-Mile Range hills between Ashland and the Weirs one of his pole dogs became lame and he was forced to halt and unhitch, thereby losing several valuable minutes. His dogs appeared worn out when he finished today's leg. Seppala's Siberians ended the race today almost as strong as when they started.

Hi Mason, driving for Moseley Taylor of Boston, president of the New England Sled Dog Club, with only four dogs, maintained his position in third place by completing the second run in 4 hours 38 minutes 31 seconds. Mason amazed the race officials by using each of his huskies as a lead at different stages of the contest. Most drivers stake their hopes on their leader.

Tom Dabney, Norfolk Hunt Club steeplechase rider, finished fourth today, and Al Lapoint of Quebec was the last to drive across the finish line.

George Chevrette of Quebec, who finished fifth on the first run, was forced to retire today at the three-quarter mark.

Tomorrow's final forty-three-mile leg will be from Laconia to Alton, Gilmaton, Belmont and thence to the finish line in Laconia, where the winner will receive a prize of $1,000.

DE VALERA SPURNS PARDON

In Jail, He Refuses to Promise Not to Enter Northern Ireland.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Eamon de Valera prefers to remain in prison rather than give an undertaking not to enter Northern Ireland unless permission to do so is granted on his personal application through the government of the Irish Free State, according to a Belfast message tonight.

President Cosgrave of the Free State asked the Prime Minister of Northern Ireland to release De Valera "purely as an act of grace." The Minister for Home Affairs, under whose order De Valera was arrested last week when he crossed the frontier to attend a Belfast bazaar, consented provided De Valera gave the required undertaking. This De Valera, it is stated, flatly refused to do.

Senator Knight answered, looking at the Lieutenant Governor, "even if it is necessary to bring it about over the chairman's ruling.

Senator Mastick sought to restore good feeling by saying:

"I think there has been a misunderstanding. Senator Knight said that because that nominee was a Democratic leader it was a recommendation to us to receive the nomination."

Then the flurry subsided and the nomination was sent to the Finance Committee.

Statement by the Governor.

"The appointment of Judge Moore was determined upon by the Governor after a review of a great volume of correspondence from individuals who have been closely associated with him for a number of years and who are prominent in education activities, child's welfare organizations and kindred children's associations in the county and who set forth his particular qualifications for the office of judge of the Children's Court."

The Governor listed many Westchester residents who urged Mr. Moore's appointment, including Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip of Scarsdale, Mrs. Daniel F. O'Brien of Yonkers, Mrs. Emmons Bryant, head of the Big Sisters of Yonkers; Dr. Albert Leonard, Superintendent of Schools; Mrs. Clara W. Francis, active in girls' court work; Judge Walter G. C. Otto, the Rev. George M. Stockdale, Mrs. Daniel H. Beary and Walter F. Haskett, general secretary of the Yonkers Y. M. C. A.

Higbie Renamed as Regent.

During brief sessions today the Senate and Assembly Republicans renamed Robert W. Higbie of Jamaica as a member of the State Board of Regents, and Datus Clark of Peru as a member of the Council of Agriculture and Markets. The Democrats voted for Arthur S. Somers of Brooklyn as a member of the Regents, but followed their usual custom in refusing to vote for a member of the Agriculture and Markets Council. The Legislature will meet in joint session tomorrow noon to formally elect the two men.

Assemblyman Maurice Bloch, Democratic leader of the lower house, moved to discharge the Ways and Means Committee from further consideration of the Kelly bill, which would abolish the Council of Agriculture and Markets and make the head of the Department of Agriculture an appointive office by the Governor. The motion was lost by a party vote but not until Mr. Bloch had charged the Republicans with playing politics with the Department of Agriculture.

"The Republicans vigorously oppose any change in the department because the present system means political pap for them," said Mr. Bloch.

Lauds Governor as "Farmer."

Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, New York City Democrat, said Governor Roosevelt was a "good farmer" and was well qualified to appoint the head of the Agriculture Department. This reference to Governor Roosevelt caused several Republican Assemblymen to laugh.

"Laugh, if you will, but I tell you we have a good farmer for Governor," Mr. Cuillvier asserted.

When Governor Roosevelt was told what Mr. Cuillvier had said about him as a farmer, he laughed and said:

"I guess I am a better forester than I am a farmer. The forestry project at Hyde Park is paying better than the farm."

The Senate General Laws Committee today reported the Williams bill, which would require the approval of a childrens' court judge for the issuance of a marriage license to a girl under 16. The present law fixes the age at 14. Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, vice chairman of the Republican State Committee, has urged the enactement of the measure.

A bill for a two-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline used in automobiles was introduced today by Senator Thayer, Republican, of Franklin. It would provide for exemptions along the line as propose by Governor Roosevelt.

The new multiple dwellings bill will come up for a public hearing on Feb. 27. The hearing will be before the Senate Cities and Assembly Judiciary Committees and will be held in the Senate Chamber at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Moore a Leader at the Bar.

Benjamin W. Moore of 786 North Broadway, Yonkers, has been for many years prominent in law and politics. He was formerly a partner of Thomas J. O'Neill, and was a leading practitioner in negligence cases. He was elected chairman of the Westchester County Democratic Committee in April, 1924.

Early Seating of Moore Urged.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, Feb. 12.—Immediate installation of Benjamin W. Moore of Yonkers as Westchester County Children's Court Judge is urged by lawyers and jurists here as a result of congested calendars in both the Children's and County Courts. For the past four weeks, following the death of Judge Appell, County Judge Frederick P. Close has been endeavoring to conduct both courts.

DRYS BACK WET'S BILL TO CURB POISON LIQUOR

State Anti-Saloon League Sees in Cuvillier Measure an Aid to Enforcement.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 12.—The poison liquor bill of Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, Democrat, of New York City, may become the chief item in the legislative program of the prohibition enforcement campaigners before this session of the Legislature is concluded, it was indicated today.

Developments at a meeting of the Assembly codes committee, to which the measure had been referred, showed that the State Anti-Saloon League and its sympathizers in the Legislature have reached an agreement to give it hearty support with the idea that it will in large part serve the purpose of State dry enforcement, even if the bill of Assemblyman Edmund B. Jenks, Republican, of Broome, providing for regular enforcement of prohibition such as the repealed Mullan-Gage law offered, goes down to its probable defeat. The comprehensiveness of the poison liquor bill is thoroughly appreciated by the drys, who have found in this proposal by a wet Democrat a possible substitute for their own proposal.

The fact that practical drys have decided to take advantage of the wet strength behind the poison liquor measure in a coalition that they believe will work out to their own advantage was emphasized when Assemblyman Cuvillier announced to the codes committee that he would postpone a public hearing on the bill for one week.

With Dr. S. E. Nicholson, associate superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, nodding approval behind him, the Assemblyman said that in conjunction with Assemblyman Jenks he had agreed to revise his bill so that the penalty for selling poisonous beverages would be reduced and convictions thereby made more likely.

The present penalty provided in the bill calls for a prison sentence of from five to ten years, the amendment would reduce it to a term of from two to five years.

Orville S. Poland, counsel for the State Anti-Saloon League, has endorsed the bill and it is assured of general dry support, which Mr. Cuvillier today took no steps to repudiate.

Charity to Get Sailor's Estate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The Navy Relief Society was notified today that it would receive the estate of John Bowen, chief boatswain's mate, who served in the navy from 1898 until his death last year. For several years he assisted the society in its charitable work and he left his estate to Mrs. Rodger Welles, wife of Rear Admiral Welles, retired, with whom he had worked at Newport and who had befriended him. Mrs. Welles has turned over the money accruing from the estate to the society.

Albanian Treaty Adherence Filed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Faik Mouitza, Albanian Minister to the United States, deposited in the State Department today the adherence of Albania to the general pact for the renunciation of war. He also exchanged with Secretary Kellogg ratifications of the treaties of arbitration and conciliation between the United States and Albania which were signed on Oct. 22.

Mothers Warned Against Too Much Dosing for Flu

Physicians advise that the chief danger in this epidemic lies in the complications which attack the weakened system. A peculiarity of influenza is that its toxins upset the digestion, especially in case of children.

Too much "dosing" further upsets the digestive system and lowers the resistance to more serious diseases, such as bronchitis, sinus trouble, abscess of the middle ear, or even pneumonia.

Vicks VapoRub is especially valuable because it is applied externally and so can be used freely with no risk of upsetting the digestion. Nor can it interfere with any other treatment your doctor may prescribe. Just rub it on the throat and chest at bedtime.

IMPORT DEPENDENCE ALARMS THE BRITISH

PAPER FEARS BLOCKADE

Guardian Calls Defeat Possible Without Enemy Landing—Hopes for Accord With Us.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Great Britain's dependence on food imports is shown graphically by a report of the Liverpool Steamship Owners' Association today, which declares that six loaves out of every seven now eaten here are made of imported wheat.

The report, in fact, evokes a mention of the susceptibility of this country to blockade, showing not only how Britain is dependent on other countries for essential foodstuffs, but for a large proportion of the raw materials essential to her manufacturing industries. This dependence has been steadily increasing for fifty years. In that time, the report points out, the population has increased from 26,000,000 to 43,000,000.

Fifty years ago Britain was unable to produce the food necessary to keep a population of 26,000,000 alive, the report notes, and, the fact that another 17,000,000 must be fed shows the extent of the problem. While Britain's population has been so increasing, home production of wheat has been substantially declining, it states. Production of wheat in 1928 was only half that of fifty years ago.

"Unlike some other countries," adds the report, "our ability to import and pay for food and raw materials on a large scale is essential to our welfare. If we fail, we as a nation fail with it."

Paper Notes 7-Week Food Supply.

The case for "freedom of the seas" was taken up this morning by the Liberal Manchester Guardian. This journal in an editorial declared that Great Britain is much more hypersensitive to a blockade now than even during the great war.

"Except for special circumstances such as existed then and surely never will exist again, none of the great Continental powers can be blockaded as effectively as Germany was in the war," says The Guardian. "But to blockade Great Britain and inflict a defeat far more catastrophic than even the defeat befalling Germany, nothing would be needed save a few more German submarines.

"Today a Continental naval power with a few suitable bases could swiftly defeat Great Britain, all the more so as airplanes, against which there is no adequate defense, would complete the work of hostile submarines. Indeed, it is possible that merchant shipping in the Channel would be destroyed more rapidly by an air attack than by submarine. Total defeat would come without the landing of one enemy or the bursting of one shell on British soil or the loss of one British soldier, because Great Britain could feed herself no more than seven weeks.

"The blockade, our traditional weapon in war, has become far more dangerous to ourselves than to others."

The journal adds that the peculiar part which the right of capture at sea played and still plays in Anglo-American relations makes it seem reasonable to hope that if maritime law is modified so as to suit both modern needs and modern ideals, the only possible cause of armed conflict between Great Britain and the United States would be removed. The two countries could at last begin to cooperate effectively in world affairs and the full consequences of the Kellogg pact, it believes, could work themselves out.

Improved Relations Seen.

An improvement in Anglo-American relations in the last few weeks is noted by The Guardian. These relations were badly disturbed, states the newspaper, by the abortive "naval compromise" and by Great Britain's new entente with France, her failure to accept the Kellogg Pact without reservations, by the anti-Americanism of her reactionaries, who are said to have helped the American cruiser bill to pass the Senate and to have given American admirals all the help they needed.

"But the immense interest taken in the King's illness throughout the United States has been a revelation on both sides of the Atlantic," says the newspaper. "There is here a growing recognition that the friendship of the United States should be the supreme purpose of our foreign policy and that the only possible entente is one with America.

"The new Anglo-French entente still stands, but the movements against it have developed a broad front, inspired, inter alia, by a strong and very sound suspicion that a lasting Anglo-French entente means another war as surely as an Anglo-American entente means no more war."

DIES OF AUTO INJURIES.

Retired Peekskill Contractor Received Broken Leg a Week Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Feb. 12.—George Harrington, retired building contractor of Peekskill, who was knocked down by an automobile and received a broken leg, died today in Peekskill Hospital. Pneumonia was a contributory cause of death. He was seventy years old. A car operated by William Samman of Peekskill hit him on Washington Street, Peekskill, last Wednesday night. He leaves a widow, two daughters and a son. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon in Peekskill.

Dennis McFeely, 20 years old, son of Police Chief Edward McFeely of Hoboken, and Leonard Doran were injured early yesterday when Doran's automobile hit the last car of a freight train at the Seventeenth Street crossing of the Erie Railroad in Hoboken. The impact dislodged James Clark, a brakeman, from the roof of the car. His legs were fractured. McFeeley and Clark are in St. Mary's Hospital, Hoboken. Doran was able to go home.

WOLFE STATUE FOR LONDON

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—London is soon to have its first statue of General Wolfe, the hero of Quebec. In the tea room of the House of Commons today was placed a small model of the memorial which it is proposed to erect in Greenwich Park as a gift from the Canadian people.

Canadians living here have long commented on the fact that London has no Wolfe statue, while the nearest one is at Westerham, Kent, the General's birthplace. Greenwich has been chosen in view of the association of the Wolfe family with that district.

PLAN FOR CHANGES IN TARIFF RULES

House Committee Insists on Revision of Administrative Features of the Law.

SILK HEARING IS ENDED

Commerce Chamber Advocates a Non-Partisan Board for Flexible Rate Studies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—After a conference of the Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee today it was stated that whatever is done about tariff rates an effort will be made to have a complete overhauling of the administrative features of the tariff law. Hearings on them have been set for Feb. 25. Chairman Hawley asserted that four days of discussion probably will be devoted to the administration of tariffs.

The Republican members of the committee will meet again, it was announced, on March 2 to outline the program to be pursued by subcommittees to which has been assigned post-hearing consideration of different schedules.

Decision to extend consideration of administrative features is the result of the large number of appeals made at the hearings for restoration of the "intent" of the present law as to various duties. It was asserted that this has been changed in many instances by the Board of Appraisers and the United States Customs Court of Appeals and by methods of assessment used at ports.

There have been many appeals for a change from "foreign" to "American" valuation as a basis of assessing all duties, the domestic value rule now applying only to coal-tar chemicals and dyestuffs.

Final Hearing on Silk.

At the final hearing today on the silk schedule two witnesses added to much that was said yesterday concerning expansion and elaboration of synthetic textile manufacture. Developments have gone to the point since the Fordney-McCumber act was passed, is not properly applicable to all of these products, said Matthew O'Brien of Washington, D. C., who spoke for the Celanese Corporation of America. He opposed a recommendation, made by Horace E. Cheney, for the Silk Association of America, that the word rayon be used in the law as a generic name for all synthetic textile products.

These products are described as ones of "artificial silk" in the present act.

J. Roscott, New York City, representing the Irving-Horowitz Company, said a new industry had been developed around the use of synthetic cut or staple fibre directly with wool cotton, or silk, without being first fashioned into yarn or thread.

He asserted that little of the fibre is produced in this country for that kind of use and is not likely to be because of its being much more profitable here to carry first manufacture through to yarn and thread. It had come in, he said, under a duty of 10 per cent ad valorem until a Treasury decision put it in the "basket" clause covering rayon products. This caused a duty of 20 per cent to be imposed. He asked that the rate be made 10 per cent.

Recommendations concerning the tariff were made today by William Butterworth, president for the United States Chamber of Commerce in a letter to the Ways and Means Committee.

The Chamber urged that "there be reasonable protection for American industry, including agriculture," with "recognition of the desirability of maintaining and developing export trade," also the maintenance of anti-dumping laws, means for meeting foreign export and import restrictions, "provision for maintaining flexible rates through a non-political board," and the "establishment of foreign trade zones in American ports."

Trade Chamber's Proposal.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP).—The removal from the Tariff Commission of its power to recommend to the President the lowering or raising of import duties under the flexible provisions of the existing tariff law and the investing of such authority in a separate non-political board was proposed today by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Under the proposal the Tariff Commission would confine its activities to ascertaining statistical information bearing on the tariff and would not make recommendations unless requested to do so by the House, where all tariff legislation must originate.

The separate board would have no other function than that of adjusting rates within limits fixed by Congress. The President, as at present, would have final authority to pass on the changes suggested. The flexible provisions as they now stand permit the Executive to raise or lower duties as much as 50 per cent upon recommendations of the Tariff Commission.

Officials of the chamber explained their proposals was based on the theory that the duty of adjusting rates under the flexible provisions should be placed in a board composed of men of the executive type of mind as distinguished from the statistical type.

BOYS DROWN UNDER ICE.

Bodies of Two Turnersville (N. J.) Children Found in Lake.

Special to The New York Times.

FRANKLINVILLE, N. J., Feb. 12. Breaking through thin ice on a lake near their homes at Turnersville, twenty miles south of Camden on the Black Horse Pike, two small boys were drowned today. Their bodies were found just before dusk after the entire village had turned out to search for them.

The boys were Charles Horner, 5 years old, son of S. M. Horner, a public service bus driver, and Frank Sharp, 4 years old, son of Norman Sharp, driver for a laundry. Their caps were found on the ice. A boat was obtained and the bodies were raised with grappling hooks.

JERSEY LAWMAKERS ELECT M'CUTCHEON

Passaic County Clerk to Become State Controller Next Week—Simpson's Opposition Fails.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 12.—Over the protest of Senator Alexander Simpson of Hudson County, Democratic leader in the upper house, the Legislature in joint session elected John McCutcheon, Passaic County Clerk, as State Controller. He will take office Feb. 20, when the term of Newton A. K. Bugbee expires.

Until last night Assemblyman Gabrielson of Essex County, Speaker of the House, had been a candidate for the position. In withdrawing Mr. Gabrielson said he did so at the request of Governor Larson, who had declared himself previously as favoring the election of Mr. McCutcheon.

Senator Simpson objected to what he termed dictation by the Governor and insisted that Mr. Gabrielson be kept in the contest. He put the Speaker's name in nomination and with four other Democrats voted for him. The Senator made it clear that he bore no ill feeling toward Mr. McCutcheon, but was unwilling to stand by silently while a principle was violated.

MORE RUMORS OF TROTSKY.

Berlin Hears Ship on Which He Started for Turkey Was Recalled.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—Contradictory rumors about Leon Trotsky's fate continue to circulate in Germany. Advices from Odina mention that his application for a transit visa to Turkey was refused, it being the rule to issue such visas only if another State has previously granted the applicant permission for a permanent stay.

For this reason, the Odina telegram says, the Russian transport on which Trotsky was traveling to Stambul was ordered back.

Other rumors have it that Trotsky is still in Batum or Moscow.

ROBBERS BIND DEALER, SET FIRE TO HIS STORE

Four Thugs Also Gag Victim—He Is Saved by Firemen—Eight Families Routed by Blaze.

Four thugs, after robbing a Harlem delicatessen dealer, beat him, gagged him, tied him up in his back room and set fire to his store early this morning. The fire routed eight families living in the upper floors of the five-story building, and burned out the delicatessen stock. Firemen, breaking in the door, discovered the dealer unconscious and lashed fast in the rear room.

The dealer is Philip Kangarowitz, who keeps store at 2413 First Avenue. Shortly after 1 o'clock he was shutting up his place. He heard a knock at the back door and, thinking it might be friends, opened it. Four men entered, two of them armed with pistols.

Holding him up, the quartette took $70 from the till and $20 from Kangarowitz. When they had the money, they gave him a severe beating, finally knocking him unconscious with a blow on the head.

The men then entered the delicatessan's front room, and set fire to it, leaving as they came, by the back entrance. Patrolman Edward Roose smelled and saw smoke and put in an alarm. Families upstairs meanwhile were roused, and fled downstairs in panic. By the time they had reached the street the firemen in command of Battalion Chief William Ferry, arrived. It was Ferry who found Kangarowitz in the back room.

The families went back to their home after the blaze had been put out. Kangarowitz was taken to Harlem Hospital suffering from shock and abrasions.

Ex-Gov. Smith Goes to Havana.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 12 (AP).—Alfred E. Smith, former Governor of New York, embarked this afternoon on what he said was his first voyage on a steamship and his second trip outside of the United States. Accompanied by Mrs. Smith and a party of friends he left this afternoon by boat for Havana. The party will stay in Havana five days, Mr. Smith said.

INJUNCTIONS BILL DISAPPROVED BY BAR

Move to Require Hearing Seen as Delaying Remedy Until Damage Has Been Done.

OPPOSE SUB-METERING LAW

Utility Board Held to Have Power Only Over Concerns Owning a Franchise to Use Streets.

The proposed amendment to the civil practice act requiring notice and hearing before the issuance of an injunction in a labor dispute is one of the bills pending before the New York Legislature which is disapproved by the committee on the amendment of the law of the Bar Association of New York. Another bill disapproved is that to amend the Public Service Commission law so as to bring under the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission individuals or corporations selling or reselling electric current through submeters.

Of the injunction amendment the committee says that to require notice and a hearing before issuance of an injunction would present the danger that "where damage is imminent it will be accomplished before a hearing can be had." The committee's further comment on that proposed amendment follows:

"The effect is to destroy temporary injunctions or restraining orders in the multitude of circumstances that may arise under the general classification "industrial dispute." If the advocates of this bill intend that an illegal act should not be restrained, the bill deserves no consideration. If the bill contemplates only rightful acts it is a reiteration of the present law and becomes mere surplusage.

Criticise Verbal Construction.

"The definition of 'industrial dispute' contained in the bills makes much of the word 'grievance.' It is first used in conjunction with 'controversy' giving to it a synonymous meaning unless its later use with the preposition 'against' determines its construction when it must connote 'anger' or 'displeasure.' It is an unfortunate word to use in any statute for it is susceptible of too varied a definition. The definition by indirection sanctions acts that tend to invade the equal rights provisions of the constitution.

The committee also rejects the proposed amendments to create a new method of determining a contempt by jury. It suggests that the court "is practically stripped of its power to enforce its mandate," because "the wish of one juror would frustrate the proceedings."

Defines Concern by Franchise.

Of the sub-metering amendment the committee has this to say:

"The purpose of this amendment would seem to be to make any corporation of person carrying on such operations an electrical corporation and subject it and its business to the supervision and powers of the commission. The wording may make such a concern an electrical corporation, but it is very doubtful whether it will thereupon come under the jurisdiction of the commission for regulation of its rates or service or safety of its devices. Under the present law such jurisdiction of the commission is given by Section 66 of the P. S. C. law and seems clearly restricted to gas corporations and electrical corporations having authority of law to lay down wires or pipes in, over or under streets or public places of a municipality for furnishing or distributing gas or of furnishing or transmitting electricity for light, heat or power. The persons conducting such operations do not in most cases enjoy any public franchise or rights in streets.

"The bill is disapproved as to form."

Many Other Bills Opposed.

Other bills disapproved are: the bill introduced by Assemblyman Berg to amend the general corporation law in relation to the filing of names and addresses of officers; that introduced by Assemblyman Post to amend the Civil Practice Act in relation to the service of a notice of intention to commence suit in foreclosure action; the Buckley bill introduced in the Senate to amend the Banking Law in relation to the form of bonds secured by deed of trust or mortgage on real property; the Evans-Coughlin bill to amend the General Business Law in relation to escheat to state of unclaimed accounts; the bill introduced by Assemblyman Story to amend the civil rights law in relation to the granting of adjournments in actions and proceedings by reason of the observance of a religious holiday. The bill of Senator Hickey to amend the Public Service Commission Law in relation to long and short hauls by common carriers; and the bill by Assemblyman Hearn to amend the Real Property Law in relation to permitting the transfer to a corporation by executors, trustees and other fiduciaries of real property or interests therein in exchange for the stock and bonds of such corporation are approved.

SUGAR O. K. FOR TEETH, SAYS M.D.

Any and All Food Should Be Brushed From the Teeth After Eating

Who, with any basis of fact, ever said that sugar is harmful to the teeth? An eminent British medical authority recently showed that sugar, perhaps more than any other food, tends to promote the flow of saliva in the mouth, which should be conducive to preserving the teeth in a clean state. He also pointed out that sugar promotes the flow of gastric juice and so is an aid to digestion. Rough foods and fruits are thought to be good for the teeth. How could anyone ever eat them without sugar?

The main thing is to eat a variety of healthful foods and to enjoy them. That's what the teeth are for. Medical authorities are alarmed today that so many girls and also adults are starving themselves in order to reduce weight. This passing fad, in the opinion of many doctors, has become a serious menace to health, frequently causing injuries that are permanent.

Eat enough nourishing food, and remember that sweetness is nature's perfect flavor. Nothing can take the place of sugar in making the whole meal enjoyable. Eat some citrus fruit—sweetened to taste—at least once a day. Take care of your teeth and enjoy eating. The Sugar Institute.

SFORZA TRACES WAR CAUSE

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Feb. 12.—Count Carlo Sforza, Minister of Foreign Affairs for Italy following the World War, in the first of a course of lectures at Wesleyan University on European diplomacy, said last night that the main reason for the World War was fear.

The war came, he said, as the inevitable result of the system of secret alliances, the desire for protected trade routes, the need for raw materials and the attempts to hold in subjection to certain monarchies groups of subject peoples.

If any one nation was more responsible than the rest the Count believed it was Austria-Hungary. He held Germany responsible for supporting Austria, but declared that relatively distant responsibilities were more or less shared by all the European nations by terms of equilibrium.

A Glaring Truth

NOTHING is more injurious to eyes than glaring light. Fatigue, headaches, reduced output follow. An Emeralite on every desk prevents glare and helps eyes work longer without strain.

Nature made Green and daylight restful to eyes. That's why Emeralite has a Green glass shade and a Special Screen that changes ordinary electric light into soft, eye-saving daylite—ideal for reading or working.

Genuine Emeralites are branded for your protection. Look for the name on the Green Glass Shade and the Daylite Screen. It is a pledge of lighting service that satisfies.

AIR SHOW THRONGED BY HOLIDAY CROWD

School Children Among 25,000 Who Visit Exposition on Its Last Day but One.

SEVERAL SALES REPORTED

With one more day left of its week's run at the Grand Central Palace, the New York Aviation Show, the first to be held in New York in seven years, broke all attendance records yesterday, according to its sponsors, members of Aviators Post 743, American Legion. They attributed the great crowds, which they said exceeded 25,000, to the closing of the schools for the holiday. Certainly, children dominated the show yesterday, and the exhibitors took full advantage of the opportunity to instruct the younger generation in aeronautics.

Ropes about the planes were lowered, cabin doors thrown open and hundreds of youngsters had the thrill of sitting in a pilot's seat while a real pilot stood close by explaining the shining instruments and instructing them in the control of aileron and rudder. Many of the lads did not have to be told what the stick was for, nor which was the throttle and which was the switch.

From the inspection of regulation planes they turned to the models which experts were flying all around the three floors of the exhibits, or visited the motion-picture theatre, where they saw Colonel Lindbergh and other famous pilots on the screen.

Stunts Seen at Flying Field.

Many of the visitors hurried away from the show early to visit Curtiss Field, where Dale Jackson, pilot in charge of the Curtiss flying school at the Miami municipal airport, demonstrated his proficiency in the air. Jackson, who recently established a record of 417 consecutive "barrel rolls," yesterday took up a small cabin monoplane, the Curtiss Robin, and put it through a series of aerobatics similar to those the army pilots use.

An exact miniature model of this plane was awarded during the afternoon at the air show to Alexander Dallas, 15 years old, of 16 Ross Street, New Drop, S. I., as grand prize for the best scale model and flying model submitted in the five-borough competition for schoolboys, held in connection with the show. The presentation was made by William Pralle, national director of the Sky Climbers, an organization of boys interested in aeronautics.

Other prizes were presented to five winners in their class from each borough, but in the confusion and crush of the great crowds the lads got away with their prizes before Mr. Pralle and the members of the judging committee could learn their names.

A number of the exhibitors said that tomorrow they would have sales to announce, and there were rumors of sales floating about all day yesterday which were not confirmed.

Lower Production Costs Seen.

Charles A. Levine, whose big all-metal monoplane Uncle Sam is said to have cost $200,000 to build, explained that to construct other planes in this class would cost much less.

"The first one is always the most expensive," he said. "We are prepared to build ships of this type for eight passengers at a cost of not more than $50,000. Our amphibian, which was so expensive to build, can be duplicated for $18,000 now that we have finished the first one."

The visit to the show of William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, gave rise to a report that he had purchased the plane, and representatives of three airplane companies disclosed that Mr. McAdoo had examined their planes, in all cases cabin monoplanes with seats for five or more passengers.

Miss Cyrena Van Gordon of the Chicago Civic Opera was another prospective buyer. Miss Van Gordon, it was said, is considering the purchase of a Cessna monoplane in which to travel on concert tour next Spring.

Today, its last day, the show will be open for twelve hours, the closing time at night being extended from 10:30 to 11 o'clock.

Among the visitors today will be 100 boys of the Hudson Guild, Manhattan, who will go as the guests of the Curtiss Flying Service, Inc. The boys will be taken to the show in buses and will be under the care of M. A. McCloskey. Curtiss pilots will explain the exhibits to the lads.

Coast Survey Maps N. Y.-Montreal Airway; Charts of Transcontinental Routes Planned

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Mapping of the first international aerial highway, the New York-Montreal route flown by the air-mail passenger service of Canadian Colonial Airways, has been started by the Coast and Geodetic Survey, Raymond L. Ross, chief of the airways mapping section, announced today.

Maps of the new transcontinental route crossing central New York between Albany and Buffalo, as part of the route between Boston and St. Paul and Minneapolis, soon to be extended to Seattle, also are in preparation. This route touches Schenectady, Utica, Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo and continues over the Canadian shore of Lake Erie to Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee and Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Preparation of the maps is part of a general project of charting existing inland airways in anticipation of a tremendous increase expected in aerial travel for the coming season. When the task is completed, detailed maps covering every important airway will be available to pilots and air transportation companies. The new maps will complement other airway maps developed by the Army Air Corps and the naval Hydrographic Office.

The new maps are known as "strip" maps, each covering a section of country eighty miles wide and from 200 to 400 miles long. The size of the maps is considered ideal for use by pilots in the restricted cockpits of airplanes, as they need not be folded but may be unrolled as the plane progresses.

The routes now being mapped by the Coast and Geodetic Survey are all inland, the navy having completed strip maps of the entire coast of the United States and Central America, while the Army Air Corps has mapped the transcontinental airway from New York to San Francisco, the Boston-Washington, the Pittsburgh-Detroit routes and a section of the Gulf Coast.

Engineers are also working on the Washington-Atlanta, Chicago-Atlanta-Miami-Tampa, Buffalo-Cleveland-Louisville, Chicago-Cincinnati, Chicago-St. Louis, Chicago to Texas cities, Denver-Pueblo, Salt Lake-Pasco, Salt Lake-Los Angeles and Salt Lake-National Parks routes.

TO REFIT QUESTION MARK.

Army Air Depot at Middletown, Pa., Gets Plane for Reconditioning.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The army C-2 transport plane the Question Mark, which figured in the world's longest endurance flight to date, was flown from Bolling Field today to the army air depot at Middletown, Pa., to be reconditioned and returned here for routine service.

The plane was manned by Major Carl Spatz, Lieutenant Elwood R. Quesada and Sergeant Roy W. Hooe, all members of the crew in the endurance flight, and by Captain Ross G. Hoyt, who piloted the refueling plane.

In order to restore the Question Mark to its original condition it will be necessary to remove two 150-gallon gas tanks, one 40-gallon container, two berths on top of the tanks and a third cot utilized by the crew. Before being returned here the plane will receive a thorough test to ascertain whether it is serviceable for routine duty.

Hangman Balks, Prisoners Rejoice.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, Feb. 7.—The Prpitch gang of bandits, sentenced to hang tomorrow, has got an unexpected, informal stay of sentence from the hangman. This functionary, who lives in Serajevo, on being notified to come here, telegraphed a demand for his traveling expenses and part of his fee in advance. As this is contrary to custom, jail officers are wondering what to do.

TEST NEW TOOL ALLOY AS 'HARDEST METAL'

Naval Men Watch Feats With 'Carboloy,' Composed of Tungsten, Carbide and Cobalt.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 12.—Carboloy, a new machine tool material composed of tungsten, carbide and cobalt, was put through a series of official tests at the Philadelphia Navy Yard yesterday. It is said to be the hardest metal ever developed and to be capable of feats considered impossible with other machine tools now in general use.

At the demonstration, which was ordered by the navy's Bureau of Engineering, navy men and representatives of shipbuilding firms saw the new metal cut a 16-inch battleship armor plate, cut a screw thread on blocks of plate glass and tool bakelite, porcelain and manganese steel, all regarded as extremely difficult operations.

Carboloy is a product of the General Electric Company's laboratories and has been in use in the company's own shops for more than two years. The cost of the work was reduced 25 per cent, it was said, and there was also a great saving in time.

P. Petroff, manager of the marine division of the Carboloy Company, who had charge of the tests, declared that carboloy was next to a diamond in hardness.

"Every one knows how glass can be scratched with a diamond," he said. "Carboloy will do the same thing just as readily. A natural sapphire, next below a diamond in the scale of hardness, can also be scratched with carboloy.

"If carboloy is held against the side of an ordinary emery wheel such as is used for grinding tools, a narrow groove will be cut into it without the carboloy suffering to any appreciable extent.

"Even though the tip of the new cutter should become heated to a bright red, a temperature that would be disastrous to its predecessors, it continues with its work, for the material has no temper."

MASSÉ of Paris

Distinguished Authority on Beauty Culture

urges his patrons to use this one treatment to keep the skin lovely

This celebrated authority on the technique of acquiring personal loveliness advises a simple but unfailing rule for complexion beauty

Emile Massé, skillful head of the establishment bearing his name, on the Rue Daunou, Paris. M. Massé makes a careful study of modern care of the skin. His word on such matters is authoritative.

"Efficient but gentle cleansing of the skin at home is an absolute requirement of success in our work. We have investigated many methods by which this may be done and have decided that the simplest method is by far the best of all. That is the consistent, thorough use of the soap which combines deep cleansing with the well-known cosmetic effects of palm and olive oils."

E. Massé

16 RUE DAUNOU, PARIS

The sheen of the fine old inlaid floor, the grandeur of typical Parisian decoration characterize the Massé salon at 16 Rue Daunou. Fittings are essentially feminine, designed to appeal to the discriminating clientele of M. Massé.

AT 16 Rue Daunou, Paris, many of the world's most distinguished women are accustomed to consult E. Massé on problems of skin care. Massé gives much time and thought to home beauty methods, as well as to the treatments given in his artistic salon de beauté.

"Efficient but gentle cleansing of the skin at home is an absolute requirement of success in our work," says Massé. "Clients who follow our advice, never use any soap except that which blends oils of palm and olives. They are the ones whose skin shows the greatest improvement as a result of the treatments we give in the salon."

Other authorities agree

All the leading figures in the Parisian world of beauty culture agree with M. Massé. Lina Cavalieri, Vincent, Mme. Valentin le Brun—these are just a few of the many French authorities who recommend this same treatment. And in Berlin, Vienna, London—in all the cosmopolitan centers of culture—one meets this same advice.

What palm and olive oils do

The need for thorough, but gentle, cleansing of the skin is universally recognized. Oil secretions, dust, dirt, make-up, clog the pores. Unless they are removed daily, they will harden into blackheads and pimples or cause sallowness and a dull, lifeless skin.

In Palmolive Soap beauty experts—in America and all over the world—find just the correct blending of those oils which are so beneficial to the skin. This soap, as Massé says, "combines deep cleansing with the well-known cosmetic effects of palm and olive oils."

A priceless formula embodying the precious oils of palm and olive, famous since the days of Cleopatra for prolonging health and beauty.

Retail Price 10c

Massé also prepares an astringent, Elixir Camphre and Creme Massé, specially for home use . . . but always he suggests, and his most famous colleagues agree upon, the following treatment, twice-a-day, to retain skin loveliness: first, a rich lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water, to be rubbed, with both hands, well into the skin. Two minutes of soap massage, a rinse, first with warm water, then with cold. A final ice water rinse as astringent. Dry skin usually needs some oily cream at least once a day. Oily skin requires an astringent lotion and the use of a day cream with drying effect.

In this 2-minute treatment millions of women find a solution to their problems of skin care. Palmolive is now the leading complexion soap not only in the United States but also in 48 other countries.

12 NEGROES HONORED FOR ACHIEVEMENTS

Harmon Awards Presented Here to Claude McKay, Nella L. Imes and Dr. C. H. Tobias.

RABBI WISE IS SPEAKER

Lincoln Showed Us Self-Liberation Was Important as Liberation From Without, He Says.

The William E. Harmon awards for distinguished achievement among negroes were presented to three negroes living here at the Mother A. M. E. Zion Church, 140 West 137th Street, last night, the principal address being delivered by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise. Similar services were held in cities where others of the twelve recipients of the Harmon awards lived, in connection with Emancipation Day programs.

Claude McKay, author of "Harlem Shadows", and "Home to Harlem", received the gold medal and the $400 award in literature; Nella Larsen Imes, author of "Quicksand", the bronze medal and $100 award in literature, and Dr. Channing H. Tobias, secretary of the National Council of the Y. M. C. A., the bronze medal and $100 award in religious service.

"The awards are to them whose inspirations and achievements alike are in the fields of life that matter to all of us," said Rabbi Wise, "and we gather here tonight to rejoice in the spirit of comradeship that there are those of the negro race entitled to high awards by reason of distinction and through promise of lofty achievement yet to be.

"These awards are made fittingly, in truth, on the birthday of the great American whose life, whose memory, whose name are become a cherished symbol of both races. Was it not Lincoln, who as much as any other human has led us to see that liberation from without means little unless it be supplemented by self-liberation?"

John E. Nail, negro business man of Harlem, presided. Miss Helen G. Harmon, vice president of the Harmon Foundation, gave a brief greeting to the recipients of the awards.

The awards in other cities made Sunday and last night were as follows:

INDIANAPOLIS—J. Harold Brown, bronze medal and $100 in music.

PHILADELPHIA—Frederick Massiah, bronze medal and $100 in business.

CHICAGO—Archibald J. Motley Jr., gold medal and $400 in fine arts, and Dr. L. K. Williams, gold medal and $400 in religious service.

ETTRICK, Va.—President John M. Gandy of Virginia Normal and Industrial Institute, bronze medal and $100 in education.

TUSKEGEE—Professor Monroe N. Work, gold medal and $400 in education.

WASHINGTON—Mrs. May Howard Jackson, bronze medal and $100 in fine arts, and Mrs. S. W. Rutherford, gold medal and $400 in business.

This was the third annual series of the Harmon awards, which were established by the late William E. Harmon, founder of the Harmon Foundation, and are granted for outstanding contributions in the fields of literature, fine arts, science, business, education, music and religious service. Announcement of recipients was made last month, at which time the 1929 series of awards opened. Nominations will be received until September, 1929.

HONOR LINCOLN AND COOPER

Institute Alumni and Faculty Hold Dual Birthday Ceremonies.

To celebrate the anniversary of the birth, in 1791, of Peter Cooper, the founder of Cooper Union, as well as the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, who, at Cooper Union, made the memorable address to the Eastern electorate which won him the nomination in 1860, a group of alumni, students and members of the faculty of the institution gathered yesterday afternoon at Peter Cooper's statue, which stands in Cooper Square, before the Foundation Building at Fourth Avenue and Seventh Street.

William H. Wagner, of the class of 1903, president of the Architectural Alumni Association and vice president of the Alumni Federation, placed a wreath on the statue. J. Charles Riedel, president of the Alumni Federation, delivered a commemorative address, in which he compared the characteristics of "Peter Cooper who emancipated the student of the poorer classes and Abraham Lincoln, who set free the slaves."

Pennsylvania Women Celebrate.

PROTEST NEGRO EXCLUSION.

Speakers at Meeting on Restaurant Action Assail Magistrate Norris.

A mass meeting in protest against the discrimination of negro patrons in the restaurants of this city was held last night at St. Luke's Hall, 125 West 130th Street, under the auspices of the American Negro Labor Congress and the International Labor Defense. Richard B. Moore, national organizer of the American Negro Labor Congress, and Alfred Wagenknecht, national secretary of the International Labor Defense, were among those who addressed the 500 persons at the meeting.

Magistrate Jean Norris was assailed by the speakers for her action in giving suspended sentences to six pickets arrested while picketing a downtown restaurant which had barred negro patrons. Mr. Moore said her decision was "a gross miscarriage of justice."

TIME

The Weekly Newsmagazine

A STATEMENT
—to business men only

Here is a quick picture of where TIME came from—is now—and is headed for.

1. PERSPECTIVE—Six promises fulfilled

1923	18,500	108,836
1924	43,500	195,205
1925	75,000	286,101
1926	110,500	331,748
1927	138,000	390,844
1928	188,000	470,184
Jan., 1929	222,000

Thus in 1928, TIME'S advertising lineage showed over 20 per cent gain—in fact, a greater increase in number of pages of business than was shown by any other nationally distributed U. S. magazine.

2. HARD FOCUS—What happened in January

A 78.5 per cent increase in lineage over last January. Advertising revenue more than doubled. ¶ TIME, guaranteeing 220,000 (net paid A. B. C.) circulation average for 1929, has already attained 222,000.

3. VITAL AUGURY—and the Seventh forecast

TIME kept six circulation promises. TIME now makes its seventh guarantee: 300,000 (net paid average) in 1930

TIME is interested only in the essence of things. It is written for cultivated Americans, impatient with cheap sensationalism and windy bias. It is written for men and women who will turn gladly to a publication edited in the historical spirit. TIME is fair-dealing, vigorously impartial. TIME reports what it sees, serves no masters, fears no groups.

PICTURES DOUGLAS AS LOYAL TO LINCOLN

Bowers Recounts Their Rivalry and Joining of Forces to Preserve the Union.

Historians and Civil War Veterans Meet in Court Room Where Lincoln Practiced Law.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 12.—The capital city of Illinois where the remains of the immortal Lincoln repose, today paid a lasting tribute to the memory of the Great Emancipator on his 120th birthday anniversary.

Historians from all parts of the State gathered, for the observance related details of events connected with the life of Lincoln, and then came the annual meeting in the Sangamon Circuit Court room where Lincoln practiced law. Claude G. Bowers, editorial writer of The New York Evening World and "keynote" speaker at the last Democratic National Convention, painted a dramatic word picture of the differences, the lifelong struggle and ultimate relation of Lincoln and Stephen Arnold Douglas, the "Little Giant."

Declaring both to have been great orators and "consummate politicians," Mr. Bowers said:

"Posterity knows that Douglas spoke; it knows what Lincoln said."

During the forenoon, hundreds visited Lincoln's burial place. The memorial meeting, of which former State Senator Logan Hay, president of the Lincoln Centennial Association, was chairman, was in the afternoon. Paul Angle, secretary of the organization, spoke on the alleged Lincoln letters, publication of which in The Atlantic Monthly has been halted by the owners of that magazine. The letters, Mr. Angle asserted, were not genuine in any respect.

At 6:30 o'clock in the evening, the annual banquet was held, at which Miss Helen Nicolay, daughter of John G. Nicolay, Lincoln's private secretary, was the speaker. Lincoln and Nicolay became acquainted when the latter was conducting the Pike County Press, and Lincoln was practicing law. Nicolay, his daughter said, was one of the first to see Presidential possibilities in Lincoln and printed an article in his paper advocating Lincoln's election.

The banquet was attended by State officials, including Governor Emmerson, who presided at the first of a series of Lincoln meetings at the State Arsenal last night.

Veterans of the Civil War participated in the celebration and tonight were guests at a banquet given by the Women's Relief Corps. The address at this event was given by Herbert Wells Fay, custodian of the Lincoln Monument.

Douglas's Appreciation of Lincoln.

Mr. Bowers in his address said in part:

"It is a remarkable fact that the ability, the genius, the breadth and depth and power of Lincoln was less appreciated by his political associates seventy years ago than by his lifelong rival, Stephen A. Douglas. He appreciated Lincoln more than Seward, more than Chase, infinitely more than Sumner.

"No two great leaders of opposing forces in all history have been more strangely identified in their careers. They were cast for opposing parts in more than one drama of their day; their lives had touched at many points, and so long as Lincoln is remembered, Douglas cannot be forgotten."

Mr. Bowers called Douglas one of the most majestic figures in American history and compared his career and his solid Vermont ancestry and environment to the discouraging outlook and sordid background which introduced Abraham Lincoln to the world.

The two men met and crossed paths continually, Douglass growing in power and prestige as Lincoln plodded slowly along, Mr. Bowers said, until they finally met in the Congress.

"Lincoln entered the House without prestige of any sort and left in two years without the enhancement of his reputation, and during these two years Douglas was sweeping forward, looming larger and ever more imposing in the public eye.

"Now note this evidence of their relative positions. In those two years two men were minutely keeping diaries in the capital. John Quincy Adams loved to gossip with himself in the privacy of his journal and to record his opinions of public men with whom he worked. Time and again he found occasion to mention Douglas; not once did Lincoln's activities or personality impel him to record his name.

"At the same time President Polk was daily writing in his diary of events and people at the Capitol and White House. Douglas is mentioned times without number, and there is not a line in the diary of Polk to indicate that he knew of the existence of Abraham Lincoln."

Much Difference in Their Lives.

Their lives differed widely, Mr. Bowers went on, Douglas moving in the brilliance of gay society, Lincoln amusing himself in a bowling alley. Douglas was brilliant in debate on the floor, Lincoln amused his colleagues with characteristic stories in the cloak rooms. Douglas was early the leader of his fellows, Lincoln remained for long inconsequential.

"This is one of the mysteries of Lincoln," the speakers said. "Nine years before the great debates, eleven years before the Presidential struggle in 1860, no human prescience could have foreseen the possibility of the reversal of their positions.

"Manifestly the five years between Lincoln's retirement to private life and his return to politics were the most fruitful and yet the most mysterious in his career. No one understood better than he that he had failed to measure up to his opportunities. It is impossible to believe that he did not make disheartening comparisons of himself with Douglas, with whom he started out. To one of his ambition, and I reject the bizarre theory that he had it not, this must have been gall and wormwood.

"In the quiet five years that followed he underwent a metamorphosis intellectually and spiritually. He had time to take a sober inventory of his equipment; to weigh the comparative worthlessness of his achievements; to measure the things for which he had striven against the realities; to meditate for the first time selflessly upon the conditions and the movements of the times.

"He came to know himself in the long rides on the circuit, in the lonely vigils of the country taverns; and in the silences and the solitudes, far from the cheering multitudes that beset and confused Douglas, he found the time to turn his philosophy into a formula and to strip the outstanding problems of the hour of their legalistic trappings and reduce them to simple moral terms."

When he was called again by the Kansas-Nebraska act to face his old antagonist, a deeper, sadder, stronger, simpler, humbler, firmer Lincoln, convinced of the elemental truth of his position, met Douglas.

"Henceforth, until the last phase, while Douglas was dealing with what we now know were phantoms and fighting shadows, Lincoln, with inspired vision, was struggling for the eternal verities on which depend the cause of humanity and the ultimate preservation of democracy."

Both Orators and Politicians.

A comparison of Lincoln and Douglas without reference to their oratory would be the omission of an essential, Mr. Bowers said, for Lincoln was perhaps the only one of the Presidents who owed his elevation to his eloquence, and Douglas gained his position by extraordinary mastery of speech.

Douglas was more debater than orator, he declared, and was noble in the art of parliamentary debate, and yet his mind was legalistic. He made no appeal to the heart.

Lincoln before the crowds, Mr. Bowers said, "had one advantage over Douglas—his training was in dealing with the plain people of the farms, the villages, the workshops, with whom plain speaking and the homely phrase are necessary.

"Posterity knows that Douglas spoke; it knows what Lincoln said."

Both were consummate politicians, Mr. Bowers declared. Both understood organization, they cultivated the leaders "down to the trenches" and both "made use of the press in the creation of sentiment."

But they had their differences. "Douglas was dictatorial; Lincoln persuasive. Douglas was arrogantly commanding; Lincoln was gently conciliatory. Douglas moved among his worshippers of the rank and file with the haughtiness of a conqueror; Lincoln mingled with the common workers with the familiarity of a comrade."

"The first and greatest recruiting officer that Lincoln had," Mr. Bowers continued, "was Douglas in the last days of the campaign."

When the election was over and the simple man of Springfield had won, Douglas hastened to the side of Lincoln in the fight for the preservation of the Union.

Douglas Stood by Lincoln.

"On the eve of the inauguration we see Douglas pleading with Lincoln for his consent to a constitutional amendment to remove the slavery question from the field of Congressional debate and hear Lincoln give consent," Mr. Bowers asserted.

"And then the day of the great defiance of the forces of disunion, the scene on the east portico of the Capitol when Lincoln took the oath, with Douglas by his side to hold his hat. I challenge you to search the records of the great rivalries of all time and find me a more thrilling picture for a canvas."

When Fort Sumter was fired upon, and war was inevitable, Douglas reported to Lincoln for duty. A million Douglas followers saluted the President, Mr. Bowers declared, and prepared to march.

"What a rivalry! What a union! These choice spirits who met in early life in opposition, and through the many years went their divergent ways, had met at last with a common purpose, a common passion, a common patriotism, on the top of the hill beside the guns where fluttered the flag of the Union, to the preservation of which they both gave up their lives.

"These two marvelous men, who fought each other throughout their lives, will live in a companionship of glory, vivid and imposing, through all the countless generations yet to be."

Accused by Broker of Ring Theft.

Ohio Sends 180 War Letters Southern Prisoners Wrote

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 12 (AP).—Acting on Lincoln's Birthday, the Ohio State Senate concurred by a unanimous vote in a resolution providing for the return of about 180 letters of Confederate soldiers, now in the State library, to relatives in the South.

The Daughters of the Confederacy are charged with the responsibility of finding those for whom the letters were originally intended.

During the Civil War many captured Southerners were quartered at Camp Chase here. They wrote letters to sweethearts, wives and mothers, which never were sent. No one seems to have determined the reason, but presumably it was because the war ended soon after the letters were written, or because of regulations natural in wartime.

EXAMINERS CHECKING CITY TRUST'S BOOKS

Work Throughout Holiday in Closed Institution and Its Branches.

Although yesterday was a legal holiday and all banks were closed, examiners from the State Banking Department were at work on the books of the City Trust Company, 2,118 Second Avenue, and at its four branches, 2,109 First Avenue, 431 Third Avenue, and in Brooklyn at 182 Graham Avenue and 594 Atlantic Avenue. The main office of the State Banking Department at 51 Chambers Street was closed in observance of the holiday.

The bank examiners are checking up to learn what losses, if any, the depositors must bear when the assets of the trust company are finally liquidated by the Banking Department, which took possession of the company and its branches on Monday. No estimate was available yesterday as to the financial condition of the company.

"Impaired capital" is the explanation of the Banking Department in taking over the bank for the protection of stockholders, but there has been no statement as to how great this possible impairment may be.

Two policemen were on guard at each of the branches yesterday, and as on the preceding days small knots of either curious persons or disappointed depositors remained on watch throughout the day.

Accuses Partner of Assault.

Jerome A. Lehmann, 36 years old, of 50 West Seventy-first Street, was held in $500 bail in Jefferson Market Court yesterday on a charge of assaulting Jack J. Blackman of 345 West Eighty-sixth Street, his partner in a silk firm at 1,431 Broadway. The assault was the climax of a quarrel of several days' standing, according to Blackman, who said that Lehmann had entered the office of the firm yesterday morning and attacked him without warning, breaking his nose and severely lacerating his face. Hearing was set for Friday.

POLICIES which cover Home Life

POLICIES which cover Business Life

Metropolitan Life Insurance Company

EVERY business day in 1928, the 26 million policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who are its sole owners, added a million dollars to the great reserve fund needed for their protection against the hazards of life and business—present and future.

* * *

Happily, more and more persons have a new understanding of what life insurance promises, what it can do and what it does do. They are learning that it does many different things equally well.

While the original purpose—to take care of the breadwinner's dependents in event of untimely death—has never been lost sight of, today life insurance is largely and directly concerned with the business of living.

Financial Report to Policyholders for Year Ending December 31, 1928

Liabilities:
Statutory Reserve	$2,346,775,847.00
Dividends to Policyholders payable 1929	77,138,725.33
All other liabilities	111,485,393.38

Paid-for Life Insurance Issued Increased and Revived in 1928	3,259,181,384.00
Total Bonuses and Dividends to Policyholders from 1897 to and including 1929	448,523,599.20

Life Insurance Outstanding

Ordinary Insurance	$7,825,652,878.00
Industrial Insurance (premiums payable weekly or monthly)	6,297,013,786.00
Group Insurance	2,249,289,338.00
Total Insurance Outstanding	16,371,956,002.00
Number of Policies in Force	42,329,281

(Including 1,304,569 Group Certificates)

ONE form of life insurance provides education for children at the very time when their education costs most . . . Another kind of policy tides over enforced idleness because of accident or sickness. Another form of policy, paid for in regular installments, is a sound financial investment, as well as a protection.

* * *

Employers and employees join together in buying another kind of insurance which provides leisure and freedom from financial worry in later years.

Business men build needed credit for business with life insurance policies . . . Final payments on homes are made certain by insurance.

About one person in every five in the United States and Canada shared in the Metropolitan's greatest year of service.

Total expenditures for Health and Welfare Work among Policyholders in 1928	$5,953,211.12
Trained nursing care for sick Policyholders in 1928	3,771,939 visits

FINDS "LAST" LETTER FROM JOHN BROWN

UNKNOWN TO BIOGRAPHERS

'Lora Case' Not Named in Works on Abolitionist—Note to Prison Guard Deemed Final Word.

A letter, said to have been the last written by John Brown while he was awaiting execution in Charlestown (Va.) Prison, and which is not mentioned in the most important biographies of the abolitionist, turned up yesterday, and incidentally upon the anniversary of Lincoln's birth, in a collection of autographs recently purchased by Thomas F. Madigan, dealer in autographs, of 2 East Fifty-fourth Street.

The letter is in a collection of historical documents purchased from Professor William E. Praeger of Kalamazoo College, Kalamazoo, Mich. The collection was formed about twenty-five years ago, according to Mr. Madigan, who said in commenting on the John Brown letter:

"After Brown had finished his correspondence on the morning of the day of his execution and had his final interview with his wife, he turned to the officer in charge and said:

"'I have finished. I am now ready.'

Uses Last Hour to Write Letter.

"Being informed that there was then nearly an hour before the appointed time, he said:

"'I will write another letter,' and then penned this letter to Lora Case of Hudson, Ohio.

"At the bottom of John Brown's letter, Lora Case, the recipient, has written:

"Received this letter of John Brown Dec. 10, 1859, written on the day of his execution. Lora Case. Born Nov. 18, 1811.'"

Mr. Madigan has been unable to find any trace of Lora Case in biographies of John Brown. But he pointed out that he was probably an old friend of the abolitionist who in youth worked in his father's tannery in Hudson, and in middle life lived alternately there and at Franklin, Ohio, for three years.

The letter to Lora Case was in answer to a letter that he, like thousands of other sympathizers throughout the North had written to Brown while he was awaiting execution for treason as a result of his raid on the arsenal at Harper's Ferry.

The letter follows:

Charlestown, Jefferson Co., Va., 2nd Dec., 1859.

My Dear Sir:

Your most kind and cheering letter of the 28th Nov. is received. Such an outburst of warm hearted sympathy not only for myself but also for those who have no helper, compells me to steal a moment from those allowed me; in which to prepare for my last great change to send you a few words. Such feeling as you manifest makes you to shine (in my estimation) in the midst of this wicked and perverse generation as a light in the world." May you ever prove yourself equal to the high estimate I have placed on you. Pure & undefiled religion before God and the Father is, as I understand it, an active not a dormant principle. I do not undertake to direct any more about my Children. I leave that now entirely to their excellent Mother from whom I have just parted. I send you my "Salutation with my own hand." Remember me to all yours & my dear friends.

Your friend.
JOHN BROWN

F. B. Sanborn in "The Life and Letters of John Brown, Liberator of Kansas and Martyr of Virginia," has presented the widest collection of letters of the abolitionist, but his biography contains no reference to the letter to Lora Case or to the recipient.

Sanborn gives the text of the last letter written by Brown to his family from Charlestown Prison on Nov. 30, 1859, and reproduces letters of the same date to Dr. Thomas Webb of Boston and to Mrs. Mary Gale, who had asked for the names of companions killed at Harper's Ferry.

Brown's Note to Wife Quoted.

In Sanborn's biography there is a letter dated Dec. 1, 1859, addressed to James Foreman, a former apprentice to Brown in a tanner's factory in Pennsylvania. Under the same date Sanborn presents the will, to which on Dec. 2, the last day of his life, Brown added a codicil with a note to his wife reading:

My dear Wife—We have time to enclose the within and the above which I forgot yesterday and to bid you another farewell. "Be of good cheer," and God Almighty bless, save, comfort, guide and keep you to the end. Your affectionate husband, John Brown.

Referring to his will and codicil, Sanborn says:

"This was undoubtedly the last work of the old hero with his pen. He had previously given directions for an inscription on his tombstone, and now sent his wife this paper, which was brought to Mrs. Brown after his execution."

Sanborn further says: "Possibly the very last paper written by John Brown was this sentence, which he handed to one of his guards in the jail on the morning of his execution:

"'Charlestown Prison, Va.,
Dec. 2, 1859.

"I, John Brown, am now quite certain that the crimes of this guilty land will never be purged away but with blood. I had, as I now think vainly, flattered myself that without very much bloodshed much might be done."

The same statement also is cited by Oswald Garrison Villard in his biography of John Brown as the last written by the abolitionist before he paid the extreme penalty.

Speer Did Not Get Call Here.

In the report of the resignation of William R. Moody from the chairmanship of the board of trustees of the Northfield Seminary for Girls, printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Monday, it was said that the Rev. Elliott Speer received a call to become associate pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church in this city. The Rev. Dr. George A. Buttrick, the pastor, writes to THE TIMES that the pastorate committee merely asked Mr. Speer if he would allow his name to be considered for the post, Mr. Speer replying that he was not in a position to accede. The call has now been extended to another minister.

Dr. Putnam Doubts if the Lincoln Chests In Congress Library Hold Data of Value

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Dr. Herbert Putnam, librarian of Congress, today gave it as his opinion that the five sealed chests of Lincolniana, willed to the library by the Emancipator's son, the late Robert Todd Lincoln, contain nothing important enough to alter the general historical record of the martyred President.

Except under certain conditions, according to the deed of gift, the chests are not to be opened until 1947, which will mark the twenty-first anniversary of Robert Todd Lincoln's death.

"Although I have never seen the contents of these chests and may never live to see them," Dr. Putnam said, "I don't believe they contain the kind of material that will cause us to change or condition our attitude toward President Lincoln.

"My reason for saying this is the knowledge that all these documents have been seen by two of Lincoln's biographers, Nicolay and Hay, his personal secretaries. Undoubtedly these men used part of this material in writing their famous ten-volume biography.

"Just a few months before he died Robert Todd Lincoln changed the terms of his original bequest. He understood that there might be historians and biographers who needed access to these papers, and accordingly he gave us authority to open the seals under such conditions, providing that such inspection was authorized by Mrs. Robert Todd Lincoln, who still lives."

To date no member of the library staff has seen the contents of these chests, and unless a request comes from Mrs. Lincoln, it is probable that they will remain unopened and unread until 1947.

Jewish Education Essay Wins Prize.

The Metropolitan League of Jewish Community Associations announced yesterday that Irving Davidson of Temple Anshe Chesed Community Centre had won first prize for his contribution in the essay contest conducted among 50,000 members of the league. "Jewish Education As a Medium for Perpetuating Jewish Life," was the title of his essay. He is 24 years old and a graduate of City College.

KAISER'S ELDEST SON IS ILL

Friedrich Wilhelm in Bed With Influenza After Recent Trip to Doorn.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—Former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm is ill in bed in his palace in Unter den Linden with influenza and tonsilitis which he contracted during his return trip from Doorn, Holland. Three doctors are attending him, although his condition is not regarded as serious.

Former Crown Princess Cecilie personally is keeping watch at his bedside during the night.

SLAIN IN SOCIAL CLUB BY TRIO THAT FLEE

Corona Heights Man Killed Instantly as Each of Gunmen Fires at Him.

Three men called at the Pharaoh Social Club, 173 Kingsland Avenue, Corona, last night and each fired a shot at James Rocco, 34 years old, of 111-17 Forty-second Avenue, Corona Heights, Queens, killing him. The three men then climbed into an automobile and drove away. No chase was made.

Besides Rocco there were four men in the club when the killing took place. The trio had stopped in a few moments before. They politely inquired the address of one James Marino, and when told that nobody knew such a person, retired. Presently they came back. Then it was that they fired on Rocco.

The latter was standing in front of a mirror. All three shots hit him, and others near a table, smashing the glass. Rocco fell instantly killed.

An ambulance from Flushing Hospital brought a doctor who could render no aid. The police of the Newtown station came and questioned the four men in the club, who had been playing cards. Rocco, it was learned, had lived in the vicinity only a short time, and nobody knew much about him.

LINCOLN HONORED BY THOUSANDS HERE

WREATHS LAID ON STATUE

The birthday of Abraham Lincoln was celebrated here yesterday with a series of ceremonies, meetings and dinners in various parts of the city in honor of the "Great Emancipator." A number of organizations participated in the tributes to his memory. The National Republican Club and Boy Scouts laid wreaths at the base of the statue in Union Square.

Chief among the dinner celebrations was the forty-third annual dinner of the National Republican Club at the Waldorf, at which the speakers were Governor Flem D. Sampson of Kentucky, Major George Havens Putnam and Dr. John M. Thomas, President of Rutgers University. Richard W. Lawrence, president of the club, was toastmaster.

Governor Sampson, recalling the birth of Lincoln in Hardin County, Ky., spoke of the influence which his early environment in that state had on him, and said:

"Lincoln was as full of Kentucky as Kentucky was and is of him. In stature, form, manner and speech, he was a full fledged Kentuckian."

Governor Sampson went on to laud the part Lincoln had played in establishing the Republican Party and in doing so he recited as an example of its marked progress since that time the shattering of the solid south by Herbert Hoover in the past election.

"To be the father of a political party is enough to make one's name remembered long after his time," said the Governor. "But to be the father of the Republican Party, the greatest political organization in all history, leading it to its first victory, breathing into it a spirit of triumph which steadily grew until it has taken root in enemy territory, with the erstwhile solid south throwing the electoral vote of rock-ribbed Democratic states to Mr. Hoover and well-nigh annihilating the arrogant Democratic party in Kentucky crowns one with undying fame."

Major Putnam, a Civil War veteran, presented some personal reminiscences of Lincoln and recalled his impressions of Lincoln's first address in Cooper Union before his nomination for the Presidency by the Republican party.

Dr. Thomas spoke of the influence of Lincoln on American education, which he said had been very important due to his signing of the bill providing for the so-called "land-grant colleges" in 1862. Through this action, Dr. Thomas asserted, a vast new system of colleges, embracing more thoroughly democratic ideals in education, had been brought into being. To illustrate the outstanding part played by these "land-grant colleges," from which have developed many of the large Western and mid-Western State universities, Dr. Thomas asserted that 38 per cent of the American students today were enrolled in institutions made possible by the act of Lincoln in signing that bill.

Wreath Ceremony at Statue.

The wreath ceremony at the statue in Union Square was the fourth, the club having started the custom in 1925, on the sixtieth anniversary of the peace between the North and the South.

About 1,000 persons watched Richard W. Lawrence, president of the club, place the wreath, bearing a tag inscribed "To the memory of Abraham Lincoln, the Great Emancipator." Mr. Lawrence explained that it was the National Republican Club which had urged the enactment of legislation in 1896 causing Lincoln's birthday to be made a legal holiday, as it is now observed in thirty States.

Boy Scouts of Nature Study Troop 472 of the Kips Bay Boys' Club also decorated the statue in Union Square with a wreath yesterday morning. Taps was played by the troop bugler while the group headed by Scoutmaster Harold K. Whitford stood at attention.

The Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of the Chelsea Methodist Episcopal Church, spoke at the annual Lincoln celebration of the New York State Woman's Republican Club at the Hotel Plaza.

Dr. Reisner said Lincoln was much influenced by his wife, Mary Todd Lincoln, who pushed him forward into national political life. Dr. Reisner credited Mrs. Lincoln with having rejected for Lincoln an offer for him to become Governor of Oregon on the grounds that it would shove him into obscurity, and that it was probably her influence that caused him to become one of the early advocates of woman suffrage.

Robert E. Manley, Assistant United States District Attorney, speaking on "Water Power," declared that former Governor Smith's stand on the development of this State's power resources on the St. Lawrence was of a "decidedly socialistic tendency."

Lieut. Col. C. A. Scoane, U. S. A., spoke on "Lincoln as a Soldier," and Captain R. E. Bakenhus, U. S. N., read a paper on "Naval Increase at the Present Time." Mrs. William De Voe Smyth, a vice president of the club, presided.

Many Teachers at Town Hall.

About 800 persons, including many teachers from the public schools of New York, Westchester and New Jersey, attended a public commemorative meeting in Town Hall yesterday. Excerpts from Stephen Vincent Benet's poem "John Brown's Body" were read by Mrs. Bertha Kunz Baker. She concluded with the lines depicting Lincoln's hopes for an "Indian Summer" of peace following the Civil War, cut short by his assassination.

Fred Smith Stirs Iowa Legislators.

Special to The New York Times.

DES MOINES, Feb. 12.—A Lincoln Day speech by Fred B. Smith, executive chairman of the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches, in which he characterized himself as a "pacifist" and assailed armament building, stirred excitement in the Iowa State House here today. At the conclusion of the address before a joint meeting of the House and Senate Representative Green of Pottawattamie County denounced Mr. Smith and moved that his remarks be not printed in the record.

WASHINGTON HONORS LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

House Takes Recess to Hear Gettysburg Address—Smoot Gives Eulogy in Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP).—The 120th anniversary of the birth of Lincoln was observed in Washington today both at the Capitol and at the Memorial overlooking the Potomac River.

In the House the Gettysburg address was read by Representative Moore of Ohio, and in the Senate, tribute was paid by Senator Smoot of Utah. At the massive Memorial Building numerous patriotic societies gathered and heard Senator Shortridge of California eulogize the martyred President.

The Capitol was decorated with American flags, while Pennsylvania Avenue, a long stretch of mud and water when Lincoln was born, also was bedecked with the national emblem. At the east front of the Capitol, more flags were displayed.

The day, however, was not a holiday in the city, and all government departments were at work as usual and neither Senate nor House interrupted its program, except for the brief commemorative speeches.

"Lincoln," Senator Smoot said, "was not a pacifist, and would not be a pacifist if alive today. National honor and national defense were the keynotes of his whole life. The birthplace of Lincoln is dedicated to peace; yet Lincoln was not for peace at any price. He was ready to fight for human freedom and a united nation."

At the memorial, where the Gettysburg speech and the second inaugural address are inscribed on two tablets, a gathering listened to Senator Shortridge.

"Wheresoever among men there is love for disinterested patriotism and sublime attachment to duty," Senator Shortridge said, "Wheresoever liberty is worshiped and loyalty exalted, his name, his life, his deeds are known."

Senator Shortridge said that the hour of brotherly estrangement had gone forever, that "government of the people, by the people and for the people' had not perished and that 'the sons of America march all one way."

ROOSEVELT AIDS HOSPITAL.

Endorses White Plains Campaign for New St. Agnes's Institution.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 12.—Governor Roosevelt, in a letter to Humphrey J. Lynch, former Justice of the Supreme Court and chairman of the St. Agnes Hospital drive here, endorsed the campaign for a new crippled children's and general hospital for White Plains.

In his letter Governor Roosevelt said:

"I am glad that St. Agnes's Hospital is conducting a campaign to improve its facilities.

"I do not need to tell you of my very deep interest in the care of crippled children. We must all, both through State and private agencies, do everything possible to improve the facilities for their care."

PACKARD

Available in Three Price Ranges

FINE CAR enthusiasts who desire the supreme luxury and distinction of Packard Eight transportation today have a wide choice in models and in prices.

For the famous Packard Straight-Eight, acknowledged both at home and abroad as the finest of all fine cars, is now available in three complete and separate lines—and in three distinct price ranges.

These three lines—the Standard Eight, the Custom Eight and the De Luxe Eight—differ only in size, in detail of appointment and in the degree of individuality obtainable in upholstery and in color. In fundamental design and in quality of materials and craftsmanship they are alike—finer in engineering than any cars Packard has built before. Each Packard Eight today is a "Packard" in the fullest sense of that significant word.

We invite you to come in and see the three new Packard lines, to learn from actual figures why it is more economical, over three or four years, to own and operate a Packard Eight than to drive a succession of lesser cars during the same period of time.

The Packard Eight is a long-lived car, providing more miles of luxurious and distinguished transportation than the average owner ever uses. When will you take the model of your choice for a trial drive?

The Packard Standard Eight is priced from $2435 to $2835—the Custom Eight from $3175 to $3850—and the Eight De Luxe from $4585 to $5985—at the factory. Individual custom cars are also available to order on the De Luxe chassis.

If you prefer to buy out of income, you will find the Packard Payment Plan most attractive. Many take possession of their new cars without any cash outlay—and with the small monthly payments made smaller because the used car allowance exceeds the down payment on the new car.

SORE THROAT?

Gargle with Listerine

Kills germs in 15 seconds

DON'T let a sore throat get serious. It's a germ condition that ought to be whipped early.

At the first sign of trouble, gargle with full strength Listerine. Your improvement ought to be rapid. If it is not, consult your doctor.

Listerine, full strength, is effective against infections because it is powerful against germs. It kills even the virulent B. Typhosus (typhoid) germ in 15 seconds, as shown by repeated tests in three great laboratories.

We have a helpful free book, Personal Hygiene, that is yours for the asking. Write Dept. S. 89, Lambert Pharmacal Company, 2101 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

And for COLDS

Countless colds start when germs are carried to the mouth on food. By using Listerine on the hands before every meal, you attack such germs and lessen the risk of cold. Remember this, mothers, when handling baby's food.

TWO MORE SHIFTED IN ROTHSTEIN CASE

ORDER ISSUED BY WHALEN

Made Out by Commissioner Before He Left—Flood and Green, Men Affected, Retain Ranks.

One of the last official acts of Police Commissioner Whalen before he left for his Palm Beach vacation, it was revealed yesterday, was to order the transfer of two more detectives who had tried unsuccessfully to solve the mystery of the murder of Arnold Rothstein, Broadway gambler and underworld figure, early last November.

The men affected were Patrick Flood, a first grade detective, and John Green, a second grade detective, both of whom have been attached to the West Forty-seventh Street station for several years. Flood has been ordered to report henceforth at the East Fifty-first Street station and Green will in future report to the West 152d Street station. The order changing their assignment was issued ten days ago, but did not become effective until 8 A. M. yesterday.

Two other detectives who figured prominently in the Rothstein investigation already have been transferred or retired. Joseph Daly, former Inspector Coughlin's staff was allowed to retire after being reduced to a patrolman and Sergeant John H. F. Cordes, honor man of the department, was transferred to the Bronx after having been suspended on charges of impeding the arrest of George McManus, the only man thus far taken into custody for the gambler's death.

At the time Cordes's trial was adjourned until after McManus's trial, Mr. Whalen announced that disciplinary measures would be taken against other detectives in the Rothstein case. Neither Flood nor Green suffer any loss in pay or rank as a result of the shift.

Because yesterday was a holiday, Acting Commissioner Hoyt was not at Police Headquarters. Over the telephone, however, he said he knew nothing of the transfers and added that they must have been ordered by Mr. Whalen before he left for his vacation. Deputy Chief Inspector Edward P. Mulrooney said the order affecting Flood and Green had been issued ten days ago "for the good of the service."

Flood and Green were the detectives, who, according to report, questioned Hyman Biller the night of the Rothstein shooting and let him go after a cursory examination. Biller subsequently was indicted with McManus in connection with the murder and has been sought unsuccessfully ever since. Mr. Mulrooney, however, refused to comment when asked if this might account for the change in assignment.

Flood has spent eleven of his nineteen years in the department as a detective in the West Forty-seventh Street station and has figured conspicuously in west side cases, among them the killings involving Vincent Gaffney and Ownie Madden. Green was made a detective by former Commissioner McLaughlin after he had captured four armed gunmen single-handed as they held up the Owl Club in West Forty-fifth Street several years ago.

PRESIDENT ALLOWS SALE OF BOOK PLATE

Receipts From Collectors Will Go Toward Fund for Northampton School.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—To help raise the $400,000 still unsubscribed of the $2,000,000 Coolidge fund for the endowment of the Clarke School for Deaf and Dumb, of which he is a trustee and where Mrs. Coolidge taught for two years before her marriage, the President has consented to the sale of his private book plate through a Boston bookshop.

Those collecting bookplates can obtain one of these by the payment of $5, which will be applied to the school fund. Requests for the plates should be sent to Goodspeed's Book Shop, Ashburton Place, Boston.

In announcing this plan to aid the institution the President expressed the hope that there would be a generous response.

The book plate is about the size of a postal card and represents a pastoral scene, supposed to picture the birthplace of Mr. Coolidge in Vermont. A cottage on the hillside is the most conspicuous feature. Dogs and other animals are in the landscape. There is no coat-of-arms.

DRESS STRIKE TRUCE IS REPORTED NEAR

34 MORE PICKETS SEIZED

Sentence Suspended on 31, Three Pay $3 Fines—Right Leaders Deride Talk of Accord.

Arrest of thirty-four pickets and reports of a tentative settlement yesterday marked the sixth day of the dressmakers' strike organized by Left Wing leaders of the recently organized Needle Trades Workers' Industrial Union. The reported agreement was derided by Right Wing union leaders, who declared "insignificant" the group of employers who formed the new Dress Manufacturers' Protective Association.

Mass picketing was less noticeable than on Monday. Of the pickets arrested, thirty-one received suspended sentences and three were fined $3 each. Among the former was Mrs. Sylvia Greizer of 537 East 148th Street, who was arrested with her daughter Beatrice, 15 years old. Beatrice was sent to the Children's Society and will be arraigned in Children's Court this morning.

According to the union, there were 398 arrests during the first six days of the strike. Mass demonstrations and picketing were predicted for this morning and every day this week.

Julius Hyman, president of the Left Wing union, announced that a tentative agreement had been arranged with the Protective Association, but denied the strike was over. He said that, on the contrary, he expected it would "spread still further."

The tentative agreement granted the conditions of the strikers, according to union officials. It would have to be ratified by both sides before going into effect.

At the union it was said that the new employers' organization was composed of 175 manufacturers. This was disputed by Julius Hochman, chairman of the Dress Division of the local Joint Board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, who contended that only "several" employers had joined the group dealing with the Left Wing organization.

"It is a family affair of the Communists," Mr. Hochman said.

URGES WIDER CHURCH WORK

Dr. Sunday Wants Lutherans to Aid in Elimination of War.

A plea for the Lutheran Church to take its part in world leadership looking toward the elimination of war and toward social betterment was made by Dr. William F. Sunday, pastor of St. James' Lutheran Church, before the Koinonia Monday afternoon. Dr. Sunday announced yesterday. The meetings of the Koinonia are not public. Dr. Sunday announced his resignation from St. James's last Sunday, to take effect next September, and explained that he was taking the step in order to devote himself to bringing the church into greater unity.

"The charitable works of the church are as important as ever," Dr. Sunday said, "but Christianity, to be practical, must extend beyond the community's institutions of mercy. It must enter the halls of our legislative bodies and the chambers of big business. Wars are not concocted in orphanages. In this modern experiment professional secretaries and moral reformers are gradually giving way to a mass leadership from within the church itself."

In discussing the unification of the Lutheran synods within the metropolitan area, Dr. Sunday expressed the belief that the leaders in these separate groups would carry the denomination to the point where "having thus vitalized its own resources, it will be our strongest Protestant force for evangelical Christianity in America."

The Film that is found by dental research to discolor teeth and foster serious tooth and gum disorders

Film on Teeth

How it acts—what it does

Film discolors teeth and then destroys them. Dentists urge a special way to remove it.

DENTAL science in studying the commoner tooth and gum disorders finds their chief source to be a coating on teeth known as film. Film, too, is the cause of dull discolored teeth.

Thus removing film from teeth is the first step in having gloriously white and healthier teeth. Dentists urge you to employ the special dentifrice known as Pepsodent.

Film—Its Dangers

Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel this film. It absorbs stains from food and smoking and turns white teeth dull. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays.

Film hardens into tartar. Germs by the millions breed in it. And germs, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Film must be removed each day. Ordinary brushing fails to do it successfully. So dentists urge the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent.

First, Pepsodent curdles film, then removes it in gentle safety to enamel. No other way will make teeth as sparkling white. Write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, or ask your druggist for full-size tube. Find out, without delay, how white your teeth really are.

$3,000,000 IS GIVEN TO HEBREW COLLEGE

Delegates at San Francisco Cheer Report of Progress Toward $5,000,000 Endowment.

$65,000 PLEDGED ON FLOOR

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12.—Aroused to a high degree of enthusiasm for Judaism and those institutions which advance its progress toward solidarity, delegates to today's session of the Council of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations pledged from the floor of the convention $65,000 toward the $5,000,000 fund being raised for the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati. They had been told that the fund had reached $2,807,088.

For more than an hour the delegates had listened to addresses by Adolph S. Ochs of New York City, chairman of the general committee engaged in raising the fund; Henry Morgenthau, international banker and former Ambassador to Turkey; Ludwig Vogelstein of New York City, chairman of the executive board of the council, and others.

The principal business of the session today was the report detailing progress in raising the fund, which must reach $4,000,000 by July 1 in order that the conditions imposed by Julius Rosenwald in connection with his $500,000 contribution may be met.

In reporting on the gifts for the college, Mr. Ochs said that in 1927 the fund was $691,742, and that on Feb. 1 it had been increased to $2,807,088, and the promises not yet placed in binding form would raise the sum to more than $3,000,000.

Cheers greeted the mention of various names and the sums contributed. Relatives of the late Jacob H. Schiff, himself a generous supporter of the college in his lifetime, subscribed a total of $500,000, represented by the widow, Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff, Mortimer L. Schiff and Mr. and Mrs. Felix Warburg.

As he read other names from the list, Mr. Ochs was interrupted by Mr. Vogelstein, who called attention to the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Ochs had given $200,000 to the fund and that Mr. Morgenthau had given $50,000.

Letter Explains Rosenwald Gift.

Mr. Ochs then read the terms of Rosenwald's gift proposal and said:

"Mr. Rosenwald's proposal has been accepted by the board of governors of the college. Mr. Rosenwald accompanies this gift with the following letter, which sets forth the spirit and purpose of his contribution:

January 20, 1929.

Dr. Julian Morgenstern, president Hebrew Union College.

Dear Mr. Morgenstern—Well-trained, modernly equipped young rabbis who are now filling pulpits in a number of our larger cities, the most of whom have been graduated from the Hebrew Union College, are demonstrating what a great advantage it is to have Jewish ideals intelligently interpreted so that they are understood by Jew and non-Jew, young and old.

Communities which have been benefited by having these younger American-trained men in their midst will readily testify to the desirability of having more of the same kind throughout the country.

To enable the college to still further increase its usefulness, I was glad to comply with Mr. Ochs's request to help toward securing greatly needed additional funds.

The response from others has been highly gratifying, and I hope within a short time the conditions upon which my contribution was made will be met.

With kindest regards, I am

Faithfully yours,
JULIUS ROSENWALD.

New Conditions Accepted.

"Mr. Rosenwald's belief is (and this we must all share with him) that if the Hebrew Union College renders worth-while service and makes itself indispensable to the future progress of Judaism each successive generation will provide amply for its needs," Mr. Ochs continued. "A majority of contributors to the new endowment fund (about $1,500,000) have generously signified their willingness to have their contributions governed by the Rosenwald conditions.

Schiff Family Gifts Acknowledged.

"Mr. Rosenwald's gift was speedily followed by others, equally significant and generous, namely, the increasing of their joint contribution of $100,000 to $250,000 by Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff, Mr. Mortimer L. Schiff and Mr. and Mrs. Felix Warburg, thus making the approximate total contribution of the Schiff family $500,000, for it is well known that the late Jacob H. Schiff was one of the most generous supporters of the college during his lifetime.

"The Schiff family gift was soon followed by the Guggenheim family making their joint gift also $500,000. The following letter accompanied the contribution of the Messrs. Guggenheim, and sets forth their inspiring understanding of the Hebrew Union College:

Jan. 21, 1929.

Adolph S. Ochs, Chairman, Hebrew Union College Endowment Fund Committee,

Dear Mr. Ochs:

You have suggested that the gifts we are making to the Hebrew Union College endowment, through the committee of which you are chairman, aggregating $500,000, should be accompanied by some statement from us of the reasons which prompted our donation.

We think this college is an institution of which Hebrews generally throughout the United States, without distinction, may be united in feeling justly proud, considering that it is the oldest Jewish theological seminary in America and the largest reform Jewish seminary in the world and that it has proved its worth as an enlightened educational centre by a half century of fruitful work and distinguished accomplishment.

It is so eminently fitted, in our estimation, to preserve and perpetuate the great tradition of Hebrew culture and scholarship, and to expound and propagate the truths of that ancient faith which from the beginning has proclaimed the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, that we have felt it to be a special privilege, no less than a simple duty, by contributing to its maintenance, to identify ourselves with the high ideals it serves and exemplifies.

Faithfully yours,
DAVID GUGGENHEIM,
MURRY GUGGENHEIM,
SOLOMON GUGGENHEIM,
SIMON GUGGENHEIM.

Time Limits Called Challenge.

"These gifts, and the conditions governing them, namely: those of Mr. Rosenwald, limited as to time (July, 1929), and of Messrs. Guggenheim (Dec. 31, 1929), offer a challenge to us and to all American Israel, a challenge to complete this fund (for, in fixing these conditions, it is obviously the purpose of these donors to stimulate and expedite the completion of this fund) and to establish upon a firm basis the institution which, in fulfillment of the purpose of its founder, the Rev. Dr. Isaac M. Wise, and by all its subsequent development and history, is destined to be the foundation of reform Judaism in America; nay, of Judaism in America and even throughout the world.

"For it is becoming increasingly clear to all of us that in the face of this changing modern world, with its pressing needs and problems, Judaism must find authoritative interpretation and application if it is to bring the spiritual message this modern world requires, and which we believe it is Judaism's destined mission to bring.

"The Hebrew Union College must furnish both interpretation and interpreters of American progressive Judaism. It is the source from which inspiration and guidance must come to Judaism during the next generations. Therefore, it is now our sacred and responsible task to build this institution firmly, wisely and generously.

Vogelstein's Aid Praised.

"Without wishing to make any invidious distinction, I wish to acknowledge the inspiring and substantial helpfulness I have had constantly from Mr. Ludwig Vogelstein, who has not only given large sums to the endowment fund, the new library building and to all the activities of the college, but enthusiastically and indefatigably of his time and his wise counsel; and also to the Hon. Henry Morgenthau, who, with his wife, has contributed large sums, and has aided in the work of securing the endowment fund.

"I wish also to acknowledge the able assistance given in every effort in this work by Dr. Julian Morgenstern and Rabbi Zepin. With them it has been not only the performance of a duty but a labor of love.

"I wish to add that we have now fully $3,000,000 secured, and of the new subscriptions exceeding $2,500,000 no expense to the fund has been incurred. With the exception of the small expenditures incurred in the offices of the executives of the college and union, all clerical, stationery, postage and traveling expenses have been donated."

After Mr. Ochs had completed reading the report, Mr. Morgenthau said:

"This cause should have appeal to all. We have been given a great opportunity in this cause to show that we are of the woof and warp of America. We must do our full duty toward maintaining religion in this country. The Jew is going to be judged not by his commercial or other financial successes but by what we contribute to the spiritual welfare of the world. If we do not respect one another none will respect us. For real advancement we need more colleges."

Delegates Vote Appreciation.

The delegates, voting from the floor, adopted a resolution of commendation and appreciation of the efforts of Messrs. Ochs and Morgenthau and the generosity of Mr. Rosenwald, the Schiff family and the Guggenheim family.

The forenoon session was devoted to transaction of council business. Rabbi Jacob Nieto of San Francisco, reporting for the general committee, charged that because commercialism had entered the Church the Church must change its methods if it is to survive. He requested that a committee be appointed to consider a change in methods of teaching Bible history to the youthful members of the congregations, saying that "too many fairy stories are being told the children."

Others on the program were Professor Abraham Cronbach of the Hebrew Union College, whose subject was "A Historic Consideration of the Subject," and Dr. Samuel A. Goldsmith, executive director, Bureau of Social Research, New York, who spoke of "Modern Jewish Contributions to Social Betterment."

"Elijah," Mendelssohn's oratorio, with a chorus of sixty voices under direction of Cantor Reuben Rinder, was the feature of tonight's program. Cantor Rinder, reporting to-day for the music committee, urged that a commission be appointed to develop music at the Hebrew Union College.

SMITH ALUMNAE TO MEET.

Representatives of 11,000 Members Will Assemble Friday.

Special to The New York Times.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Feb. 12.—Representatives of the 11,000 Smith College alumnae will convene in Northampton from Friday to Monday at the midwinter meeting of the Alumnae Council.

The delegates, about 130 in all, include alumnae trustees, the board of directors of the Alumnae Association, one representative from each of the fifty classes, the president and treasurer of the Students Aid Society and two councilors at large, who are this year Miss Emmie Sebring and Mrs. Dorothy Elmhirst of New York.

The main topic of discussion at the meeting will be relations between schools and colleges. Kenneth O. Mason of Brown University will give an address on the "Selective Process of Admission." Miss Sebring, principal of St. Agatha School, will discuss the "Relation of the Private School to the College," and Miss Carolyn Swett of the Washington Irving High School will talk on "The Relation of Public School to the College."

WALKER IS RECOVERING.

Hopes to Go to City Hall Today Against Advice of Doctors.

The condition of Mayor Walker, who has been confined to his bed for the past two days with the grip, was improved last night.

Although his physician has ordered him to remain in bed for another day or so, the Mayor complained yesterday that he had too many important matters to attend to and informed his secretary, Charles S. Hand, that he would make an attempt to get to the City Hall today. His condition has not, at anythime, been regarded as serious.

HOOVER RETURNS HASTILY TO MIAMI

MAKES SWIFT AUTO TRIP

Reaching Belle Isle at Noon, He Tackles Work Preparatory to Tour of Florida Flood Zone.

By L. C. SPEERS.

Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 12.—Rough seas off the west coast of Florida, cold winds and other conditions which make deep sea fishing unprofitable caused President-elect Hoover to desert the tarpon grounds south of Fort Myers this morning. Accompanied only by Secret Service agents, he left the yacht Sauntерer before 8 o'clock and made a fast trip by automobile to his pre-inaugural residence at the Penney estate on Belle Isle.

Immediately on his arrival a few minutes after noon, he set to work to take care of the correspondence that had accumulated since Saturday, when he sailed on the Sauntерer for Fort Myers to take part in the celebration yesterday of Thomas A. Edison's eighty-second birthday.

Mr. Hoover's return to Belle Isle was entirely unexpected. But fish don't bite when the conditions are a combination of heavy seas and cold winds, and expert fisherman that he is, Mr. H er realized that to continue his program of two days' angling for tarpon would be just so much time wasted.

At the Belle Isle residence he found a stack of letters two feet high awaiting his attention. Having no appointments, he was able to devote practically the entire afternoon to the dictating of answers to scores of communications requiring personal attention. He received just one visitor, A. W. Shaw of Miami, with whom he briefly discussed the details of the inspection tour of the Everglades flood district which he is to make Friday and Saturday.

May Get Mississippi Data.

Major Gen. Edgar Jadwin, Chief of Engineers of the army, is expected to arrive here tomorrow or next day and will accompany Mr. Hoover on his tour. General Jadwin is also head of the commission charged with the carrying into effect of the Mississippi flood control project, a matter very close to the heart of the President-elect. It is certain that Mr. Hoover will want all the information he can get as to the progress of that work.

A report published in New York that Mr. Hoover has asked Thomas D. Campbell, a Montana wheat grower, to be Secretary of Agriculture was declared unfounded by members of Mr. Hoover's staff. Mr. Hoover is continuing his policy of silence as far as his Cabinet is concerned. He will neither affirm or deny the accuracy of the many reports that are daily in circulation as to decisions affecting his official family.

Mrs. Hoover did not return with Mr. Hoover. With Jeremiah Milbank and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rickard of New York she is returning on the Sauntерer, which is due to arrive at Belle Isle early tomorrow afternoon.

Urge Southerner in Hoover Cabinet.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 12 (AP).—Appointment of a Southerner to the Hoover Cabinet was asked in a resolution unanimously adopted today at the annual meeting of the Southern States Republican League. Such action, the resolution said, "will show due appreciation of the national importance of our social, economic and political problems, and is due the South for its Hoover electoral votes from nine Southern States, and because the South represents a quarter of the national area." The resolution was introduced by Miss Frances Youngblood of Birmingham, Ala., and is being forwarded to the President-elect.

CERTIFY ELECTION IN CONGRESS TODAY

Two Houses Will Join in Formal Ceremony of Recording Electoral Votes of States.

DAWES WILL HEAD SESSION

After Poll Is Taken Vice President Will Announce Nation's Choice of Hoover and Curtis.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Herbert Hoover of California and Charles Curtis of Kansas will be "officially" elected President and Vice President of the United States at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

At that hour the Senate will join with the House in the constitutional ceremony of counting the electoral votes of the States, following which Vice President Dawes will announce that the result is deemed, under the Constitution, sufficient declaration of the election and that the results will be entered upon the journals of both houses.

The ceremony, which ordinarily consumes about forty minutes, will begin when the Secretary and Sergeant at Arms of the Senate enter the House of Representatives preceding two page boys carrying large sealed boxes containing the electoral votes.

Behind the boys will walk the Republican and Democratic Assistant Sergeants at Arms, then Vice President Dawes with President pro-tempore Moses. Next in order will be Assistant Majority Leader Watson and Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, and Senators Shortridge and King, the Senate tellers. Senators Warren and Simmons, senior Senators, will follow, with the rest of the Senate in the order of seniority.

Mr. Dawes will take charge of the ceremony, with Speaker Longworth seated beside him. As customary, Mr. Dawes will admonish members of Congress and spectators against demonstrations of "approval or disapproval" in the face of a "solemn and important duty under the Constitution."

Then Senators Shortridge and King, with the House tellers, Representatives Gifford of Massachusetts and Jeffers of Alabama, will present themselves at the Speaker's desk.

The Vice President will hand the certificates of the Alabama electors to a teller, who will gravely assert that the electoral vote of that State appears to be "regular in form and authentic," and that it appears that Alfred E. Smith and Joseph T. Robinson, the Democratic candidates (for whom Alabama voted in November) each received twelve votes.

This form will be repeated as the States' votes are taken up alphabetically.

After the State results have been announced Mr. Dawes will ask the tellers to make the additions. This done, they will hand him the result, which he will announce.

The Senate will march back to its chamber, where it will be called to order and the result officially communicated to it.

Then Mr. Hoover and Mr. Curtis will have been duly elected.

CITY BREVITIES.

Plans for the campaign for $350,000 for a new building for the East Harlem Health Centre will be discussed at a luncheon at the Hotel Theresa tomorrow. Health Commissioner Wynne, Representative LaGuardia and Judge Cotillo will speak.

Robert W. Bruere will speak on "Whither Industry?" Monday at the first of a series of luncheons arranged by the Women's Trade Union League at the Town Hall Club.

David Bloch, former mayor of Tel-Aviv, Palestine, was honored by the members of the Bronx reception committee of the Palestine Labor Delegation at a dinner last night in Hollywood Gardens, 896 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx.

More than 600 members of the Democratic party attended the annual dinner and dance of the Cowanesque Democratic Club of the Seventeenth Assembly District last night at the Hotel Astor.

The annual dinner of the Fordham Merchants' Association was held last night at the Concourse Plaza Hotel. M. P. Stein, president of the association, presided.

For Colds—

HOW many people you know end their colds with Bayer Aspirin! How often you've heard of its quick relief of sore throat and tonsilitis. No wonder millions use these tablets to conquer colds, neuralgia, rheumatism; and the aches and pains that go with them. The wonder is that anyone still worries through a winter without them! Friends have told you Bayer Aspirin is marvelous; doctors have declared its action quite harmless, and has no effect whatever on the heart. Every druggist has it, with proven directions. Why not put it to the test?

Steady Nerves

Investigators find

Report shows that busy people everywhere are turning to Tareytons

Men and women say they can smoke all they want without feeling it

How FAST the news spreads!

Men and women in all walks of life.

That's the verdict of a nation wide cigarette poll. An unbiased investigation to search out the facts behind Tareyton's sensational rise to cigarette fame.

From New York . . . Chicago . . . San Francisco. From Doctors . . . Lawyers . . . Engineers. Everywhere investigators went, they got the same reports.

"We smoke Tareytons—we need Steady Nerves. We must keep fit. The pace of modern life demands it."

In the light of this evidence won't you switch to Tareytons for 7 days?

Smoke all you want . . . but smoke nothing else.

Then check up on the results. Note the difference in the way you feel.

See if your nerves aren't steadier.

Remember . . . Tareyton is what you ask for . . . smoke no other brand for 7 days.

AFTER A FAST CANTER—Miss Roberta M. Bayley of Philadelphia stops to light a cigarette. When asked about which brand she uses, Miss Bayley said, "I can't afford to take a chance with my nerves. Of course, I smoke . . . but only Tareytons . . . I can rely on them to keep me in fit condition." Surely that's sound advice for smokers to follow.

1. Humidor Package. 2. Heavy Foil. 3. Quality Tobaccos. 4. Sealed Perforated Top. That's why there's no dryness . . . no crushing. The extra heavy foil used in Tareyton's famous humidor package assures you a fresh full-flavored smoke down to the last cigarette.

HONORED BY MRS. COOLIDGE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. — Miss Hazel Arth, who six months ago was a choir singer of Washington, today stood in front of the First Lady of the Land in the Blue Room of the White House and received from her a gold decoration proclaiming the young contralto to be the foremost amateur vocalist of the United States.

In behalf of the Atwater Kent Foundation of Philadelphia Mrs. Coolidge pinned upon Miss Arth, in the presence of a group of her friends, the medal which she received by virtue of winning first place in the girls' division of the National Radio Audition of 1928, a contest in which upward of 60,000 young amateur singers participated and in which Donald Novis of Pasadena, Cal., won first place in the boys' division. Miss Arth had already received the cash first prize of $5,000 and a guarantee of two years' scholarship in music.

What It Means to Be "Away Over in Brooklyn"

The St. George is closer to Times Square in running time than 125th Street. . . .

You can get from Times Square to the St. George before you can reach High Bridge or 162nd Street on a train out of Grand Central.

The St. George is high on aristocratic Brooklyn Heights. The Clark Street Express Station (7th Avenue Interboro Subway) is right in the building. The upper stories command a sweeping panorama of the Upper Bay, Governor's Island, the Statue of Liberty, the Lower Manhattan skyline and the East River bridges.

The St. George provides first class, modern accommodations for much less than you can get them elsewhere. That, plus its remarkable accessibility, has enabled the St. George to grow from 30 rooms to New York's Fourth Largest Hotel—and soon it will be the largest.

THE PLAY

By J. BROOKS ATKINSON.

The Chorus Girl's Folly.

MY GIRL FRIDAY! A play in three acts. By William A. Grew. Staged by the author; produced by Schaabbe-Bacon, Inc. At the Republic Theatre.

Martha	Judson Langill
Frances Mordaunt	Lucilla Mendez
Shirley Winters	Alice Weaver
Harvey Travers	William Carey
Paul Manger	Bernard Randall
Jean Marcel	Esther Muir
John Hartwell	William A. Grew
Zazu	Sam Kim
Albert Whelan	Richard Sterling
Sidney Fulton	Robert Bentley
Marcel the Great	Ned Pendleton
Elizabeth Hartwell	Mabel Acker
Josephine Whelan	Louise Kelley

Boldly stripping the veils behind which the show business cringes in shame, William A. Grew has depicted the sulphurous horrors of a chorus girls' party in "My Girl Friday," which jibbered on the stage of the Republic last evening. It is drivel, unless the standards have recently changed. For an act it sails an unsteady course through wine, woman and song, looking excruciatingly roguish, and for two acts it attracts indignant wives and belligerent husbands and lovers to the scene of the crime and discusses blackmail in high vocal tones. Some time ago it had the scarlet title of "Undressed Kid." The bathing suits, the articles of intimate apparel, are still introduced as evidences of rollicking humor.

When it is not tittering over the unhallowed pleasures of two married men and a Wall Street broker on what it describes as a "Roman orgy," it fires a resounding salute in honor of the chorus girl's virtue. John Hartwell, backer of "Lovers' Moon," orders his manager to send three girls down to his country place to amuse himself and two guests. Oh, Zazu," he buzzes at his Oriental butler, "dinner and plenty of wine." Things take such a turn, however, that presently the dialogue veers to "You filty beast," and "Harry Travers, don't go too far!" After that "My Girl Friday," being in a state of hysteria, passes from bedroom farce into stentorian melodrama and concludes with a noble gesture toward the vilely slandered chorus profession. For John Hartwell, alarmed by the proportions his folly has assumed and relieved to know that he has not been as sinful as he supposed, presents his luxurious country estate as a free asylum to chorus girls, where henceforth they may recuperate in bucolic bliss, after the cyclone of iniquities along Broadway.

To give his play a touch of verisimilitude, Mr. Grew not only acts in it himself, with modest manliness, but employs the revealing charms of three chorus girls to impersonate shame in bathing suits. In addition to "My Girl Friday," Mr. Grew has written "The Sap" and "The Mating Season." He seems still to be among the apprentices.

SIR NIGEL PLAYFAIR SCORES THEATRE GUILD

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Sir Nigel Playfair, London's most successful reviver of old-time plays, is horrified. He has just discovered the New York Theatre Guild's version of Ben Jonson's "Volpone," and, after reading it, can scarcely control his indignation. In The London Times tomorrow Sir Nigel's wrath will boil over into half a column of type ridiculing the version, "freely adapted" by Stefan Zweig, "translated" by Ruth Langner, the whole whereof Sir Nigel says he has thrown into the waste-basket.

"Will Shakespeare be translated into American?" blurts Sir Nigel, who is ordinarily a mild person. "This question isn't—believe me—a gratuitous insult hurled at the heads of our cousins who have subscribed so generously to rebuilding the theatre in Stratford-on-Avon. It arises from a suspicion which—alas—cannot by any means be dismissed as altogether groundless.

"For there is now being given with overwhelming success—and so far as I know without protest—by the Theatre Guild in New York a free adaptation of a masterpiece of Shakespeare's contemporary nearest rival, Ben Jonson. And don't forget, please, that this same guild has long been held up to us poor London strugglers by leading dramatic critics as a shining example of energy hand in hand with enlightenment."

Resorting to the deadly parallel, Sir Nigel first quotes lines from the Theatre Guild version, then quotes the famous passage of "Poor clumsy pedant's own writing, unadapted, untranslated—before it is condemned to everlasting oblivion."

He concludes with a sigh, "I know I am insular, but really I know that passage isn't too bad. Requiescat in pace."

POST PLANS REVIVAL.

Actor to Appear in March in "A Message From Mars."

Guy Bates Post, who has not appeared in New York since he acted "The Masquerader" more than ten years ago, will presently be seen here in a revival of "A Message from Mars", with which the late Charles Hawtrey was so long identified. The revival, which is being presented by Herbert Standing, brother of Sir Guy Standing, is due in New York the middle of next month.

Mr. Post, since he last acted here, has played in Australia, South Africa and England, presenting "The Masquerader," "The Climax", and other plays. Last season he returned to New York long enough to produce an English mystery play here, but did not appear himself in the cast.

"A Message from Mars," which was written by Richard Ganthony, was first produced in London thirty years ago, and was first played in New York in 1901. It was Hawtrey's most celebrated rôle, and he revived the play at intervals throughout his career.

CHEVALIER DEBUT MONDAY.

French Revue Actor to Appear in Ziegfeld "Midnight Frolic."

Maurice Chevalier, one of the most celebrated of French revue artists, will make his first public appearance in this country next Monday night, in the Ziegfeld "Midnight Frolic" on the New Amsterdam roof. Chevalier, who came to this country several months ago, has been making motion pictures on the Coast. His appearance in the Ziegfeld revue will be by arrangement with the Paramount Company.

Chevalier, who sings in English as well as French, is almost as popular in London as he is in Paris. Several efforts have been made in recent seasons to persuade him to appear in New York productions.

POLYNESIAN LIFE SHOWN.

RA-MU: CHILDREN OF THE SUN, produced by Captain Edward A. Salisbury. Hats Off, with Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy. A tribute to Baron Gunther von Huenefeld, prepared for the theatre by Pathé. Pathe Review, edited by Terry Ramsaye. Killing the Killer, UFA novelty. Fifth Avenue Playhouse.

Pleasant education is evidently the objective of this week's program at the Fifth Avenue Playhouse, where "Ra-Mu: Children of the Sun" is to be seen. This picture, taken in the Marquesas and Samoan groups of the South Pacific Ocean by Captain Edward A. Salisbury, gives graphic representation to the folkways of Polynesia.

According to the program, "Ra-Mu" reveals the decay of a civilization that reached its apex some 15,000 years ago, when the South Pacific was not an ocean, but a continent—the continent of Mu. Once upon a time the inhabitants of Polynesia were legion; today they number only a few thousand, and they are fast dying off. The management of the Fifth Avenue Playhouse, by way of providing statistical background for "Ra-Mu," informs the audience that the missionaries who forced the natives to wear Mother Hubbards and shirt are to blame for much of the debâcle. The Polynesians have not been used to clothes, it says; consequently, when their garments get damp, and the wind blows on them, colds, pneumonia and consumption follow. Such inhabitants of the Samoan and Marquesan islands as have survived the regimen of the white man are shown in "Ra-Mu." They are depicted swimming, cooking breadfruit, laughing and dancing. Their one tragedy is the spectre of decimation.

Other pictures at the Fifth Avenue include the thrilling UFA subject in which the mongoose and the cobra fight it out to a finish. The history of the Police Gazette is told in the Pathé Review, edited by Terry Ramsaye. There is good slap-stick in "Hats Off," with Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy employing their craniums as animated hat-racks.

PLANS SOUND STUDIO HERE.

Universal Considers Site for News Reel Production.

The report from Los Angeles that Universal Pictures was contemplating building a stage for the production of sound movies in New York was confirmed here yesterday by Paul Gulick, publicity director.

Mr. Gulick amplified the report by stating that the sound stage would only be intended for making sound news reels, as Universal already has a plant for sound feature films at Universal City, which was built at a cost of $1,000,000.

He added that, as New York was the logical centre for the distribution of news reels, Universal expected to acquire a plant for making sound news reels here in the near future. One site which is being considered is on West Forty-fifth Street, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues, and the other on West Twenty-fifth Street, near the North River. He also said the company was considering the feasibility of equiping its Fort Lee studio for sound news reel production.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The negro play "Harlem" is scheduled to open here on Thursday night of next week. The theatre is not named.

"Airways, Inc.," will open at the Grove Street Theatre next Wednesday, instead of Tuesday.

Dorothy Sands will join Albert Carroll and Carola Goya in their Sunday night recitals at the Theatre Masque. She will make her first appearance next Sunday.

Eleanor Woodruff and Donald Dillaway have been engaged for "Flight," coming to the Longacre next week.

Nydia Westman has joined the cast of "Jonesy," for which Donald Meek and Josephine Hull already have been announced. The play will open in Atlantic City next Monday.

"Indiscretion" is now scheduled to open here the first week in March. It is the work of Myron C. Fagan.

The cast of "The Suicide Club," which Murray Phillips has put into rehearsal, will be headed by Gavin Muir. The play, which is based on Robert Louis Stevenson's story, is due here about March 25.

of striking figure—well proportioned and lithesome. Shapely and finely poised was her head. Her face was oval and long. Delicately and finely chiseled was every feature. Greatest of her charms was a pure white complexion. Her eyes were large and gray—sort of a violet grayish blue—innocent, candid and sweet in expression. Abundant chestnut hair which she wore most becomingly lent her a queenly appearance. Her voice was rich, cordial and winning.

Such beauty could not remain long unnoticed. The one who was generally credited with bringing her before English society was Sir George Chetwynd. According to another account it was Lord Ranelagh who gave her a start in society by introducing her to Lady Sebright.

Whatever the means, in a surprisingly short time she was the toast of the town, and acknowledged as the most beautiful woman in England. Millais painted her portrait, which was hung at a Royal Academy exhibition and catalogued, "A Jersey Lily," the appelation which soon became so famous. Watts and Poynter also painted her portrait, and Burne-Jones included her twice, profile and full face, in his picture, "The Golden Stair." Millions of photographs of her were sold. Her peculiar way of twisting her hair at the nape of her neck was known as "the Langtry."

Of course, she had met the Prince of Wales. More than that, she had become the reigning beauty of his set. Edward Langtry had faded into the background, and was seldom, if ever, invited to the Prince of Wales's parties. Mrs. Langtry's reign lasted three years, and ended as suddenly as it began.

Period of Her Ostracism.

Her husband did not have much money in his own right, and they were living very extravagantly. Soon they were heavily in debt, with creditors beseiging their doors. Then something happened which made the Prince, and therefore all London society, drop Mrs. Langtry.

Gossip of the time had it that she dropped a piece of ice down the Prince's back at a late supper in Marlborough House. However, there was no truth in the story, and Mrs. Langtry a few years ago took occasion to deny it in a book she wrote.

Snubbed by London society; turned out of her house by creditors, and seemingly at the end of her resources, she began the career which was to lift her to even greater heights than she had known before. A theatrical agent with an eye to the commercial value of such notoriety and beauty as hers, persuaded her to go on the stage.

She made a tentative first appearance in November, 1881, at Twickenham, in "A Fair Encounter," and in the following month appeared at the Haymarket Theatre, London, as Kate Hardcastle in "She Stoops to Conquer." Later she appeared as Juliana in "The Honeymoon," Hester in "An Unequal Match" and Rosalind in "As You Like It."

Her acting at first was crude and amateurish, and the critics made no bones about saying so. Nevertheless the public flocked to see her, and it was not long before the inevitable American tour had been planned.

American Tour Successful.

It was a tremendous success from a financial point of view. She came here in October, 1882, under the management of Henry E. Abbey. As if the Fates were determined to give her the utmost publicity possible, Abbey's Park Theatre, at Broadway and Twenty-third Street, was burned down a few hours before she was to make her début there.

On Nov. 6 she opened at Wallack's Theatre in "An Unequal Match." Few kind words were wasted on her acting in the newspapers, with one exception, but the theatre was crowded at every future performance. The one newspaper which praised her did so in very extravagant terms, for the critic was none other than Oscar Wilde, one of her most ardent admirers, who was then in America on a lecture tour. "Lady Windermere's Fan" was written for her.

As a matter of fact, Mrs. Langtry's acting improved with experience. Her earnestness, her natural refinement of manner and her extraordinary beauty enhanced the acting skill she was able to acquire, and won her a reputation and a fortune that were well deserved.

She returned to America for acting tours in 1884, 1886, 1887 and 1889. Her principal plays were "As You Like It," "Cleopatra," "Esther Sandraz," "Lady Clancarty" and "Macbeth." The last play was a costly failure, her Lady Macbeth being, in the words of a contemporary critic, "an intelligent, well-studied portrayal without a touch of tragic power." Mrs. Langtry, however, was a shrewd business woman, and seldom appeared in failures. She was always her own manager.

Obtains California Divorce.

While in America her name was continually linked in public print and town talk with Frederick Gebhard, a society man and patron of racing. With him she bought a 7,500-acre ranch in California, which they called "Paradise," and used as a stud for race horses. During her residence there she finally obtained the divorce she had long been seeking from her husband, Edward Langtry. Twice before he had successfully contested her suit. The third time, on advice of his lawyers, he did not contest but announced that he would not recognize her divorce and would sue her for bigamy if she married again. The divorce was granted at Lakeport, Cal., on May 14, 1897, after Mrs. Langtry had been separated from her husband for fourteen years.

A year and a half later Edward Langtry died in the Asylum for the Insane, Chester, England, supposedly from a concussion of the brain, received in a fall.

Mrs. Langtry at that time was in England, giving most of her time to her racing stable, which was said to have been even finer than that of the Prince of Wales. She had by that time regained her place in London society. Although 43 years old, she retained much of her former beauty and was still very popular on the stage. Her private life was still a source of gossip, but very little about it was actually known and it was her habit at all times to ignore the tales told about her.

She was a heavy gambler on the turf, and a rather lucky one. When her famous Australian horse, Merman, won the Cesarewitch Stakes in 1898, Mrs. Langtry was said to have profited to the amount of $200,000. She was her own manager and was known as a horsewoman of excellent judgment.

For several years after having broken with Gebhard, she was seen often with Squire Abingdon Baird, who was said to have spent $500,000 on her in two years. At the time of her divorce, and also when her husband died and she was free to remarry, the name most frequently mentioned was that of Prince Paul Esterhazy. However, the man she did marry, suddenly and secretly, was Hugo Gerald de Bathe, the eldest son of Sir Henry Percival de Bathe, Bart. The family was one of the oldest and wealthiest in Great Britain. Sir Hugo was 28 years old and Mrs. Langtry 47 at the time. They were married in the Church of St. Saviour's Island, Jersey, on July 27, 1899, the same day on which her horse Merman won the Goodwood Stakes.

Mrs. Langtry announced that neither her racing nor her stage career would be interrupted by her marriage, and she was true to her word. For nearly twenty years more she was seen on the stage. In January, 1907, she came here for another of her many tours, and while playing in vaudeville in Cincinnati learned that her father-in-law had died, making her husband a baronet and her Lady de Bathe.

Five years later she returned to this country for a vaudeville tour, still looking surprisingly young and attractive, though nearly 60 years old. Her last trip to America was for another vaudeville engagement in 1915. She had sold her New York home on Twenty-third Street, the former Beach Grant mansion, some years previously.

Spent Last Years on Riviera.

About ten years ago Lady de Bathe gave up both her stage career and her racing stable, and since had spent much of her time on the Riviera, where she and her husband maintained separate homes. The only recent prominent mention of her name publicly occurred two years ago, when Captain Peter Wright, in making certain scandalous statements about the late former Prime Minister William Ewart Gaidstone, said she had been unduly friendly with him. Lady de Bathe immediately telegraphed Mr. Gladstone's son, who was suing Captain Wright for libel, repudiating the story.

In 1925 she published a book of memoirs called "The Days I Knew." That, and a novel called "All at Sea," were her only writings.

Lady de Bathe had one child, Jeanne Langtry, now Lady Malcolm, who was born in 1881, and whose first husband was Captain Arthur Hill, son of Lord Arthur Hill, and her second, Ian Malcolm.

LADY DE BATHE,
More Widely Known as Lily Langtry, From a Photograph Taken When She Was at Height of Stage Career.

HER DEATH MOURNED HERE.

Theatre Managers Pay Homage to Mrs. Langtry's Beauty and Ability.

The death of Lily Langtry brought expressions of regret from various New York theatrical persons. Several of them follow:

E. F. ALBEE—I learned with great regret of the death of Lily Langtry. She was a wonderful woman. I managed her vaudeville tour on three different occasions, first when she opened at the Fifth Avenue Theatre some twenty or thirty years ago. I found her a person of rare ability, womanly, gracious and with a thorough knowledge of the world. With it all she was as simple and sweet as any woman I ever met or had dealings with.

OTIS SKINNER—I always admired Mrs. Langtry for her great beauty, and regret to hear of her death. Many years ago I had the pleasure of calling upon her in Washington to see about a part in her company.

FRITZ WILLIAMS, Shepherd of the Lambs—I had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Langtry when I was a young man. I was greatly charmed by her personality and beauty and I, along with all members of the Lambs, greatly regret her passing.

MORRIS GEST—I once traveled especially from Vienna to London to see her play. I had more respect and admiration for her than for any other actress in England.

LEE SHUBERT—I had met Mrs. Langtry, although she was never under my management. She was a beautiful woman and a fine actress, and I am sorry to hear of her death.

MME. GANNA WALSKA SINGS FOR NEW YORK

HAD A BRILLIANT AUDIENCE

Many Encores, One That Provoked a Smile—A Pleasing, Natural Voice Marred by Deficiencies.

By OLIN DOWNES.

Mme. Ganna Walska, pending her approaching return to Europe, elected to give a song recital yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall. The occasion assembled an audience of a character and proportion which no mere singer, however gifted, could have hoped to gather together.

This audience was brilliant somewhat in the French sense of the word: in its brilliant and curious assortment of people, many of them distinguished in other affairs, who have nothing to do with music and who seldom or never attend a song recital. It is true that these did not constitute the only element present. Most of the singers, including leading members of the Metropolitan Opera Company, were there, come to deprecate the triumph or enjoy the disaster of a famous and beautiful woman whose obsessing ambition it is to sing. The audience waited agog for Mme. Walska. It welcomed her with expectant applause. During the recital it listened, for the greater part, in courteous but unencouraging silence, save for a minor and friendly contingent that gave all possible encouragement to the lioness of the afternoon.

Garbed in a simple and charming costume of white, Mme. Walska sang the aria with flute obbligato from Bach's "coffee" cantata; the aria, "Heart Ever Faithful," from another Bach cantata; Giordano's "Caro mio ben," Scarlatti's "Le Violette"; a Mozart group, consisting of the "Veilchen," the Wiegenlied," and the aria, "Moto di gioja" from "The Marriage of Figaro"; a group by Schubert, Schumann and Brahms, and a final group by Rimsky-Korsakoff, Liszt, Niewiadowski. Also, with atrocious taste, she sang as an encore Liza Lehmann's "If No One Ever Marries Me," while her husband listened in a box.

There were many other encores, not so significant of the nature of the occasion as this one. All the world and his wife listened, and departed satisfied that they knew what kind of singer Ganna Walska was.

For the greater part of this program Mme. Walska, coming to New York from a $5,000 audience in Chicago and much réclame in that city and in smaller places, did almost everything that a singer with a vicious technical method could and should not do. Her upper tones were hard and most of them off pitch. Her attack was uncertain, scooping. Her tone was poorly focused and unsteady, so that at times and gratuitously, where the composer did not intend it, she produced a trill. Some tones were pinched and hard; others were soft and well-nigh inaudible. There was poor and unreliable "breath support." Phrases were chopped. One or two of them, as if by accident and in the trepidation of the moment, were joined together where this was not strictly necessary.

These are matters which it is necessary to relate in a review of a concert in a daily paper. The effect of such singing was not enhanced by the unfortunate and obvious nervousness of the performer, by the hitching of her shoulders and certain involuntary gestures by which she betrayed inadequate control of her vocal resources and the tension under which she was laboring. This was the more regrettable, since Mme. Walska is ambitious and industrious; her voice is not without pleasing quality; nor is she, as some have claimed, devoid of musical sensibility and feeling.

She showed inherent musicality, and a voice which might have been the fitting instrument of artistic expression in, for example, the "Nussbaum" of Schubert, and in other songs of the German group which she unintentionally mistreated—mistreated the more unfortunately in view of her obviously honorable interpretive intent. In the earlier part of the program there had been almost no suggestion or communication of genuine feeling. Here was emotion, feebly conveyed, nevertheless present, as also the thought of differentiation of sentiment and style. The "Nussbaum" had an approach to tone color, and its expression was not exaggerated. Not many singers are capable of its simplicity.

It was a pity that the technical deficiencies of the performance irretrievably marred the musical effect; that it was impossible for the singer to attain the rhythm, the tempo, the etched phrase and the significant text necessary for "Die Post," or, in another vein, "Die Forelle," and that the shrewd and mocking maiden of Brahms's "Vergebliches Ständchen" sang so persistently out of tune.

Why, after all, should Mme. Walska, whose resources and opportunities for study are unlimited, and who is also known to labor unceasingly for advancement in the singing art, remain so far from the achievement which she so greatly desires?

She is by no means without a voice. Her voice is not a large one, but originally, at least, it had quality of a sort which would have served well for the interpretation of song, especially in halls of intimate dimensions. Musicianship is another matter, but musicianship is a thing that can be imitated if it cannot be acquired, and very often is successfully imitated, or memorised from intelligent coaches, by singers of no more substantial accomplishments in this direction than Mme. Walska. And we repeat: there were certain phrases yesterday which hinted at finer things than ever came out, and there was an approach to mood, even when it was conveyed with injustice to music and text.

The explanation lies probably in the impression received, of a singer who has never mastered the fundamentals of her task, and who has leaped for glory before it was sensible or prudent to do so. This, indeed, seems the only possible explanation of such bad singing, from a woman of Mme. Walska's characteristics and objectives. When a voice is not properly started and carefully and systematically developed, irretrievably bad habits ensue. They cannot be amended by desperately going ahead, but only by going back—if it is not too late to do so—and amending faulty beginnings. Some say that Mme. Walska's singing has improved in late seasons. It is also true that yesterday she was extremely nervous. A sound technic, however, corrects nervousness, while insecurity is the more disastrous in its presence. It is not easy to see how a singer with no better equipment than Mme. Walska can go any considerable distance in the direction of artistic interpretation. Long and strict apprenticeship is usually indispensable for that purpose, which is the tale and the moral of yesterday's recital.

Singers Who Heard Mme. Walska.

Emma Eames and Maria Jeritza were among the famous singers who attended Ganna Walska's performance in Carnegie Hall yesterday. Mme. Eames was recognized by old-time operagoers, while the present Metropolitan prima donna was easily seen in an orchestra chair in the front row.

An upper box was reserved for Mary Garden, who has been singing with the Chicago Civic Opera Company on tour in Boston, but Miss Garden was unable to appear and the box was occupied by her mother and sister.

Marion Talley was present with her sister, Florence Talley. Leonora Corona, after singing in yesterday's Metropolitan matinee, made a quick change and was at Carnegie Hall for half the concert.

Others were Alice Nielsen of the former Boston Opera Company; Mme. Marie Rappold, member of the Metropolitan under Conried, Gatti-Casazza's predecessor; Maria Gay and her husband, the former Hammerstein tenor, Zenatello; Gladys Axman of Gallo's San Carlo company, Hulda Lashanska, Gertrude Owen and many more.

Harold McCormick, husband of yesterday's singer, had as a box guest the Grand Duke Alexander of Russia, who with Adamo Didur, the Metropolitan basso, and several others had lunched with their host at the Ambassador before attending the matinee.

TO GIVE DOZEN OPERAS DURING NEXT WEEK

Metropolitan to Sing "Rheingold" for First Time This Season—Schumann-Heink as Erda.

For the Metropolitan's seventeenth week, a dozen operas are announced, beginning with "The Barber" in concert form next Sunday, sung by Morgana, Wakefield, Tedesco, Basiola, Malatesta and Pinza. There will be visits to Brooklyn and Philadelphia on Tuesday night, as well as Thursday afternoon "Rheingold" in the Wagner cycle and a special Friday matinee of "Aïda."

Mme. Schumann-Heink returns as Erda in the season's first "Rheingold," with Kappel, Mueller, Kirchhoff and Schorr. Among those in "Aïda on Washington's Birthday will be Corona, Branzell, Lauri-Volpi and Ruffo.

"Pelleas et Melisande" will be sung next Monday, with Bori and Johnson; Wednesday "Hansel" and "Cavalleria," with Fleischer, Mario, Easton, Tokatyan and Tibbett; Thursday, "Tales of Hoffman," Morgana, Corona, Bori, Tokatyan and Rothier; Friday, "Romeo et Juliette," Moore and Johnson.

A Saturday matinee revival of "Freishchuetz" will engage Mueller, Fleischer, Laubenthal and Bohnen and the week will end on Saturday night, Feb. 23, with "Lucia" and a cast headed by Lerch and Jagel.

DEBUT OF UNA BATES.

Young English Soprano Gives a Recital in Town Hall.

Una Bates, a young English soprano, made her New York début yesterday afternoon in the Town Hall. The singer's small, clear voice, well-placed in its upper register but of little substance or color in the middle and lower ranges, was heard to best advantage in music calling for smooth and fluent delivery, rather than emotional expressiveness. Of the latter quality there was little evidence, either in the opening classic group of Bach and Mozart airs, or the German and modern French and English songs that constituted the remainder of a well-arranged and interesting program.

This comprised Bach's "Bist du bei mir," the familiar air from Mozart's "Il Re Pastore," with violin obbligato played by Leslie Taylor; Schumann's "Meine Rose" and "Volksliedchen," Brahm's "Lerchengesang" and "Ständchen," Szulc's "Clair de Lune," Ravel's "Le Martin Pecheur" and "D'Anne jouant de l'espinette," Fourdrain's "Les Mouettes," Erlanger's "Carnaval," Arnold Bax's "Christmas Carol," Michael Head's "Green Cornfield," Clive Carey's "Love in My Heart" Stanford's "Fairy Lough" and Quilter's "Blackbird's Song." Lester Hodges was the accompanist.

CORONA REJOINS OPERA.

Leonora Corona, latest to rejoin the opera on Broadway, received a personal welcome on her first entrance in "Cavalleria" yesterday at the Metropolitan's crowded holiday performance here. A matinee double bill was put forward to 1:45 o'clock, and "Pagliacci" ended the afternoon in a rush for the train that took the company to sing "Aïda" in Philadelphia last evening.

Tokatyan and Tibbett, Bourskaya and Falco shared with the new Santuzza, in eight curtain calls after Mascagni's opera. Miss Corona acted the melodramatic heroine with spirit and sang with musical quality of tone and phrasing. Bori and Martinelli, De Luca, Bada and Marshall were the "Pagliacci" cast, again sharing eight or nine enthusiastic recalls. Mr. Bellezza conducted both operas.

GEST REBUKES NEWARK.

Producer Applauded for Scoring Lack of Interest in "Redemption."

Morris Gest took the stage of the Broad Street Theatre in Newark on Monday night after the opening performance of Alexander Moissi in "Redemption" in that city and rebuked Newark residents for not having attended the performance in larger numbers. He said he had been persuaded to bring the production to Newark by the pleadings of a Newark newspaper owner, whose name he did not mention, and that he had booked the play there only to prove that the publisher had been mistaken.

Mr. Gest, Broadway learned yesterday, after hailing Moissi as an actor greater than John Barrymore, declared that the cost of presenting "Redemption" in Newark for a single night was about $3,000 and that the gross receipts Monday night had been $620. The producer was vigorously applauded by the audience.

READING US WRONG.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON was said by TALLEYRAND to have "divined Europe," although he had never been there. But Europe today is not having very good luck in divining the United States. Despite the immensely quickened means of communication for both travelers and ideas, the press and public men of the Continent are often sadly misled by news from America. Perhaps the best recent instance is the enthusiastic welcome given abroad to the Capper resolutions.

It is not a case of wrongly interpreting their purpose, but of completely misjudging the outlook for their adoption by the United States. Between their proposal and their acceptance many Europeans seem to have believed that there would be only the shortest interval and no difficulty at all. Even so well-versed and cosmopolitan a man as the former editor of The London Times, Mr. STEED, cried out: "God bless Senator CAPPER." But the Kansas Senator will need a great deal of human as well as heavenly aid before he can get his project even discussed, not to speak of its being favored, by the Senate. President COOLIDGE has let it be known that he thinks the young Lochinvar from Kansas wishes to ride faster and further than is wise. This announcement must cause much rubbing of eyes in Europe. There it appears to have been inferred that Senator CAPPER was speaking for both the administration and Congress, and that the ink on his resolutions would scarcely be dry before they became the policy and the law of the United States.

Another foreign misreading of our present national temper may be observed in the proceedings of the committee of experts on German reparations. They began by cabling their "homage" to General DAWES. Then they proceeded to elect as chairman an American, Mr. OWEN YOUNG, who did not wish to take the position, but finally agreed to do so. The intended compliment to the United States was both obvious and graceful. But behind it lay a sort of tacit expectation that by such a gratification of American pride our government might be led to change its consistent and stubborn attitude toward the war debts owed to our Treasury by various European nations. If any such illusion is really entertained, it probably will be dispelled by our own experts. They would not be expert in American politics, as well as in American finance, if they did not disabuse their European colleagues of any such mistaken impression.

Confessedly, nothing is harder for the public men of one nation to understand than the political psychology of another. Germany in 1914 gave a glaring example of this. But it is easy for other countries to be as deeply at fault in trying to read the mind of an alien people. Misunderstandings of this sort between England and the United States, and between both of them and France, crop up surprisingly. Rash and ill-founded predictions of what one will do find currency in the others. Even in his own country, a prophet needs to walk warily! It is wisest for him to heed the Yankee advice never to prophesy at all, "onless ye know." However, it does not take extensive knowledge of things American to assure our friends in Europe that they will have to wait long before they see their debts to America canceled or the Capper resolutions adopted. There are many big things in the United States, and one of the biggest is political inertia. To shake us out of that, in any given public matter, requires much time and labor.

FOR THE TRIBOROUGH BRIDGE.

Of all the public improvements in and about Manhattan now under discussion as means for traffic relief the Triborough Bridge project seems to have the widest support. Many civic bodies favor it, and it has behind it the weight of expert and disinterested authority. It is no doubt for these reasons, among others, that Mr. MCKEE, president of the Board of Aldermen and chairman of the Board of Estimate's special committee to sift departmental requests for corporate stock and tax notes, has announced that he will urge an immediate appropriation of $3,000,000 for beginning the construction of the bridge at once. This does not dispose of other plans, like the proposed Thirty-eighth Street tunnel, which the Fifth Avenue Association and other organizations would like to see pushed at the same time. Nor does it foreclose the important question how these public improvements are to be financed. There is a difference of opinion in the Board of Estimate on that score, Mayor WALKER inclining toward a bridge and tunnel "authority," Mr. MCKEE prefers the forthright issue of corporate stock, with perhaps occasional aid from the budget.

In announcing his stand on the Triborough Bridge Mr. MCKEE made it clear that he is definitely opposed to its private financing. There again he may come into conflict with the Mayor, who has frequently expressed the view that certain public improvements will have to be financed by private funds. That should be only a last resort. There may be communities so poor or remote or with their credit so limited that they must call on private capital to build their highway bridges for them, but New York is in no such desperate straits. If it can afford to spend thirty or forty million dollars a year subsidizing the five-cent fare it can certainly afford to spend five millions a year building the Triborough Bridge. If necessary, it can always fall back on tolls. Why should they go into the pockets of a private contractor?

ANTARCTIC TITLES.

The validity of Great Britain's claim to certain sub-Antarctic islands and to most of the explored Antarctic Continent is brought into question by the dispute between Argentina and the British Government over the South Orkney Islands. The controversy has gone on for a year. A British warship is on her way to the South Orkneys to make a practical demonstration of British title to land on which the Argentine Government has for a considerable time maintained meteorological and wireless stations. A permit could have been obtained from Great Britain, but that would have amounted to recognition of title. Argentina's case is that she not only long ago claimed the South Orkneys, but has occupied them. Great Britain calls it "squatter" occupation. Within a week after taking office President IRIGOYEN published the correspondence with the British Government.

In February, 1904, the Argentine Government succeeded to the meteorological station erected by the Scottish Antarctic Expedition on one of the islands and raised the Argentine flag. "I presume," wrote Dr. RUDMOSE BROWN, a member of the expedition, "the South Orkneys "are looked upon as a possession of "that Power." On July 4, 1908, the King in Council granted Letters Patent under the Great Seal providing for the government of South Georgia, the South Orkneys, the South Shetlands, the Sandwich group and Graham Land as dependencies of the Falkland Islands. Unfortunately, the geographers advising the Council led it into a blunder. The preamble described the "lands" as "situated in the South Atlantic "Ocean to the south of the fiftieth "parallel of south latitude and lying "between the twentieth and eighty-"tieth degrees of west longitude." In fact, the fiftieth parallel cuts through Patagonia. Thereupon the Argentine and Chilean Governments protested, but it was not until March 28, 1917, that other Letters Patent rectified the error, fixing latitude 58 south as the northern limit of British territory between 50 degrees and 80 degrees west longitude. The Falkland Islands were not in the revised area, but the seat of government remained there. The only one of the dependencies occupied is South Georgia, whose population in 1926 was 1,895. The other dependencies are not regularly occupied, with the exception of the South Orkneys if the Argentine Government can prove the occupation required by international law.

Thus, from a British point of view, Commander BYRD is now exploring on British ice or soil, for on July 30, 1923, an Order in Council declared "the Ross Sea sector of the Antarc-"tic a British dependency under the "jurisdiction of the Governor Gen-"eral and Commander-in-Chief of "the Dominion of New Zealand." In 1841 Admiral ROSS asserted title by discovery to the continental land and islands which he charted, and Sir ERNEST SHACKLETON formally declared to be British the land he discovered on his first expedition. King Edward VII Land, Victoria Land (including the magnetic pole) and King George V Land are claimed to be British.

According to LAWRENCE'S "Principles of International Law," formal annexation by flag and proclamation does not create title. There must follow "the actual establishment of a "civilized administration and civil-"ized inhabitants upon the territory "in question and their continuous "presence thereon." Can Argentina qualify by maintaining a meteorological station on one of the South Orkneys without setting up some sort of government? The British could perhaps make a point by doing that very thing.

OUTLOOK FOR THE MAYORALTY

The local air vibrates with preparations for the forthcoming election of a Mayor. On the one hand, we are told that Republican strategists, despairing of achieving fusion by Albany legislation, believe that the nomination of a straight-out Republican candidate of the Tuttle or Buckner type, or even of a hybrid aspirant of the LaGuardia mold, would have a better chance of defeating Tammany than one who stands under a joint banner. From Union Square comes the news that Mayor WALKER wants to be renominated and that SMITH has no wish to get in his way.

That all the district leaders of Manhattan, Brooklyn, Richmond and the Bronx are in favor of the Mayor's renomination is easy to believe. The recurrence of Feb. 12 reminds politicians that it isn't wise to swap horses when crossing a stream. Should the transit fare case go against the administration, what alternative to the Mayor has anything like so good a chance to be elected—except Governor SMITH? Should the city problems resolve themselves favorably, who in the Democratic party could stand against the Mayor if he wants to succeed himself? It might be a tough battle between WALKER and HYLAN if the fare case goes wrong, but the probabilities are that Tammany would even then be able to put over its choice of 1925.

It is not difficult to conclude that Mr. WALKER desires another term. He is young, popular, greatly beholden to Tammany. Such civic program as he has will be nowhere near completed by the end of 1929, and he has the natural pride of any official in wishing to see it through. Especially if the Republican organization in Queens continues its fight against Borough President HARVEY will his chances for success be excellent, for a Walker-Harvey combination in Queens against a De Bragga-Connolly one should win.

The Mayoralty of New York is a conspicuous and well-paid office, and Mr. WALKER has had a great deal of leisure and fun during his incumbency. He enjoys an agreeable species of personal fame. Most men would want four more years of it, especially if they were only 45.

BRIGHT STONE OF THE ALPS.

JOHANN II, ruling Prince of LIECHTENSTEIN for seventy years, not only had the longest reign but perhaps the most admirable, in its way, known to history. He let his "household" of 10,000 or 11,000 have what it wanted. It got universal suffrage and even the boon of P. R. The army of eighty or ninety men, which marched heroically as far as the Italian frontier to the aid of Austria and then marched back again in 1866 was soon disbanded. No debt, no taxes. There have been rumors of the existence of two or three policemen, but we are informed that nobody has ever seen more than one. Reversing the old rule, the Prince paid the bills. Considering that the LIECHTENSTEINS are said by the envious to be descended from a Lombard pawnbroker, theirs is a most kindly blood.

The anniversary of the birthday of the Reigning Prince was and is the holiday of holidays. To one of the late Prince's predecessors his loyal but thrifty subjects complained that the annual show was expensive. He promptly agreed to "stand treat." That was the practice of JOHANN II. Rich, he supported his State. Reputed a brilliant and highly accomplished man, he had a strong touch of originality or eccentricity. Probably he regarded the historic principality humorously and his own survival of the rout of so many royal, princely and ducal personages as an echo of the long sardonic laughter of the Scheme of Things. One likes to believe that he hated to be seen and loved to travel at night in a closed carriage. What was the number of that Duke of PORTLAND who made a system of underground tunnels wherein he could be driven unobserved?

Strange thoughts must have been in the wise old head of JOHANN II. In a long life he, too, had what he wanted; and it was of the best. He was a father to his people, but they bored him. Vienna or some of his collection of castles was metal more attractive. War sorely impaired his fortune. His pictures, a gift to the Austrian nation, housed in the Liechtenstein Museum, would alone be enough to maintain his memory. The Principality of Liechtenstein is too good to lose; but no LIECHTENSTEIN—a nephew succeeds to the title—can afford to pay for being a sovereign. Incorporation in Switzerland is no hard fate, but those spoiled peasants will have to learn to pay taxes.

We shall miss that little Landtag, whose members saw their own wood. Let us hope that for a long time yet the men will wear earrings, as RALEIGH and SIDNEY did, and keep the art of embroidery. One thinks of that land of forest and pasture, corn and wine, as the country of Prince Otto and Prince Florizel and Will o' the Mill. The name of the capital, Valduz, is a corruption of Vallis Dulcis, Sweet Valley. Only a few years ago Valduz had its first American visitor. Millions more are on the road. Couldn't some "rich American" buy Liechtenstein? Not, of course, from any desire to be a sovereign, but to introduce prohibition. We have been told of a "pinkish" wine of Valduz. There is no such thing. Wine is always "red." Nobody in Liechtenstein or anywhere else should be allowed to make, sell, transport, possess, give away or drink it.

THE WISDOM OF EDISON.

It is natural that one who has done, according to HENRY FORD, "more for mankind than any other" should be looked to as a seer. But Mr. EDISON professes to see no further than the data in hand, whatever the subject, though he keeps peering beyond and adding to knowledge by experiment. He thinks that general prosperity will attend Mr. HOOVER'S administration, that radio will be improved (even though static may not be wholly eliminated), that synthetic rubber has no future while nature herself produces it at present price, that the machine age in its further development will favorably affect the physical and moral welfare of the working classes.

Mr. EDISON went further, in a recent interview in The Saturday Evening Post with Mr. SAMUEL CROWTHER, than his laconic pencilled and verbal answers to the reporters on his eighty-second birthday. He held that increased leisure, coming as a consequence of increased production, will mean more "consuming time"—that is, more consumption. One effect of machinery will be, contrary to the general view, a higher intelligence, and another the release of old men and of married women with husbands and children who should not work "unless they want to." Mr. EDISON himself intends not to quit work until "the day before his funeral." He isn't worried over instalment buying, and even sees in it an evidence that people are "giving more attention to living than to dying." He does not believe that 100 per cent enforcement of prohibition or any other law is to be expected, but that if we could raise it to 80 per cent we should have a "sober nation," and then no country could compete with us.

Fifty, a hundred years from now? Not even he ventures to prophesy. "We don't know a millionth of 1 per cent about anything." This admission put him side by side with SOCRATES, who argued himself the wisest man because he knew that he knew nothing. But it is the hope of millions that Mr. EDISON will go on seeking to know till "the day before his funeral." May that not be till he has lived at least as long as his father and grandfather—well toward the full century!

PENALTIES OF CENSORSHIP.

General PRIMO DE RIVERA complains that the stories circulated about recent disturbances in Spain have been misleading and unfair. He threatens to curb still further the privileges of some of the foreign correspondents. But he is only having the same experience as other countries when a tight censorship has been enforced. It is not long since Italy and Rumania made like protests and endeavored to restrict the freedom of correspondents. Yugoslavia is already suffering from the difficulty of getting before the world accurate and full news of what is transpiring under the dictatorship of the King. In Japan the occasional unwillingness of high officials to make public statements on important matters of policy has led to misunderstandings abroad. Even in this country when, as during the Washington Conference, the State Department has been needlessly reticent about important matters, it has found that others have hastened to present the case as they wished it to be known to the world.

The difficulty is apparently an inevitable consequence of censorship. When all news is rigidly kept back, rumor is intensified. Forthwith interested persons, some of whom have axes to grind, embroider rumors with a semblance of realty. A world eager for information accepts these in lieu of correct information. Where a few words cautiously but truthfully spoken would have satisfied foreign curiosity, censorship merely stimulates suspicion.

In fairness to the various European dictators and public officials who have endeavored from time to time to muzzle the press, it must be borne in mind that journalistic practices and standards in Europe differ from those in this country. It has often seemed easiest abroad to control the press with a firm hand. When this is done it is hard to discriminate in favor of foreign correspondents. If times are critical and the wires are closed, and, as a result, rumors are sent as fact from neighboring countries, the reports that appear in the foreign press are so far from the truth that the home authorities are naturally indignant and tend to blame foreign correspondents in general, regardless of their own responsibility.

Fortunately, the disadvantages of censorship of news are being better understood. Both Rumania and Italy, after brief experiences with drastic control, saw that there was more to be lost by this system than by permitting critical as well as favorable articles to be sent abroad. In the long run the facts become known. To suppress them gives occasionally a transient benefit. But their belated publication does more harm than if they had been made known from the beginning.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Interpreting as a Fine Art.

People who speak two languages fluently and correctly are rare. But still more rare are those whose gift of languages enables them to perform the unique services rendered for upward of ten years by Professor G. CAMBELINCK as interpreter at the League of Nations and at international conferences for the French Government, whose death was announced yesterday.

He stirred the admiration of all who attended the Washington Conference and the League sessions by his astonishing powers of memory as well as of language. The eloquent M. BRIAND would discourse in long periods. M. CAMERLINCK, often without taking a note, would wait till the French orator had finished, and would then render into faultless English both the rhetoric and the sense of M. BRIAND'S speech.

When an Englishman or an American spoke, M. CAMERLINCK, sitting in apparent inattention, would wait patiently until the speaker sat down, and would then put into French the very words of the English speaker. Such was his gift that he could almost adapt his tongue to the cadence and style of those whom he interpreted. He did more than translate. He breathed into his interpretation the very spirit of the speaker. In his line he was a genius.

The Simple Life in Bowling Green.

Several times a year some uptown New Yorker, compelled to make a Sunday or holiday journey through the lower tip of Manhattan, sings the praises of Bowling Green as a quiet residential neighborhood. One who works in that part of the island is astounded when he sees the deserted streets and the peaceful surroundings at times when he and the half million of his fellows making up the daytime population are not cluttering it up. He sees a few solitary pedestrians and an occasional family group, and he is struck by the idea of Bowling Green as the ideal place for a home. At the hours when you would be in it there would be no traffic noise except the pleasant harbor sounds.

According to the annual report of the Bowling Green Neighborhood Association, just published, there are permanent residents in the community to the number of 12,500. They are not, however, expatriates from the upper reaches of Manhattan. Most of them are foreigners finding their first home in America close to Ellis Island. Forty-one nationalities are represented.

The association is doing excellent work in helping them to become good American citizens. Living conditions are not of the best, but are being steadily improved through the staff of public health nurses, physicians, clinics, recreational centres, the library and the cooking classes. Contributions are sought from persons who have interests in downtown New York and prospective good New Yorkers.

Army Buglers Take Notice.

In nearly every new business the early comers get the best of it. In the case of the "talkies," producers and actors are still uncertain who is to come in for the big money. Voices that won't register and expensive equipment that won't work cause worry. But musicians are in for a leisurely and lucrative time.

They are employed by an arrangement which pays so much per hour for the duration of the picture. When they are not working, pay goes on just the same. If there is a hitch in any of the talking scenes, it may be a long time between calls for music.

For "The Desert Song" a bugler was engaged to sound certain bugle calls according to the story. Only at long intervals is everything ready for the actual recording of the dialogue which gives him the cue. In the meantime he draws the established salary of $10 an hour for the time elapsed. He probably averages something like $10 a note.

If a wrong word is spoken or a false note blown, the entire scene must be taken over again, often at a cost of hundreds of dollars. It is to be hoped that the bugler keeps in good practice so that no blue note blown by him may be cause for refilming.

The Jersey Lily.

The tenacity of tradition is sometimes challenged by the longevity of its very creators. Among the distinguished makers of the Victorian tradition of gayety Lady DE BATHE was near the top. Now she is dead, at the age of 77, almost forty years after what she represented among the relaxations of European aristocracy has passed into history.

It happens that a satiric reminder of all this is to be seen nightly in New York at the moment: the sketch by NOEL COWARD in "This Year of Grace" called "La Flamme." It is done with the tongue in the cheek, though the Jersey Lily's admirers—from EDWARD VII down—took her seriously, even tragically.

From a dean's house on the Island of Jersey to the toast of London Town was a remarkable progress, and the young wife of EDWARD LANGTRY, who came to Chelsea with severe standards, was the last person whom contemporaries would have thought could achieve it. English opinion then would have thought it impossible, but the Latins, coiners of the phrase variously said as "la donna e mobile" and "varium et mutabile est femina," would have expected the heightened admiration had they observed the young beauty with the macaroni clustered about her.

At any rate, she lived to be the leading heart-breaker of her age, and then, with a title, to retire to the quietude of old age and to die in the sanctity of Sir Launcelot du Lac. Mr. STRACHEY could hardly have included her in his category of "Eminent Victorians," but no historian of the manners and customs of the time can fail to list the Jersey Lily as one of those who truly could say: "All of this I saw, in much of it I played a part."

SENATOR WALSH DISPUTED.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The communication from Senator Walsh of Montana attempting to justify his opposition to the important legislation pending in Congress for acquiring the privately owned areas in the national parks perhaps needs no reply. But he certainly owes the public an explanation of the following astounding statement:

"All lands in the parks are subject to such regulations as may be promulgated by the Secretary of the Interior, who, by the act creating them, Glacier Park at least, is given the same plenary power to govern them as may be exercised by the Legislature of the State or governing authority of the city, without any regard whatever to whether the lands are owned privately or publicly."

Is it not exactly because privately owned lands in the parks are not subject to regulation by the Secretary of the Interior that the Yosemite forests are being logged off, and that much other irreparable damage has been suffered by the parks?

It may be true that the lumber company operating there does not intend to begin again cutting the Yosemite Park forests till 1930 (though quite recent reports give a much earlier date), yet even if that is so, is not 1929, rather than 1931 or 1932, when the forest will be gone, the time for the nation to wake up and acquire the land?

Though actual cutting may not begin until 1930, meanwhile that company must be making preparations for it which will damage the area for park purposes and add greatly to the cost of acquiring it, such as extensions of its railroad and truck roads, erecting logging camps, mills, &c., all of which it must have ready before much logging can be done.

It is astounding that there is so little realization in Congress of the enormously increased interest that the American public now takes in its national parks.

Undercliff Avenue Objects.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is pending before the Board of Standards and Appeals an application for a variation from the requirements of the building zone resolution to permit the erection of a public garage in a residence district at the southeast corner of West 175th Street and Undercliff Avenue.

The board may grant such a variation if 80 per cent of the owners of frontage within the area deemed affected by the board file consents.

On Jan. 8, after ten "consents" and eleven "objections" to the garage had been filed, the board determined an area which it deemed affected by the proposed garage, which area included properties of ten consenters and excluded properties of six objectors.

Under the determination properties sixty feet above the garage in elevation and three-quarters of a mile distant by the shortest vehicular route are included within the area affected (although so remote that their realty values are unaffected) and are thus endowed with the right to consent to the garage. Properties on Undercliff Avenue, 131 feet distant by vehicular roadway and at the same elevation as the garage, are excluded from the area affected and are thus deprived of the right to object to the expropriation which will result from the depreciation in property values which will be caused by the garage.

The motives of the board are not impugned, but it is noted that the area determined, which strongly resembles a "gerrymander," will facilitate the breaking down of the zoning restrictions, the enrichment of a "raider" and the spoliation of scores of law-abiding property owners.

THE PROFESSOR PROPOSES.

Lady, prithee cast one look
At this most prosaic book!
Giving it a cursory glance,
Stupid it must seem, perchance
(For there's nothing thrilling very
In a pocket dictionary)—
But in me a strange complex
Lurks; I'm fearful of your sex,
And too bashful to propose—
Though in classrooms quite verbose.
So, let Webster for me plead.
Open to page 10 and read
(Underlined) the pronoun "I"!
Find page 30; there espy
"LOVE" (marked in parentheses—Bold ones!). Turn next, if you please,
To page 67, where (Inked around with desperate care)
"YOU" is underscored.
Dost know
What I'm getting at? If so,
Who shall say a dictionary
Is not Cupid's emissary?
Lady, having cast your look
At this unassuming book,
Please return the same to me,
Fixed to open at page 3—
This word mark with your fair hand
"DITTO," and I'll understand!

PULPIT BOOK REVIEWS.

They Have a Definite Place in Church Work, Minister Asserts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES of Feb. 5 quotes Dr. C. L. Goodell as saying, "If there is not anything more important to preach to your people about than a new book, then you should not preach at all. The only real sermon is the one that declares 'Thus saith the Lord.'"

Dr. Goodell is chairman of the Commission on Evangelization of the Federal Council of Churches. What he says is therefore important either in its rightness or its wrongness. And his present statement seems to me tragically important in its wrongness.

If Dr. Goodell means that preachers should not rush into the pulpit to talk of every new novel, or even of every new scientific or religious book, most of us will agree. If this is what he means he should have said this and not what he did say.

There is no higher duty incumbent on the ministry today than that of using the time their people give to them for the purpose of studying and digesting some of the best new books, and then giving the results to their busy people who often have no time to read for themselves. Church people are hungry to share the thought-life of their times, and if they were allowed and invited to do so by the ministers the churches would not today be so much berated for being out of touch with our modern life. One of the greatest opportunities of the present-day Church and pulpit is to be a spiritual university extension course for men and women who have not been to college and for college men and women, too, who are laden with duties that rob them of the time to read. Of course no sane preacher will allow book-sermons to be the only fare he gives his hearers. But to follow John Milton's definition, "A good book is the life-blood of a master spirit," and to refresh the people with draughts from these sources is surely a ministry to souls much needed.

Does Dr. Goodell think that all the new books are just written for fun, or for money? Some of them, as I have seen in this Winter's reading, and as I have helped, I hope, a few others to see, are as full of "Thus saith the Lord" as any sermons of any age, including some of those in the Bible.

Dr. Goodell's statement is unfortunate in that it is one more of those utterances that widen the gap between the thought processes of the mind and the health of the soul. It is one more rebuff to people who want to bring both mind and soul into the Lord's temple. It is one more invitation to many reading people to stay outside the Church. It is one more encouragement to ignorance in the pulpit. The vaporous "Thus saith the Lord" of many a preacher might well find added power if he said "Thus saith the Lord through the lips of our contemporary, So and So."

Dr. Goodell need have no fear that too many book-review sermons will be preached, for they mean hard work. Only the most industrious men will give the work needed. Many of the others will continue to cry "Thus saith the Lord."

EX-FIREMEN.

A Bill to Increase Their Retirement Pay.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Several of the newspapers in the metropolitan district have published editorials expressing approval of the bill introduced in the State Legislature to make it possible for the City of New York to pay first-grade policemen and firemen a minimum wage of $3,000. Not one word has been printed about Assembly bill 607, introduced by Mr. Gedney. It provides a livable pension to the few old survivors who gave the best part of their lives in fighting that great war that never ends, "Fire." They are now feebly existing although most of them were once considered the cream of the greatest fire department in the world. And what are they asking? Merely equalization of pensions with those now in service.

Last year a bill to that effect was introduced in the Municipal Assembly, favorably reported by the Committee on Local Laws, approved by civic, taxpayers', political, social, religious organizations and the public in general. Even Mr. Stewart Browne was with them. It was buried in committee. This bill for a livable pension, incorporated with the increase of wages for police and firemen, is the biggest boost that can be given those now in service, because taxpayers are seldom for pay increases, but are favorable to equalization of pensions and justice as is given by the United States Government to the retired officers and men of the army and navy.

Appreciation From England.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that his Majesty's progress toward recovery is established on a firmer basis, and we may look forward with some measure of confidence to his complete restoration to health, may I be permitted to express my appreciation of the most sincere sympathy shown to us by all Americans in a time of great anxiety?

As an Englishman who has seen the American in his own country, I know how heartfelt this sympathy has been, and nothing could have given me, and I am sure thousands more Englishmen, more confidence and hope during the trying months through which we have passed than to know that our prayers were being repeated by our friends across the Atlantic.

Economical Building Heights.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is not the weight of any material that prevents a building of 100 stories or more. A building may be built 200 stories high with available material, as every architect and engineer knows.

On anything but a very large plot, however, it is impractical to build 100 stories high. The lower stories of a tower would be so largely occupied by elevators to serve the upper stories that the rentable area would be reduced out of all proportion to the necessary return on the investment.

MUSEUM TO SHOW ART OF A. B. DAVIES

ACQUIRES HISTORIC GLOVES

Elizabethan and Stuart Group Given by Mrs. Harkness—22 Stieglitz Photographs.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art will hold a memorial exhibition of the work of Arthur B. Davies, noted American artist who died suddenly last October while painting in Northern Italy and whose death did not become known here until six weeks later. The exhibition will be held some time during the season of 1929-1930, according to the museum's announcement, and will represent the various periods of Mr. Davies's art. Drawings, lithographs and sculptures as well as paintings will be included.

The announcement is carried in the museum's monthly news bulletin, which also notes several new acquisitions. The Metropolitan's collection of decorative arts has been augmented recently by a gift from Mrs. Edward S. Harkness of an exceptional group of Elizabethan and Stuart gloves. Hitherto the art of the glover has been represented sparsely in American collections, although historic and royal examples are preserved in European museums. The gauntlets, or cuffs, of the gloves just acquired by the Metropolitan are elaborately embroidered, one set having cuffs of silk and silver tapestry work.

Equestrian Head Acquired.

A life-size marble head of a horse is an important new acquisition by the museum's department of classical art. It is thought to have formed part of a statue either of a horseman or of a chariot group, for the head has the characteristic slight turn to the left. The type is evidently that of the stocky, thick-necked pony seen in most Greek representations of horses, according to Miss Gisela M. A. Richter, curator of classical arts, and not that of the slender race horse, which occurs occasionally. Miss Richter considers the new acquisition probably a Roman copy of an original Greek work of about the middle of the fourth century B. C.

Four swords have just been acquired by the museum from the National Armory in Dresden, Germany. There is a two-handled sword as well as three swept-hilted rapiers, in excellent condition and of excellent workmanship. Stephen V. Grancsay, associate curator of armor, in charge, pointed out that the swords were of German origin, both hilts and blades, and that they dated from the late sixteenth and early seventeenth centuries.

Two specimens have been added to the museum's small collection of French painted enamels of the sixteenth century through a gift from V. Everit Macy. One of these is an oval plaque representing the head and bust of a woman; the other is a circular plaque portraying Julius Caesar crossing the Rubicon. The former has been identified as the work of Leonard Limousin, and the latter as an example of the grisaille painting that was carried to high perfection in the stellers of Limoges. A third gift from Mr. Macy exemplifies another type of enamel—a triptych of cast brass, Russian, probably dating from the eighteenth century.

Stieglitz Group Presented.

Mrs. Rebecca S. Strand, Mrs. Alma Wertheim, David A. Schulte, Paul Rosenfeld and an anonymous friend of the museum have presented the Metropolitan a group of twenty-two photographs by Alfred Stieglitz, representative of the various aspects of his work in the last several years. Among them are portraits, studies of the nude, landscapes, cloudscapes and the well-known print of hands sewing.

The museum also announces that as a result of data provided by a French connoisseur, M. Julien Chappée of Le Mans, the thirteenth century tomb effigy of a knight, placed in the centre of the nave of The Cloisters, has been identified as representing Jean d'Alluye, who died in 1245 and whose tomb was in the abbey of Clarté Dieu.

In confirmation of a recent cable dispatch from Rome the museum announces that it has obtained the services of Count Omberto Gnoli of Rome as representative in Europe to keep the museum in touch with opportunities to acquire desirable additions to its collections, primarily in the departments of paintings and decorative arts, and to negotiate for the purchase of these when called upon to do so.

"Count Gnoli is widely known among connoisseurs, by whom he is recognized as one of the leading Italian authorities on his subject, through both his publications and his work in other directions," the museum said. "For some years past he has been the director of the museum in Perugia and superintendent of the monuments and works of art in the district of Umbria, both of which positions he recently resigned."

ASKS EQUALITY IN INDUSTRY

Josephine Casey Warns Women's Party Against Protective Laws.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Miss Josephine Casey of New York and Chicago, an organizer of women in industry, declared at a meeting of the National Woman's Party today that in all her experience she had found that complete equality between men and women in industry was absolutely necessary.

"In talking to many of the labor leaders I find that they recognize the fact that so-called protective legislation is really hurting the American Federation of Labor," she said, "but they say that the federation is moving ahead cautiously because it is afraid to offend women's fraternal organizations that are friendly to the federation.

"The inevitable result of this sort of foolish basis is that there will be an irritation developed between these two forces that had better recognize it in time and get on a frank basis."

Miss Casey, who recently married José Kelly, a commissioner in the Department of Commerce and Labor in Mexico, was for years an organizer of the Ladies' Garment Workers' Union in Boston and New York.

PROF. CAMERLYNCK, INTERPRETER, DEAD

Teacher of English Served at Major Conferences Since Versailles Treaty.

HELD MANY STATE SECRETS

When Pressed to Write Memoirs He Always Refused, Saying "I Know Too Much."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Professor Gustav Henri Camerlynck, a figure in all international conferences since the treaty of Versailles, died here today from the consequences of grip. He was taken ill last Thursday with a mild case of influenza but his heart became affected, causing sudden death this morning.

Professor Camerlynck in early life was an English instructor in French universities. During the war he served as interpreter for the British on the Somme and during the Treaty of Versailles was made official interpreter, maintaining liaison with the English and Americans. He afterward served as translator and interpreter with the Council of Ambassadors and, in the same capacity, attended the conferences at Spa, San Remo, Washington, Cannes, Genoa and every other important international meeting since.

He had many warm friends among prominent Americans who had been delegates or observers at these meetings. Only last Wednesday it was he who acted as interpreter during the conference of Parker Gilbert with Premier Poincaré.

By reason of his duties he was credited with being the man who knew more State secrets than any other, and at the same time he enjoyed a great reputation for discretion. It was said of him that, despite continual soundings by statesmen and many others with whom he came in contact, he never betrayed a word of the confidential information he had obtained through his work.

To the many requests that he write his memoirs, Professor Camerlynck always replied: "I know too much."

FOX THEATRE PLAN FOUGHT.

Boston Judge Is Asked to Enjoin Closing of Tamworth Street.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Feb. 12—Judge Bishop of the Superior Court today made an order calling upon the street commissioners to show cause tomorrow why they should not be enjoined from passing a vote discontinuing Tamworth Street so that it may be taken over by theatrical interests and built upon.

When it became apparent that the Fox theatre interests intended taking the Hôtel Touraine site and adjacent property for a theatre site, the street commissioners announced as their opinion that Tamworth Street should be discontinued. It planned to pass an order for making "improvements" tomorrow.

Attorney Charles S. Hill told the court the title to the land in the street, which contains approximately 2,500 square feet, was transferred to the city by deed of Charles Francis Adams and others on July 21, 1879, to be laid out as a public street, and that the land is worth $630,000. Judge Bishop was informed that the discontinuance of Tamworth Street not only was unnecessary but prejudicial to the public safety.

CLARA RABINOVITCH HEARD.

Young Pianist Continues to Fulfill Promise Made at Her Debut.

Clara Rabinovitch, pianist, gave her second recital of the season last night in the Town Hall, playing an all-Chopin program. The young artist continues to fulfill the promise made at her local début three years ago, though to some of her admirers this progress may seem rather in the field of technical skill than in more subtle phases of artistic growth. Her performances of the two Ballades, in G minor and F minor, which opened her program, revealed considerable dexterity, clarity and warmth of tone. There was not, however, the brilliancy of the lyric charm necessary to a completely satisfying expression of their varied moods. In the B flat Sonata she likewise failed to sound emotional depths inherent in the music. A final group comprising the Nocturne in C minor, three mazurkas, two studies, the Berceuse and the B minor Scherzo was in many respects the most effective portion of her program. In these Miss Rabinovitch impressed her large audience with many moments of real eloquence. She received enthusiastic applause, to which she responded with encores.

RECITAL BY ANNA WINITSKY.

Youthful Pianist Gives Program in Carnegie Hall.

Anna Winitsky, who gave a piano recital last night in Carnegie Hall, filled a short place from Schumann's "Kreisleriana" as a "Fantasy in G minor" by that composer. She played also the Bach "Chromatic Fantasia and Fugue," the Brahms G minor rhapsody, and other compositions, announced on the program as by Beethoven, Debussy, MacDowell and Chopin. Miss Winitsky was free with the notes as well as the names of the works she interpreted. She distorted tempi and abused the pedal. Her native fluency may well prove an asset in the future, when she has matured as an interpreter and become more scrupulous in realizing the intentions of the composer.

Plan Benefit for British Miners.

A benefit performance of "Hot Water," which is running at the Lucille La Verne Theatre, is announced for Sunday night, March 3, in aid of the Lord Mayor's Fund for Destitute British Miners. The performance will be given by arrangement with Sir Harry Gloster Armstrong, British consul general here.

Guild Memorial on Sunday.

The annual memorial services of the Jewish Theatrical Guild will take place Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Unity Synagogue, 30 West Seventy-ninth Street.

Mayor Has a Little Lamb; Neighbor in Town Protests

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 12.—If the Margate City ordinance prohibiting the harboring of wild animals can be construed to include harboring a lamb, Mayor Risley of that place is liable to lose his pet tomorrow. Even if the wild animal law does not fit, there are still the parkway improvement and the sanitary ordinances. All three of these counts the Mayor must answer tomorrow morning on charges filed by a neighbor.

The Mayor's lamb, won at a frolic of the Tall Cedars, is kept for strictly peaceful purposes, Mayor Risley says, and at present is performing as a lawn mower.

MRS. A. S. DWIGHT DEAD; HELD CROIX DE GUERRE

Head of Women's Service League Spent Two Years in France With Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. Arthur S. Dwight, who was with the Y. M. C. A. in France during the war, and had been active in charitable and patriotic organizations, and whose death was noted in a late edition of yesterday's NEW YORK TIMES, died Monday midnight at her home in Great Neck, L. I., just twenty-four hours before her sixty-first birthday. She had been ill for a week with influenza and pneumonia.

Mrs. Dwight was president of the Women's Overseas Service League of New York, and was active also in the New York Diet Kitchen, the Woman's Auxiliary of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, and the Soldiers and Sailors Club. She received the Croix de Guerre for her two years of work in France with the Y. M. C. A. She was to have presided at a dinner of the Overseas Service League at the Waldorf Thursday night, which has now been postponed.

Mrs. Dwight was the daughter of the late Samuel Reed, chief engineer in the construction of the Union Pacific Railroad, and the wife of Colonel Arthur S. Dwight, who was an officer and one of the organizers of the Eleventh United States Engineers, the first unit of the A. E. F. to go into action in France. In addition to her husband, she is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Fred Bennett and Mrs. Louis H. Hyde, both of Joliet, Ill., where Mrs. Dwight lived before her marriage in 1895.

Funeral services will be held at 3:15 this afternoon at All Saints Episcopal Church, Great Neck, and burial will be in the church cemetery. The Rev. Kirkland Huske, pastor of the church, will officiate.

BARON VON SCHRENCK DIES.

Was Noted Exponent of Occultism —Examined Many Mediums.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—The well known spiritualist, Baron von Schrenck-Notzing, died today at Munich at the age of 66, after an operation for appendicitis. He was Germany's most prominent exponent at occult problems and was honorary member of many German and foreign societies. He had examined the world's most remarkable mediums.

All his life he fought for the recognition of hypnotism and suggestion by legitimate science and had published more than thirty books on various problems connected with spiritism and psychiatry.

Baron von Schrenck-Notzing caused a sensation in the German scientific world in May, 1914, when he published his "Phenomena of Materialization." After four years of the most careful experimentation he declared that the phenomena of materialization should be regarded as objective scientific facts, which, up to that time, science was unable to explain.

W. H. Burling's Funeral Today.

Special to The New York Times.

RIDGEWOOD, N. J., Feb. 12.—Funeral services for William H. Burling, former president of the Brooklyn Real Estate Board, will be held at 7:45 P. M. tomorrow at his home, 62 Phelps Road, by the Rev. Albert G. Butzer of the West Side Presbyterian Church. Burial will take place on Thursday in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, after a second service in the Fairfield Chapel, 86 Lefferts Place, Brooklyn. Mr. Burling was killed on Monday night by an accidental fall over a staircase balustrade in the Hamilton Club, Brooklyn.

Milton H. Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

PASADENA, Feb. 12.—Milton H. Wilson, 87 years of age, chairman of the board of directors of Wilson Brothers, Chicago wholesale men's furnishers, died at his home here on Sunday afternoon, it was learned today. Death resulted from a fall, it was said. Burial will be in Rosehill Cemetery, Chicago, on Saturday. Mr. Wilson also had a home in Evanston, Ill.

J. F. Honold Dies Suddenly.

J. F. Honold, president of the Globe Manufacturing Company of Milwaukee, Wis., died suddenly yesterday in the Hotel McAlpin, presumably of heart disease. He had been here a week on business. He was 61 years old and is survived by a widow, two daughters and two brothers. He was chairman of the Sheboygan County Republican Committee during the campaign last Fall.

Linus Leavens Dies Suddenly.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Feb. 12 (AP).—Linus Leavens, 70 years old, State Commissioner of Fish and Game, was stricken with apoplexy and died a few minutes later during a hearing at the State House tonight. Senator F. L. Osgood of Marlboro and Representative C. Gordon Abell of Enosburg, both physicians, attended him. He left a wife and three children.

Mrs. Robert Burns Wallace.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12—Mrs. Elizabeth Estelle Wallace, the wife of Dr. Robert Burns Wallace, professor of English at Temple University, died today from pneumonia in the Cooper Hospital in Camden, N. J. She was in her forty-ninth year. During the war Mrs. Wallace served here with the Red Cross.

DR. C. C. HARRISON DIES IN 85TH YEAR

Former Head of University of Pennsylvania—Did Most for Its Expansion.

GAVE $1,000,000 YEARS AGO

Statue to Him on the Campus—Came of Famous Custis Family of Virginia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—Dr. Charles Custis Harrison, former provost of the University of Pennsylvania, president of the university museum and a member of a distinguished Philadelphia family, died at his city home, 1,618 Locust Street, this morning after an illness of more than a year. He was in his eighty-fifth year.

Flags at the university, with which he had been connected for more than a half century and for the expansion of which he was considered perhaps more responsible than any other person, were half-staff during the day and a wreath was ordered for the statue to Dr. Harrison which stands in the dormitory triangle of the campus. It was announced that classes would be suspended on Thursday, the day of the funeral. Services will be held at 2:30 o'clock at the residence. Burial will be in old St. David's Churchyard.

As head of the university for sixteen years Dr. Harrison was noted for his ability to raise money by subscription. He is credited with obtaining about $11,000,000 for the institution.

For 35 Years Aided University.

For thirty-five years Dr. Harrison devoted his wealth and energy almost exclusively to the enlargement and strengthening of the university. He was its head from 1894 to 1911 and in recent years had been President of the Board of Managers of the university museum, which has sent many archaeological expeditions to excavate in lands of ancient culture.

Dr. Harrison's chief purpose in life, it was said, was to make the university the greatest in the world. He raised its entrance requirements, increased its endowment and greatly enlarged the student body. In recognition of his services the university placed his statue on the campus and Dr. Harrison had the unique experience of being present at the unveiling ceremonies in 1925. In the same year he receive the annual Bok prize of $10,000 to the person who had done the most for the city of Philadelphia.

His achievements as an educator were matched by his success as a manufacturer earlier in life. Born in Philadelphia May 3, 1844, he inherited part of his fortune from his father, George Leib Harrison, a chemical manufacturer. His mother was Sarah Ann Waples before her marriage, being a descendant of the Custis family of Virginia.

At the age of 18 Dr. Harrison graduated in 1862 from the University of Pennsylvania with highest honors. Three years later he received the degree of Master of Arts from the university and subsequently the honorary degree of LL. D. from it, as well as from Columbia, Princeton and Yale.

Made Success as Sugar Refiner.

After his graduation Dr. Harrison was started in the sugar-refining business by his father in 1863. The venture was very successful, and in 1892, when he sold his interest in the plant to retire from business, its annual sales were said to be among the largest in the State.

In 1876 Dr. Harrison was made a trustee of the University of Pennsylvania, and in 1894 he became acting provost. The following year he was made provost. He signalized his inauguration by giving $500,000 to the university to establish scholarships and fellowships. When he resigned in 1911 because of advancing age he gave the university an additional $500,000.

MRS. A. R. VINCENT DIES AFTER SEA TRIP

Was Former Maud Bourn of San Francisco—Husband in Time to See Her Alive.

Mrs. Maud Bourn Vincent, only daughter of William B. Bourn of San Francisco, chairman of the board of the Spring Valley Water Company and wife of Arthur Rose Vincent, barrister, of Muckross Abbey, Killarney, Ireland, died yesterday in the Leroy Sanitarium, 40 East Sixty-first Street, of pneumonia, a few hours after her husband reached her bedside at the end of a hurried trip on the Mauretania, begun when he heard of her illness. He left the steamer on a special tug at Quarantine at 1:30 yesterday morning. Mrs. Vincent became ill two days out on the last westward voyage of the Majestic, which ended here last Wednesday. Word of her illness was radioed to her husband, who then caught the Mauretania.

Mrs. Vincent, who was accompanied by her children, Elizabeth, 14, and William, 9, was on her way to visit her parents. The children are now at the home of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, 451 Madison Avenue, where a funeral service will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Mrs. Reid is in California. Mr. Vincent and the children will accompany the body to San Mateo, Cal.

Mr. Vincent, who is a son of Colonel Arthur Vincent of the British Army, married Miss Bourn in San Francisco in 1900. The wedding was one of the most brilliant in the history of California.

EX-SENATOR FLINT DIES ON ORIENT TRIP

Californian Suffered Breakdown After Taking Part in Presidential Campaign.

MANILA, Feb. 12 (AP).—Frank P. Flint, former United States Senator from California, died last night aboard the liner President Polk, which arrived here today. Mr. Flint suffered a nervous breakdown after he had taken part in the Presidential campaign last Fall.

Mrs. Flint, who was accompanying her husband on a world tour, announced that she would return to the United States at once.

Senator Flint was born on July 15, 1862, at North Reading, Mass., and was taken to California as a child by his parents. He lived in San Francisco as a youth, but since his admission to the bar forty years ago he had made his home in Los Angeles, where he served as a clerk in the United States Marshal's office and Assistant Federal Attorney. He was Federal Attorney for the Southern District of California from 1897 to 1901.

FORMER ROYAL PRINCE DIES

Funeral of Otto Mulbaur of Dunellen Held in Plainfield.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Feb. 12.—Funeral services for Otto Mulbaur, 70 years old, were held this afternoon in Runyon's Colonial Home on Washington Avenue by Mrs. J. W. A. Davies, first reader for the First Church of Christ Scientist.

Mr. Mulbaur, son of Prince Carl Theodore van Wrede of Bavaria, died at his home in Dunellen and the community was unaware until today that he was of royal birth. After the death of his father his mother married Edward Mulbaur, a counselor of Bavaria. The mother lost her property and the son, having a good musical education, joined an opera company in Berlin, which was afterward brought to New York by Gustav Amberg. A widow and two sons, Harold Mulbaur of Dunellen and George Mulbaur of California, survive.

FROM THE FOUNDER'S WRITINGS

The Spring Higher Up

Just across the stone bridge in the Park there was a little drinking place where a clear little stream came through an iron pipe, of which it was good to drink. One day a Park Guard said: "Why don't you go up a little farther to the source of the spring and get a better drink?" Sure enough, there it was, a few steps farther on, a much more copious flowing stream, clearer and colder and more inviting. This fairly represents our store. It is the spring higher up—the source for many goods that cannot be gotten anywhere else in this country.

PRESSURE OF 'RING' REVEALED BY HARVEY

Charges Even Churchmen Urge Him to "Go Along" With the Sewer Contractors.

CHIDES HIS PARTY CHIEFS

Says They Fail to Aid in Bribe Expose—Calls on De Bragga to Quit as Leader.

SEES THREE IN POWER

Names Connolly and Hazleton as Others—To Seek Re-election—Goes Before Grand Jury Today.

George U. Harvey, Borough President of Queens, who is to appear this morning before the grand jury investigating his charges that a bribe of $200,000 had been offered to him, said yesterday he would tell the jury of persistent attempts made by persons prominent in Queens business, professional and church circles to induce him to "go along" with the so-called sewer contractors' ring.

Mr. Harvey declares that his fight against the ring had but just begun. The organization leaders had not helped him in the bribe exposé, he said, and he called on Joseph De Bragga, Republican leader in Queens, to retire for the good of the party. Mr. De Bragga sailed Saturday with his wife for Havana, and when leaving denounced Mr. Harvey for his failure to work in harmony with his party leaders and provide jobs for members of the organization.

To Run on Three Tickets.

The borough president also served notice he would be a candidate next Fall to succeed himself as borough president by running in the primaries on three tickets. He declared he would seek the Republican, Democratic and Independent nominations.

In describing the efforts made to have him desist in his fight against the Queens sewer contractors Mr. Harvey said:

"The latest attempt to buy their way into Borough Hall is only a part of the sewer ring's plot to continue its monopoly. From all sides and from men highly thought of in business, church and professional circles in Queens, pressure of the strongest kind has been brought to bear on me to force me into the ring's councils and 'go along.'

"The charges made regarding the enrolment of Major John Holley Clarke, my legal adviser as a Republican, and the fight against him as my successor in the Board of Aldermen, were part of the general plot to force me to capitulate to the ring's demands.

"A week ago one of the outstanding Republican leaders invited me to lunch with the lawyer for the sewer ring. I asked him the purpose of meeting this man, and he told me he wanted to call off the fight, and that I should get together with him so that we could all play with profit.

"I told this Republican leader that I had no fight with any one, and that I was satisfied with the salary the city is paying me as a borough president."

Names Three Leaders.

Mr. Harvey said that three persons constituted the political motive power in Queens. He named them as Republican leader De Bragga, Maurice E. Connolly, the former Borough President, convicted last Fall in the sewer scandal and former Judge Edgar F. Hazleton.

He declared that the grand jury investigation of his charges of bribery would produce a great deal of good. He expressed the belief that the investigation if carried through to a logical conclusion would undoubtedly wrest Queens from the political power of those who now rule the borough.

He said he will have with him several witnesses to substantiate his bribe charges. These witnesses will include his 19-year-old daughter Eileen and Raymond O'Connor, who is assistant to Mr. Harvey. Miss Eileen Harvey was at the Harvey farm at New Milford, Conn., on Nov. 11 when the alleged $200,000 bribe was made to the Borough President by an individual he described as "a former private detective."

May Offer Additional Charge.

It is possible that County Judge Frank F. Adel will give an additional charge to the grand jury when it reconvenes this morning to consider the bribe charges.

The necessary steps were taken Monday by Judge Adel to insure a sufficient number of qualified grand jurors to consider the bribery charges. When the grand jury was sworn in a week ago, two members were not able to qualify.

Although these two have since communicated with Chief Clerk Balthasar Funke of Judge Adel's court that they would be present today and take the oath, Judge Adel directed that three additional jurors be summoned for duty this morning.

HOWARD L. KETCHAM, a manager, 54 Mayfield Road, Jamaica.

HOWARD T. CALDWELL, mechanical engineer, 35-58 Ninety-first Street, Jackson Heights.

LEONARD DAVIDSON, real estate, 168-24 Jamaica Avenue, Jamaica.

FRANCIS J. HEIL, retired, Howard Beach.

JOSEPH McMULLEN, retired, 15 Boulevard Whitestone.

ARNOLD SMITH, banker, 84-07 102d Street, Richmond Hill.

WILLIAM F. SEILER, retired, 85-11 Forest Parkway, Woodhaven.

George Ripperger, named among the jurors, was for three terms postmaster of Long Island City, when Joseph Cassidy was the Democratic boss of the borough. He was the leader of the Queens County Republican organization and was succeeded by Mr. De Bragga.

Get Aliens Crossing Niagara In Icy Bridge Cable Tube

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Feb. 12 (AP).—Crawling through a large steel tube serving as a conduit for electric cables under the Tower Arch Bridge, two aliens and two alien runners reached the American side from Canada early today. The aliens, Andrew Bills, 28, and Henry Garbarinski, 30, both Poles, were captured by border patrolmen, who had watched their progress along the ice-coated tube, but the runners escaped and returned to Canada by the same route.

Government officials and police said the method used by the men was the most hazardous that had ever been brought to their attention. The steel tube is open at the top, but at frequent intervals heavy steel bars extend into it from the bridge structure. As the men reached these obstructions they were compelled to crawl out and swim over the turbulent Niagara.

ASKS $2,170,000 FOR BUILDINGS HERE

Coolidge in Message Requests Appropriation for Five New York Projects.

FINAL COST $15,000,000

$1,500,000 for Postoffice Site Is the Largest Item—National Expenditure to Total $9,210,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The appropriation of $2,170,000 for five public building projects in greater New York was recommended by President Coolidge in a message to Congress today. The ultimate expenditure will be about $15,000,000.

Funds for scores of public building projects in various parts of the country, totaling, with the New York recommendations, $9,210,000, were urged in the message.

The appropriations probably will be carried in the second deficiency bill, now being drawn, and will be available by July 1.

The sum of $4,000,000, instead of only $2,000,000, for a site for the new Federal Court Building in New York eventually would be made available. The President does not recommend appropriation at this session, but urges that authorization for the project be changed to enable the expenditure of the larger amount for the possible acquisition of the block bounded by Barclay, Church and Vesey Streets and West Broadway.

Revision of the authorization for the court building site may be made in event the disagreement between metropolitan and Federal officials over the location of building can be ended. The city has offered the Federal Government a site, but under conditions which Federal officials believe would work unnecessary hardship on the Washington Government.

Other building appropriations recommended for the metropolitan area are as follows: $275,000 to acquire site and start a general marine hospital at Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y.; $150,000 to start the new New York Parcels Post Building on the site acquired for a postoffice, ultimately to cost $9,000,000, and $245,000 for remodeling the New York Appraisers' Stores.

An appropriation of $25,000 was asked to continue construction on buildings at Long Island City. The following figures were submitted for projects in New York State and States near by, the first figure being the appropriation at this time and the second the cost limit:

Champlain, N. Y., inspection station, $2,000 and $56,000.

Peekskill, N. Y., Postoffice, $20,000 and $150,000.

Hoboken, N. J., Postoffice, $50,000 and $250,000.

Princeton, N. J., Postoffice, $25,000 and $95,000.

Red Bank, N. J., Postoffice, $25,000 and $140,000.

Stamford, Conn., Postoffice, $20,000 and $20,000.

Milford, Conn., Postoffice, $30,000 and $100,000.

Waterbury, Conn., Postoffice, $150,000 and $550,000.

SEGRAVE AT DAYTONA FOR SPEED RECORD

English Driver Arrives Suffering From Heavy Cold—Car Is Expected Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 12.—Major H. O. D. Segrave, English racing driver, arrived here tonight on his second expedition to set a new world's automobile speed record on the beach speedway. He was suffering from a heavy cold and after acknowledging the greeting of Mayor E. H. Armstrong of Daytona Beach he was driven to his hotel and immediately retired to his room. He made light of reports that he was threatened with bronchial pneumonia.

Major Segrave was accompanied by his wife and a party of seven English friends and associates, one of whom was Captain J. S. Irving, designer of the Golden Arrow, the new car with which Major Segrave hopes to set a new record in land speed. Captain Irving also designed the Sunbeam, with which Segrave in 1927 made a record of 203.79 miles an hour, a mark that was exceeded twice last year, first by Captain Malcolm Campbell, Segrave's countryman, at 206.95 miles an hour, and then by Ray Keech in the triplex built by J. M. White of Philadelphia, at 207.55 miles an hour.

Captain Irving said tonight that the Golden Arrow was expected to arrive here Thursday and that work of conditioning it for the trials from March 1 to 15 would start immediately.

As described by its designer, the new car is something new in land racing craft, the factor of control having had much consideration in its construction. The car stands thirty-seven inches high and has a ground clearance of only seven inches. The wheel base is fourteen feet, two feet more than that of the Sunbeam, although it weighs less. The over-all length is twenty-seven and one-half feet. The weight is 7,840 pounds, including 500 pounds of lead ballast.

Congress Leaders Prepare to Make Appropriation Within the Next Ten Days.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—President Coolidge will approve in the next few days the bill providing for the construction of fifteen 10,000-ton cruisers, and preparations are being made by him to submit to Congress the budget estimates for the first year's building program. This was announced authoritatively at the White House today and means that there will be no delay in starting the building of the vessels, which, under the law, must be completed by 1931.

According to the President, about $50,000,000 will be required in the fiscal year 1929-30, although he believes that not more than $12,000,000 should be appropriated immediately. The budget estimates probably will make such a recommendation, as it is the desire of the President that the appropriations shall be scaled down as much as possible so that there will be no deficit at the end of this fiscal year and no fear of an additional revenue levy at the beginning of the next fiscal year.

The President, apparently, has abandoned his opposition to the time limit provision in the bill and intends signing it promptly so that Congress can quickly make an appropriation for the first year's building program.

If he signs the bill this week it is the plan of the leaders to insert an appropriation for cruisers in the naval appropriation bill, which has passed the House.

In the decision of the President to act on the measure before the expiration of the ten days allowed him for its consideration is seen a desire to cooperate with Congress in carrying out the naval program.

Despite the fact that he was opposed to the time limit, President Coolidge is reported as believing that the building of the cruisers will not interfere with any future naval conference limitation. In fact, he thinks no limitation agreement could be reached that would not allow the United States to build cruisers greatly in excess of the 150,000 tons that will be added to the navy by the new vessels.

VOIDS $500,000 SUIT AGAINST COUZENS

Court Holds Senator's Remarks About Tax Expert Privileged Under the Constitution.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Justice Wendell P. Stafford in the District of Columbia Supreme Court today dismissed the $500,000 slander suit against Senator James Couzens of Michigan, which was instituted by Howe P. Cochran, tax consultant.

The Court held that remarks made by a member of Congress in a speech before the House or Senate are privileged and that the speaker, under the Constitution, cannot be held civilly liable.

Mr. Cochran charged that the Senator in a Senate speech made remarks which reflected upon his character. He contended the remarks were "unofficial" and not pertinent to anything being considered by the Senate.

The Court held that the Senator's words could not have been spoken "unofficially," inasmuch as they were made by a Senator at a regular Senate session, thus rendering Mr. Couzens immune from civil libel suits.

An appeal from Justice Stafford's decision was noted.

HARRINGTON SILENT ON WEDDING PLANS

Boston Broker Arrives on Liner —His Fiancee, Mary C. Guild, Is Due in Port Today.

George Harrington, Boston broker, whose marriage to Miss Mary Chester Guild, of a prominent Boston family, was postponed in Paris a week ago after Miss Guild was found almost drowned in a Paris hotel bathtub, arrived yesterday on the Cunard liner Mauretania. He declined to comment directly on his fiancée's collapse further than to say it was due to an overwrought condition caused by too much shopping.

Parrying questions, Mr. Harrington said he was unable now to tell the date for his wedding, and said he did not know whether he would meet his fiancée in Boston tomorrow. Miss Guild returns today on the French liner Paris, with her mother, Mrs. Chester Guild, who accompanied her to Paris for the wedding.

A shipment of nearly $9,000,000 in gold from England to American banks came over on the liner. Despite the fact that yesterday was a holiday the United States Assay Offices in Wall Street were kept open to receive the shipment, which was taken under heavy guard from the pier.

SEES NATIONS LINKED.

Dr. Butler Calls Self-Sufficiency an Impossible Modern Ideal.

National self-sufficiency in modern times is a fallacious aspiration, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler told 500 Columbia students in an address last night in the Horace Mann School auditorium. The new era of international interdependence ushered in by the World War made it impossible, he declared.

Dr. Butler defined three great "waves" of history. The first, he said, was that of the search for world dominion carried on by the Roman Empire. The second was the era of nation building in the Middle Ages. The third is the era of international understanding, cooperation and independence of nations brought about by the World War.

Dr. Butler praised the conception of the international renunciation of war as one of the greatest developments of history. It would take a generation to educate the world to it, he said.

Notre Dame Head Deplores Its Football Fame; Calls It Bubble and Tells of $750,000 Stadium

Football eminence is only a bubble, and nobody knows it better than students of the University of Notre Dame, according to the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of the university, which is famous for its football prestige. He spoke at a luncheon of the Notre Dame Club of New York at the Fraternity Club, 22 East Thirty-eighth Street, yesterday.

"We deplore the excessive and almost exclusive eminence of Notre Dame as a place where a football team is turned out," said President O'Donnell. "Nobody at Notre Dame is fooled by it, least of all the boys and those who play on the team. The boys are not indifferent to success, but they are interested first of all in their books.

"Last Fall I traveled with the football team. Not a word about football was spoken. The boys read, studied, played bridge and dozed. They know that football eminence is only a bubble. Our friends Red Grange and C. C. Pyle have taught us this lesson. Red Grange is a monument to such folly."

In outlining a ten-year building program at the university, President O'Donnell said that work would be begun this Spring on a stadium to seat from 50,000 to 60,000 persons. It would cost $750,000.

"We want to be able to play some of our big games at home," he explained. "We're called the ramblers, but not because we like it. The boys have always kept up their studies while away from the university, but it is not sound academically to have a roving set of collegians."

He said he has just returned from Boston, where he went over plans with McInnes & Walsh, architects, for a new $350,000 law school, work on which will be begun next Spring. The two other imperative needs of the immediate future, he said, were a new commerce school building and a new engineering building. He revealed that a Chicago friend of the university had offered to give the commerce building, but he declined to say how much it would cost.

Others who spoke were the Rev. John McNamara of Garden City, J. F. McEvoy and William E. Cotter, president of the New York Notre Dame Club, who presided.

TESTIFY JOHNSTON IS SEEKING CONVICT

SLAYER'S FATHER HEARD

He Declares He Buried In a Can Money Taken From Bank After Son Was Freed.

Special to The New York Times.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 12.—Governor Henry S. Johnston not only now realizes that he was in error when he granted a pardon to R. D. Crosthwaite, a fugitive, but has an agent of the State Bureau of Criminal Identification in California seeking to take Crosthwaite into custody, according to testimony given today before the State Senate Court of Impeachment, where the suspended Governor is fighting eleven charges.

The Crosthwaite pardon was the first count taken up by the court, it being charged that corruption and fraud entered into freedom for the slayer of an Oklahoma City girl. He has been at liberty for nearly six years.

Counsel for the Governor intimated tonight that their defense in the Crosthwaite charge would be that the prisoner had received a promise of a full pardon from Governor J. C. Walton, who had granted him a leave of absence from the penitentiary after he had served four years of a life sentence. Shortly after Crosthwaite received "the leave of absence" Governor Walton was impeached and Crosthwaite never returned to prison.

The House board of managers is seeking to show that either the Governor or members of his official family were approached by Ardmore attorneys and that the pardon was rushed through the various departments with no close check of the records.

J. N. Crosthwaite, father of the pardoned man, was called today and testified to cashing a check for $1,200 at an Ardmore bank. The witness maintained that he had paid attorneys only $50 as expenses for getting the pardon, and that the rest of the money had been buried in a tin can. The pardon went through in a few hours.

Switching from the Crosthwaite affair, the prosecution turned to what is termed locally as "the H. Bart Martin contempt case." Mr. Martin is an attorney at Tulsa and was held in contempt of the State Supreme Court while defending O. O. Owen of Tulsa, a member of the House, in January, 1927.

Several attorneys were ordered to appear in the contempt case as "friends of the court" and were paid for their services by deficiency warrants issued by the Governor. The legality of the deficiency warrants is now being attacked, as well as the Governor's action in issuing them.

The issuance of these and similar deficiency warrants forms the bases of six articles of impeachment.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—The Stinnes concern closed negotiations today for the sale of all its hotel interests in Germany, including the Esplanade, one of Berlin's finest and most popular caravanseries; the Atlantic Hotel at Hamburg; the Carlton Hotel at Frankfurt and five other first-class hotels for $7,400,000.

The buyers are a German-American-Swiss syndicate headed by Bon Brothers, who also own several large hotels in Switzerland.

LA FOLLETTE GROUP NOW FACE CHARGES

Their Prosecution Recommended in Wisconsin's Warfare of Regulars and Progressives.

EXCESSIVE FUNDS ALLEGED

Special District Attorney Urges Criminal Action, Following Move to Oust Governor Kohler.

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 12.—The calm which had followed the appointment by Attorney General John W. Reynolds of two lawyers to conduct a proceeding seeking to oust Governor Walter J. Kohler under the corrupt practices act was broken today by the filing of a report in the county Superior Court here by Arthur Barry, Special District Attorney, disclosing evidence which he had obtained in John Doe proceedings directed at Progressive Republican activities in last year's campaign.

Mr. Barry recommended the prosecution under the corrupt practices act of the following members of the Progressive organization committee: Representative Joseph D. Beck, unsuccessful candidate for the nomination for Governor; Lieut. Gov. Henry A. Huber, Secretary of State Theodore Dammann, Attorney General Reynolds, Samuel Sigman, the secretary of the committee, and the publishers of The Capital Times, a newspaper here, in connection with the circulation of a special edition in which victory for the Progressives was advocated.

Mr. Barry said his testimony indicated the Progressive faction had pooled their interests, spending, if Senator La Follette's funds were included, $131,190, a sum in excess of the amount permitted by law.

While no State action is advised against the Senator, the report recommends that the transcript of the testimony be furnished and "referred to the proper Senatorial committee" in Washington.

"Prosecution of Robert M. La Follette Jr. is not recommended," the report says, "for the reason that the Senator did not attend in person the meeting of the organization committee, and outside investigation discloses that the Senator particularly did not participate in the affairs of the committee, but confined his activities in Wisconsin to a speaking campaign, giving most of his time to political activities outside the State."

Mr. Barry's report also says:

"I likewise recommended to the proper court in Milwaukee County the prosecution of Richard H. Lee of 150 Broadway, New York."

Mr. Lee, an attorney, is brought into the charges in connection with campaign contributions.

There is no accusation against Solomon Levitan, State Treasurer, because he withdrew from the combination before the committee started to function.

Mr. Barry also charges that the issuing in Washington of a special edition of "Labor," the official organ of railroad unions, which was wholly given over to advocating the candidacies of the La Follette group, was a violation of law, because the expense of $35,900 was not reported to the filing officer, although the paper was circulated in the State.

The proceeding which is pending against Governor Kohler, whose election was a victory for the regular Republicans, is of a civil nature intended to obtain a judgment of forfeiture of his office, for which the law provides. Mr. Barry, however, recommends the prosecution of those he mentions under that part of the law which provides not only a judgmen of forfeiture, but criminal penalties as well.

SUBWAY PROGRESS TRACED BY MAYOR

He Says City Will Soon Act to Get Power Supply and Main Line Will Open in 1931.

21 MILES UNDER CONTRACT

$176,000,000 Work Already Let—$25,000,000 in Land Filled From Excavations.

Cooperation between the Board of Estimate, Board of Transportation, Transit Commission and the private traction companies, Mayor Walker declares in an article written for the February issue of Real Estate Magazine, has enabled his administration not only to make substantial progress toward completion of the city's $700,000,000 new subway system but has also resulted in far-reaching improvement and extension of service on existing lines.

Declaring that contracts will soon be let for 300 new steel cars for the main line of the municipal subway from 219th Street to Chambers Street and that contracts for a ten-year power supply will soon be advertised, Mayor Walker says that already $176,000,000 in contracts have been let in Brooklyn, Queens, Manhattan and the Bronx, providing for twenty-one miles of four-track road, with at least $100,000,000 more to be let this year.

$25,000,000 in New Land.

One of the outstanding features of the city's method of subway building, he adds, has been the use of excavated soil to build up, extend and regrade Riverside Park from Seventy-second Street to Spuyten Duyvil by filling in about eighty-seven acres of land. This, he declares, will add about $25,000,000 to the city's land values, or about $275,000 an acre, based upon existing values of adjacent properties. It has also helped, the article asserts, to aid the program for improvement of the west side riverfront by making possible relocation of many of the New York Central Railroad's tracks.

The main line of the new municipal subway, from 212th Street to Chambers Street, Mayor Walker writes, will probably be in operation late next year. Its stations will be 660 feet long, accommodating eleven-car trains, providing 30 per cent more capacity than stations of the B. M. T. and 55 per cent more than those of the I. R. T. The cars to be used on the line will be suitable for use on B. M. T. lines without modification should unification become a reality.

Sees Facilities Doubled.

The end of this year, Mayor Walker declares, will see the solution of all major problems in connection with the construction of a city-owned system reaching into four boroughs and doubling the city's rapid transit facilities.

Property owners, the article points out, have benefited and will continue to benefit from the legislation of 1928 which entitles them to 75 per cent of the assessed value of property taken by the city for use in subway construction at the time the title vests in the city. In this manner owners avoid the long wait for court proceedings to end and the city saves 6 per cent interest on the money.

Mayor Walker recalls his 1925 campaign pledge to preserve the five cent fare and to eliminate conflict and controversy over subway building. He tells of the conferences with State and city boards and private operators early in his Administration and of the successful campaign for the amendment to allow the city to exceed its debt limit by $300,000,000 to finance its proposed new subway system.

Among the accomplishments listed in Mayor Walker's article are the construction of yards and storage, repair and inspection facilities in Queens, Brooklyn, the Bronx and Manhattan for the B. M. T. and I. R. T. as required by the dual contracts of 1913. He describes the Coney Island yards of the B. M. T. as the largest of its kind in the world, costing $10,000,000.

Stay Halted Improvement.

Efforts to compel the I. R. T. to lengthen seventy-nine platforms at forty-three stations, Mayor Walker writes, were balked by the injunction in the seven-cent fare suit and the effort to make possible the use of ten-car instead of six-car trains in these stations was thwarted. But in forty stations on the B. M. T. lines, he points out, 530 foot platforms were built, making possible the addition of two more cars to each train and greatly relieving congestion.

Extension of the Queensboro line of the I. R. T. to Times Square, beginning of construction on the Nassau Street loop of the B. M. T., extension of the B. M. T.'s Fourteenth Street line to East New York and the letting of contracts for yards and stations on the city's new system are among the accomplishments also listed by the Mayor.

The Fifty-third Street crosstown line of the city's subway system, he writes, is a year ahead of the schedule, which calls for a line from Eighth Avenue, Manhattan, to Long Island City by 1931. Bids for the Houston Street crosstown line on the lower east side have already been received and bids will soon be asked for part of the Sixth Avenue line. Work on the Sixth Avenue extension, and lines along Church Street and Fulton Street, and under the East River to Brooklyn, is described as being prosecuted with all possible speed, while rapid progress is being made on the Bronx Concourse line, which will join the Manhattan line at 148th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue. Five contracts have been awarded on the Bronx line, totalling $28,000,000. It is expected that the entire route will be under contract by the end of this year. Substantial progress is reported on construction of the new subway lines in the Greenpoint section of Brooklyn and $15,000,000 worth of contracts, the Mayor says, have been let for sections in Long Island City, Queens.

Artificial Rubber Made by Germans

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The most human thing I read in the papers today, or this month.

The reform school in New Jersey gave a home coming and alumni meeting where over two hundred men who had been there as boys, lots of them now prominent, came back and told what they were doing. Some brought their wives and families with 'em. One told that he served five years there for larceny, and was now a big contractor installing burglar alarms in banks, and was bonded for $150,000.

It didn't give their names, but it ought to, for I believe it would endear every one of their standing in their home communities. It would at least be a change from that old success formula, "I started as a newsboy."

Bravo, New Jersey!

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

ADMITS HE KILLED TO AVENGE BROTHER

Italian, Held for Murder as Man He Shot Dies, Says Victim Slew Kinsman.

TELLS OF TWO-YEAR QUEST

Relative of Man Killed at Fort Lee, N. J., in 1927 Came Overseas to Hunt Down Supposed Slayer.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, Feb. 12.—Carmello Maisano, 35 years old, formerly of Italy but for the last year an emissary of revenge in a strange land, sat in his cell in the Westchester County jail here today and listened unmoved while the warden informed him that a charge of felonious assault lodged against him on Jan. 14 had been changed to one of murder. When he heard that Dominick Como, 32, of 49 South Main Street, Port Chester, had died in the County Hospital, at East View, today—just a month to the day after Maisano had knelt at his murdered brother's grave and sworn to avenge him—he smiled and said "He deserved to die."

Then, for the first time since he shot Como in Port Chester on the evening of Jan. 14, Maisano told his story of a murdered brother and the desire for revenge that obsessed him for two years.

On Aug. 4, 1927, Maisano's brother, Joseph, a real estate dealer, was shot and killed near his home in Fort Lee, N. J., by three men. Carmello Maisano was in his native Italy, but friends notified him of the murder, friends who told him that Dominick Como was one of the three men. They had shot Joseph, the friends told him, because Joseph refused to lend them money.

Maisano began to save money. He was not earning much in Italy and it was a long time before he had enough to pay his passage. But about a year ago he arrived in New York and began his search, traveling over the United States until Jan. 11 when somebody in Troy, N. Y., told him that the man he sought was in Westchester County.

Maisano hurried to Fort Lee and there, on Jan. 12, he knelt at his brother's grave and renewed his vow of vengeance. Then he began to search in towns between Stamford, Conn., and New York. At 5 o'clock on the evening of Jan. 14 he alighted from a bus at South Main and Grace Church Streets in Port Chester.

In the Italian section of the town he found and confronted Como. According to Maisano's story Como recognized him and reached for his hip pocket. Camello pulled out a pistol and fired three shots into Como; then turned and surrendered himself to the policeman who came hurrying up.

Carmello's belief that Como had something to do with the murder of his brother also is shared by Bergen County Detectives Walter Fraser and George Sardi, who visited the wounded man just before his death and served on him a detainer as a fugitive from justice. Had he lived, they said, he would have been taken to New Jersey and questioned regarding the murder.

LAUDS YOUNG GENERATION.

New English Bishop Says Its Demand for Freedom Is Misunderstood.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The younger generation found an outspoken defender today in Dr. Henry Albert Wilson, the new Anglican Bishop of Chelmsford, who was enthroned with impressive ceremony at Chelmsford Cathedral.

"There is something strikingly attractive in the younger generation," said the Bishop in his sermon, "something which makes one feel that if it could be won for God Christianity would make an unparalleled advance.

"The rising generation is often misjudged and often maligned. It is misunderstood because its demand for freedom—which I think is its most promising characteristic—is misinterpreted as a love of lawlessness.

"This impatience with convention and irritation at restraint are by no means necessarily bad things. Rightly understood, they are good things, for they are indications of independence of mind. Never was a generation more worth winning for Christ than the young men and women of post-war years."

M'KEE SEES COLLEGE AS HOPE IN POLITICS

Says at Columbia Corruption Is Due to Indifference of Educated Men and Women.

FINDS CITIES MISGOVERNED

Mediocre Office Holders Would Lose Out, He Asserts, if They Had Competition.

ALUMNI ELECT OFFICERS

Portrait of George II Presented to University — Graduates Attend Dinner and Basketball Game.

Corruption, extravagance and incompetence which blot the record of municipal government in the United States, "particularly in the largest cities," are due largely to the indifference of university trained men and women toward public affairs and the public good, Joseph V. McKee, President of the Board of Aldermen, told Columbia graduates who returned to Morningside Heights yesterday for their annual Alumni Day reunion.

"With few exceptions the college graduate on leaving college becomes engrossed in his own affairs," Mr. McKee said. "He hardly takes even an academic interest in public matters, though the solution of public problems ultimately affects him, his family and his pocketbook. His training has taught him to see things as they are, to form his own judgments, to express his thoughts with vigor and power, and to be able to convince others, but he does not apply this training to advance the best interests of his fellow-man.

Finds Cities' Records Shameful.

"What is the result? It is written in the record of practically every American city. It is a story of which we cannot be proud, for the records of the largest American cities are shameful in their degradation, corruption and waste. Millions of dollars could be saved in our budgets annually without loss to the people generally. But they are not saved because there is no will on the part of those in charge of city government to be wise or economical.

"If our cities are badly planned, if huge projects are mishandled, if public affairs are misgoverned, a great deal of the blame can be laid upon those university graduates who turn their backs upon the community's interest and leave the doing of important things to the ignorant and incompetent. The man of mediocre ability wouldn't be so successful in politics if he had some competition from well-trained minds."

Mr. McKee declared the function of a great university to be not only a place where learning might be acquired, but a centre for training people to raise the general level of society. He cited Woodrow Wilson, Calvin Coolidge and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler as conspicuous examples of college men who had devoted their learning to the benefit of their fellows.

Professor Howard Lee McBain, Ruggles Professor of Constitutional Law, forecasting "the future of American politics," doubted the possibility of any Liberal party rising in this country as contrasted with a conservative party. He declared such an insignificant portion of the electorate had a liberal philosophy that no liberal party would be effective. "We will struggle along with the two old parties," he predicted, "with the Republicans winning most of the time."

He saw only one chance of national catastrophe, and that one the outbreak of war. "We should be warned," he said, "that another war means Bolshevism here, as in Europe, covering all the wreckage of Western civilization."

Gives Portrait of George II.

Professor Dixon Ryan Fox, on behalf of the London alumni of Columbia, presented a painting of George II to the university. George II was the British King who signed the charter for King's College, from which Columbia grew. Telling how Englishmen who held honorary degrees from Columbia had helped defray the cost of the painting, Professor Fox said: "The friendship of the English-speaking peoples is here not a delicate subject to be handled with caution, but a common and continuing enthusiasm." He listed among the prominent Britons involved in the gift Lord Davidson, former Archbishop of Canterbury; Dr. Lang, now Primate; George Arliss and Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson.

Dr. Butler accepted the picture for the university.

John K. Fitch, '02, of Upper Montclair, N. J., president; William B. Symmes Jr., '96, first vice president; Dr. William H. McCastline, '05, second vice president; James L. Robinson, '04, third vice president; Charles G. Proffitt, '17, treasurer; Stephen P. Burke, '18, recording secretary; C. E. Lovejoy, '17, secretary.

During the afternoon the alumni made tours of various departments of the university. A tea was given by the Faculty Club, a special rehearsal of the varsity show was held and an athletic exhibition, a mock murder trial in the law school and a half-hour concert by the glee club completed the program. In the evening the annual alumni dinner preceded a basketball game between Columbia and the University of Pennsylvania. Alumni dinners were given in various cities across the country, each getting reports from the dinner and game here.

WANTS WNYC KEPT ON PRESENT TIME

Attorney for WMCA Asks Radio Commission to Enforce Recent Agreement Between Stations.

COURT ACTION IS PLANNED

Injunction May Be Sought Here by WMCA Against Return to Alternate Day Schedule.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Frank D. Scott, attorney for broadcasting station WMCA, New York, asked the Federal Radio Commission today for a hearing this week in an effort to effect some agreement between WMCA and the New York Municipal Station, WNYC, as to time division, so that the stations will not have to operate on alternate days beginning Feb. 18, as suggested by WNYC. The commission has taken no action on this request.

Mr. Scott said that on Nov. 13 the Commission had ordered the two stations, each on 570 kilocycles, to operate on alternate days, though this time division was to be subject "to any division of time mutually agreed upon between said stations." He said that when this arrangement was not found to operate economically or satisfactorily, another time division was made.

It was further agreed, Mr. Scott said, that this time division would be effective until an appeal decision in the case of WNYC was handed down by the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia. On this basis, Mr. Scott declared "the operators of WMCA proceeded to arrange their future schedules, made contracts for the future use of the time assigned to Radio Station WMCA under such agreement and otherwise incurred legal obligations for the future operating time of WMCA under such schedule."

Mr. Scott said WMCA had now been informed by WNYC that effective Feb. 18 the old schedule of operating on alternate days would go into effect, and he therefore asked the Radio Commission to "issue an order to said radio stations, WMCA and WNYC requiring adherence to the schedule of time division made Jan. 2, 1929."

Station WMCA will seek an immediate injunction in the Supreme Court in New York County to prevent WNYC, the municipal broadcaster, from introducing its proposed "day on and day off" plan of sharing time on the 526-meter wave, as suggested by the Federal Radio Commission to end the dispute between the two stations, according to an announcement yesterday by officials of WMCA.

Albert Goldman, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, under whose supervision the municipal station is operated, announced on Feb. 8 that beginning on Monday, Feb. 18, the city station would take full time on alternate days.

L. K. Gilliam, Director of WMCA, commenting on the situation, said yesterday:

"We told WNYC that we would gladly stand by for them any time for any reasonable city broadcast of an official nature, so there is obviously no necessity whatever in their trying to enforce the day on and day off plan with us, hence we have taken definite steps to prevent its consummation. We claim that there have been city broadcasts which were called official, but which were not important enough to require their asking for our time.

"On one occasion we told WNYC men we would stand by for one of their broadcasts at a certain time. They started in some minutes before the agreed time, breaking into one of our broadcasts. We do not desire the day on and day off plan because of the nature of our contracts, and we can see no reason for WNYC trying to enforce it. We are opposing it to the best of our ability."

Commissioner Goldman declared yesterday that WNYC intended to start the new plan next Monday as arranged. He said both WMCA and the Federal Radio Commission had been notified to that effect and arrangements were going forward.

Richard V. Oulahan, Washington correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES, will be the first speaker in a series of radio programs which will begin tonight at 7:45 o'clock over WJZ's network under the general title, "The Political Situation in Washington Tonight." The series will be heard from Washington weekly at the same hour, and will present various correspondents in talks of a similar nature, according to the National Broadcasting Company.

The boxing bouts scheduled to be held at Madison Square Garden on Friday night, when Jack Fields and "Baby" Joe Gans are to meet in the final contest, will be broadcast beginning at 9 o'clock over WMSG. Harry Ebbetts and Osk Till will meet in the semi-final bout.

FORD SEEKS RADIO PERMIT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—C. R. Vorrhees appeared before the Federal Radio Commission today on behalf of the Ford Motor Car Comany and asked for a construction permit for a new station to communicate with the Ford Rubber Plantations in Brazil and also for a renewal of licenses for the Ford company's stations WCT, at L'Anse, Mich., and WBO at Dearborn, Mich. The latter, he said, are for private use in ship-and-shore communication with Ford vessels on the Great Lakes.

The projected station for messages to Brazil, said Mr. Vorrhees, is for private and limited public service. He estimated that the traffic at the beginning would be about 1,000 words a day, but that it would continually increase.

Colonel James H. Hayes also appeared before the commission today on behalf of the Southern Radio Corporation, New York City, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company, and asked for a construction permit for a station to be erected in New Jersey and to communicate with Houston, Texas, and Tulsa, Okla. The desired station, he said, would have 1,000 watts power and operate on short-wave assignments.

Sight Failing, Woman Ends Life.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Feb. 12.—Despondency over failing eyesight led Mrs. H. Estelle Kent, wife of former Councilman Herbert E. Kent of 460 Monroe Avenue, to commit suicide in her home last night by inhaling gas, according to a note which she left. When Mr. Kent came home he found the front and rear doors locked. A neighbor helped him force a way in. They found Mrs. Kent's body in the gas-filled kitchen. Jets under the water heater were open.

HUNTER ALUMNAE HONOR CLASS OF '79

MEMORIAL FENCE PLANNED

To Surround New Buildings—G. E. O'Dell Calls Movie Theatre "True Church" of Young America.

The growth of Hunter College to the position of the largest college for women in the world was emphasized yesterday afternoon at the annual breakfast of the Hunter Associate Alumnae in the Hotel Astor. The meeting marked the fifty-ninth birthday of the institution and the golden jubilee of the Class of 1879. Over 700 former students of the college attended the celebration.

Mrs. Maxwell Hall Elliott, president of the Alumni Association, presided and announced plans for a memorial fence around the new Hunter College to be built on the Jerome Park Reservoir tract. The Class of 1919, she said, had pledged between $500 and $600 for its section of the fence and it was hoped other classes would make it possible to build such an enclosure entirely around the new buildings.

Dr. James M. Kieran, president of the college, said that if the Board of Estimate allowed an additional appropriation it would be possible to open four new buildings at the same time the first building was expected to be completed. The college had 5,500 day students, he reported, as compared with 548 in 1908. There are 11,976 students in the extension division and 3,000 in the Summer School.

A group of undergraduates, six to represent the Class of 1929 and as many more, dressed in costumes of the Seventies, to represent the Class of 1879, gathered around the honored alumni and sang their praises. Mrs. P. C. Ralli, one of the few graduates of the 1879 Class present, responded and told the students about college life and dress fifty years ago.

"The Art and Ethics of the Motion Picture Theatre" was the subject of an address to the gathering by George E. O'Dell, editor of "The Standard," a publication of the Ethical Culture Society. Mr. O'Dell declared that the motion picture theatre of today was the "true church" of young America.

"All sorts go to church," he said, "from all sorts of notions. Some go to show their clothes, some because their friends go and some because they have no where else to go. But when you go to the movies and plank down a dollar, you are going there to get your money's worth. And there you are receptive."

Mr. O'Dell said the motion picture theatres were successful because they were "not running an organization for the teaching of ideals and they never call in advisers on moral ideals as to what is to be presented and what is not." He said he could not blame movie producers for inferior pictures, because their business "was too large for them and had run away with them." To improve motion pictures, he urged "the inclusion in them of great art."

Another speaker was Edward Percy Howard, editor of the Fox Movietone News. Mr. Howard described the influence of news reels in dispelling provincialism and in bringing to spectators intimate glimpses of the peoples of foreign lands. He touched briefly on Lincoln, paying tribute to the simplicity of the Civil War President.

5TH AV. TOWERS' FATE WILL BE DECIDED TODAY

Association Is Expected to Agree to Whalen's Request for Removal of $125,000 Gifts to City.

Important developments in the Fifth Avenue traffic situation are expected to follow today's scheduled meeting of the directors of the Fifth Avenue Association at the Uptown Club, 17 West Forty-second Street, to consider Police Commissioner Whalen's request that they agree to the removal of seven bronze signal towers which they gave to the city.

The Fifth Avenue towers cost $125,000 and some of the directors are understood to favor their retention. It has been said that the members of the association wish to cooperate with Commissioner Whalen in every possible way, and it is believed favorable action will be taken on his proposal, because he has promised to replace the towers with a more efficient signal system.

Acting Commissioner Hoyt was invited to attend the meeting because Commissioner Whalen is in Florida, but Mr. Hoyt said he would be unable to attend. He will be supervising the traffic survey which opens on the main avenues of the city this morning at 8 o'clock. Fifty traffic policemen have been assigned to distribute 60,000 questionnaires among motorists today, tomorrow and Friday to gather data for Day & Zimmermann, Mayor Walker's traffic engineers.

FLAMES DAMAGE OIL PLANT.

Three Jersey Towns Send Aid as Linden Refinery Is Menaced.

Special to The New York Times.

LINDEN, N. J., Feb. 12—Fire, believed to have resulted from a spark in an electric gasoline pump, resulted in $100,000 damage at the Warner Quinlan plant here this morning. The blaze had reached the storage tanks before it was extinguished. A general alarm was sounded and aid called from Elizabeth and Rahway.

Frank Terrill, pumpman, was preparing to fill tank cars at the loading rack and had just pressed the button to start the pump when a flare ignited the apparatus and spread instantaneously through the pump room. Terrill dashed out of the building, barely escaping injury. Despite flames roaring about him, Terrill shut off several lines and had just closed an overhead tank when a blast transformed it into a furnace. According to Superintendent I. K. Giles, fire damaged the pump room, three agitators, two stills, the loading racks, manifolds and pumps.

Explosions in quick succession sent firemen running to safety and spread the flames, but the two Linden engine companies, reinforced by equipment from Elizabeth and Rahway, got the blaze under control after a hard fight.

SPECIAL SERVICES BEGIN LENT TODAY

Ash Wednesday to Be Marked by Masses and Distribution of Ashes at St. Patrick's.

BISHOP SHIPMAN WILL BE AT TRINITY

Morning and Afternoon Sermons to Be Preached at Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Lent begins today and Easter will fall on March 31. In observance of Ash Wednesday all Roman Catholic, Protestant Episcopal and Lutheran and many other churches will hold services today.

The Right Rev. Herbert Shipman, junior suffragan bishop of the Diocese of New York, will preach at Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church, Broadway at Wall Street, at noon today and again at noon tomorrow. The noon preacher on Friday will be the Right Rev. Arthur S. Lloyd, senior suffragan bishop of this diocese. The main Trinity parish service will be at 10:30 o'clock this morning. This will be preceded by morning prayer at 10 o'clock. The first celebration of the Holy Communion will be at 7:30 o'clock. Evening prayer will be said at 4:40.

Churches to Distribute Ashes.

Ashes will be distributed at all services at St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Chapel, Broadway between Fulton and Vesey Streets. The first service will a celebration of Holy Communion at 8 o'clock. At 10:30 o'clock there will be morning prayer. At noon there will be the "Miserere." Another service will be held at 12:30, and the final worship will be "Meditations" at 5 o'clock.

There will be distributions of ashes after each service today in St. Patrick's Cathedral. Early masses will be as on Sunday. Solemn mass will be sung at 9 o'clock, at which the adult male choir will be assisted by 120 students from Cathedral College and fifty boys from the Cathedral School. The final mass will be at 12:15. Lenten devotions will begin this evening and will include a sermon by Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, the rector.

A course of lectures during the five Thursday evenings in Lent will be given in Cathedral College, Madison Avenue and Fifty-first Street, by Dr. James J. Walsh, Catholic historian and physician, on "The Centenary of Catholic Emancipation."

At the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, Amsterdam Avenue and 110th Street, a sermon will be preached at 11 o'clock today by the Rev. Cranston Brenton, sacrist of the cathedral. At 5 o'clock this afternoon there will be evening prayer and a sermon by the Rev. W. Dudley F. Hughes, precentor. The day will begin with Holy Communion at 7 o'clock, followed by another celebration of communion at 7:30. Morning prayer will be said at 10 o'clock.

Church of the Transfiguration.

The Rev. Dr. Randolph Ray, the rector, will preach at the "Missa Cantata" service at 11 o'clock this morning in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration (the Little Church Around the Corner), Twenty-ninth Street, east of Fifth Avenue. Dr. Ray will conduct the "Quiet Hour and Meditation" this evening. The first celebration of the Holy Communion will be at 7 o'clock this morning and the second at 8 o'clock. Matins will be said at 10:30. There will be a Vesper service at 5 o'clock.

High mass will be offered at 10:45 this morning in the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin, Forty-sixth Street, between Broadway and Sixth Avenue. This evening there will be vespers and a sermon by the Rev. Dr. Selden P. Delany, the rector. There will be a service at noon each week during Lent, except Saturday. Tuesday evenings there will be the Way of the Cross and an address. Friday evenings during Lent there will be Benediction and an address.

"The Christ of the Upper Room" will be the topic this evening of the first of a series of Lenten sermons to be preached Wednesday nights by the Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, pastor of the Marble Collegiate Reformed Church, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street.

Rossini's "Stabat Mater" will be sung under the direction of Clarence Dickinson Friday noon at the first of a series of weekly Lenten musical services in the Brick Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street.

Beginning tomorrow, Professor F. S. B. Gavin of the General Theological Seminary will lecture Thursdays at 5 o'clock during Lent in St. Thomas's Church under the auspices of the National Church Club for Women and the Episcopal Church Club. His general topic will be "Christianity, Its Crises and Critics."

The Rev. Dr. J. Valdimar Moldenhawer will begin this evening a course of Wednesday night Lenten lectures on "Great Books of Religion" at the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Twelfth Street. Tonight his particular theme will be "The Confessions of St. Augustine."

"Stabat Mater" to Be Sung.

Rossini's "Stabat Mater" will be sung this evening at 8 o'clock in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street. The first service will be the holy communion at 8:30. At 11 o'clock the Rev. Dr. Donald B. Aldrich, the rector, will preach. At 5:15 o'clock there will be a "children's church" service. A service for children will be held each Tuesday during Lent at 5:15.

Parts of Gaul's "Holy City" will be sung this evening at 7:30 o'clock by the Vocal Union in the Middle Collegiate Reformed Church, Second Avenue and Seventh Street. The Rev. Dr. Edgar Franklin Romig, the pastor, will begin an exposition of the Epistle to the Ephesians, and he will continue this each Wednesday evening during Lent.

Bishop Herbert Shipman will preach at a "community service" at 5:15 o'clock this afternoon in St. James's Protestant Episcopal Church, Madison Avenue and Seventy-first Street. Holy communion will be celebrated at 8 o'clock this morning. The Rev. Dr. Frank Warfield Crowder, the rector, will preach at 11 o'clock. There will be evensong at 8 o'clock tonight.

The Rev. William F. Phillips will preach this evening at the first of a series of Wednesday night services during Lent in St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church, 218 West Eleventh Street. Communion will be celebrated at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

AMERICAN HURT IN GERMANY

Arthur Zollner of Chicago Also Loses $5,000 in Train Accident.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—Arthur Zollner, a German-American, whose legs were broken in three different places in a railway accident near Leipzig last night, is reported to be out of danger, although he suffers greatly from his injuries, which include a large wound in the head.

After having been treated in a hospital at Brehna, near the scene of the accident, Mr. Zollner discovered he had lost $5,000 which, he said, must have gone astray in the excitement that followed the crash.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—The family of Arthur Zollner, foreign representative of the Apex Electrical Company of Cleveland, have had no direct word from him, it was said tonight at his home, 1,407 Jarvis Avenue, Chicago.

Mr. Zollner has been abroad since last July in the interests of his firm and was expected to return to this country within a few weeks. He is married and the father of three small children. Mrs. Zollner is cabling tonight to the hospital at Lansberg, Germany, where Mr. Zollner was taken after the collision between the Munich-Berlin and the Berlin-Stuttgart express trains, she said.

Cyclone Damages Madagascar.

PARIS, Feb. 12 (AP).—A message received by the Ministry of Colonies today states that a cyclone crossed the island of Madagascar from east to west on Sunday, cutting off communications to the north. There was considerable property damage at Tananarivo, the capital, last night, caused by a second and less violent windstorm, but no loss of life was reported.

25,000 Pass Through Gates During Second Day of Westminster Show—My Nominee Wins.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Madison Square Garden was besieged yesterday by the greatest and most enthusiastic gathering of dog fanciers that has ever gathered under one roof in this country. All day long, from the opening hour in the morning until the doors were closed on the last visitor, spectators jammed the aisles about the judging rings until it was impossible to force a passage. They milled about down in the exhibition hall, many failing to get more than a fleeting glimpse of their favorite breeds. Twenty-five thousand passed through the gates, some coming in the morning and going out only for hurried meals to return and to remain until the closing hour.

Rings in which the most popular breeds were judged were taken possession of early in the day and the seats were not relinquished until the last dog was judged. The holiday crowd saw some of the most interesting judging in many a dog show day, although it was impossible for the enthusiasts to get much of an idea of what was going on in the rings, except by watching the scoreboards. It was the stiffest test that the Westminster Kennel Club officials ever have faced and the elaborate details that have been worked out were equal to every demand.

It was a problem frequently for the handlers to force a passage through the crowds to the rings, and this especially was true in the case of big breeds. But, thanks to the telephone system, ample time was given and there were few delays, despite the tremendous crowds.

Spectators Fill Balconies.

Both afternoon and evening, spectators who filled the balconies looked down upon colorful scenes. The twelve judging rings, empty save for the officials, handlers and dogs being judged at the moment, stood out in sharp relief against the throngs packed about them. Brilliant lights shone down upon the picture, which was kaleidoscopic in its ever-changing coloration. All about were the orange and purple decorations, the colors of the Westminster Kennel Club, which vied in brilliance with the costumes and vivid headgear of the women fanciers.

Not ever before—not even in the great days of the Morgan-Untermyer rivalries—has there been such an outstanding collie as went to the top of the breed. Never, of course, has there been such an aggregation of topnotch representatives of this great working breed as came before Dr. Carleton Y. Ford of Montreal for judgment. Formerly there were one or two fine specimens. This week there are 121 dogs benched, all of them good, many of them great—champions on both sides of the water.

It was, therefore, one of the greatest victories scored thus far in the fifty-third annual dog show of the Westminster Kennel Club when the recently imported dog Laund Loyalty of Bellhaven, a puppy born just nine months ago to a day, and owned by Mrs. Florence B. Ilch of the Bellhaven Kennels of Red Bank, N. J., triumphed. He won open dogs of any solid color, winner dogs, best of winners and best of breed. In going to the top he bowled over many stars and champions, creating a sensation among the fanciers of the breed.

In dogs Mrs. Ilch scored a double triumph, since the reserve winner was her American bred Bellhaven Stronghold II. Her new start is a wonderful specimen—a light sable, with a lot of white on feet. He has a magnificent collar and that true collie expression, enhanced by a splendid carriage of ears. He was shown in perfect bloom. This great dog won the Grand Challenge Cup at the English Collie Club show, where he defeated 385 dogs.

American-Breds Triumph.

Best of the bitches was Spirit of Arken, shown by Raymond Visscher of Holland, Mich. She is a dark sable, with a fine head, excellent bone and was shown in good coat. Reserve to her was Alstead Aviatrix, another American-bred collie, shown by Mrs. C. M. Lunt of Rahway, N. J. The success of the American-breds against the famous imported dogs and bitches shows that great collies are being bred on this side of the water.

When it came to best of winners the puppy scored rather easily, as he stood out. He had a great battle against the champions for best of breed, but Dr. Ford stood by his convictions and sent him to the very top of his breed. It was a field day for the noted New Jersey breeder, who wound up the day by winning the class for the best brace and that for the best team.

Boston terriers were the attraction for thousands of enthusiasts in the breed and they saw the greatest collection of these attractive little fellows that has been brought together anywhere. In dogs Mrs. Hilda M. Ridder of this city scored handsomely, showing her great little dog My Nominee, a dog which is beautifully marked. Reserve was Endle's Speed King Jr., owned by Mrs. A. H. Endle of East Cleveland, Ohio. He is a red brindle of decidedly terrier type.

Among the bitches, the evenly-balanced McKeon's Mitzi, owned by Bob McKeon of Medford, Mass., went to the top. She is of the modern type of Boston and beat the fine puppy Diana of Ravenroyd, an exceedingly fine type of Boston. The bitch went to best of winners, where she was beaten for best of breed by Champion Reign Count, owned and shown in the ring by Mrs. L. B. Daley of Wyandotte, Mich. He is of the finer type of Boston terrier, is a magnificent specimen of the breed and was splendidly shown in the ring by his owner. He beat a dozen champions and many other great dogs.

Gun-dog men in great numbers from all over the country watched the judging of the English setters by James Anderson of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J. The result was a fine victory for Ernest W. Smoot of Washington, a son of the United States Senator, who showed his Penine Patron to take winners, dogs best of winners and best of breed. To go to the top he had to defeat the English champion, Fred of Crombie, shown by D. C. Kok of Palo Alto, Cal., which won at Baltimore. Penine Patron excelled slightly in cleanness of skull and shoulder and appeared freer in action.

Imported Dog Beaten.

Airedale terriers are coming back strongly once more, and there was a fine collection for Harold Ober to pass upon. Best of the dogs was Crackley Style of Strathway, which won in the open dogs and took winners. The recently imported dog, Flornell Masterpiece, which did a lot of winning in England, could finish no better than third in the open class.

The winning dog was beaten, however, by winning bitch Wagtail Jess, shown by Adelaide Durant of Roslyn, L. I. The bitches were a better lot than the dogs on the average, and it was a splendid victory that was scored by the Durant entry. She is one of the finest airedales seen in a long time, with a nice, clean head, is of the right size and has plenty of bone.

The Garden all day was the rendezvous for shepherd fanciers and breeders from all parts of the United States and Canada. Arko von Sadowaberg of Jessford, owned by the Jessford Kennels of Mr. and Mrs. Fordham C. Mahony of Roslyn, L. I., repeated his triumph at the club specialty show held earlier in the Winter. The former German Sieger was in top form and defeated, among others, the winning dog, the Giralda Farms' Hettel von Bodman, which was best of winners.

Mr. and Mrs. Stix Score.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stix of Cincinnati, who came East a year ago and created a sensation among the Cairn terrier owners with Gillad of Cairnmore, repeated with the same dog this year. He is a very lovely wheaten dog of the correct size and was shown in splendid condition. He has been scoring everywhere since his last Westminster victory and now sports the prefix of champion. His success was presaged by his triumph at the Cairn specialty show last Saturday. Best of winners was Ch. Snelston Simon of Tapscot, shown by the Tapscot Kennels.

Smooth fox terriers also were judged yesterday, the winner being Wattean Dominella, the bitch owned by E. Coe Kerr and Robert Sedgwick, which scored at Sunday's specialty show. Again she was beaten for best fox terrier when Russell H. Johnson Jr. returned from Philadelphia to make the final award in the breed.

She was beaten by Eden Aristocrat of Wildoaks, the wire-haired terrier owned by Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Bondy of Goldenbridge, N. Y., which made such a sensational American début on the opening day of the show and now will go into the terrier variety group today as the representative of the foxterriers.

Orfort Golden Sprite Scores.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic C. Brown of New York started off well on the opening day by taking best of breed with their great little cocker spaniel Champion Lucknow Creme de la Creme. That gave them one variety group candidate and they added another today in a different group, scoring in Pomeranians with their famous champion, Orfort Golden Sprite.

There was a large turnout of the Poms, which continue to be the most popular of all the toy varieties on this side of the water. Dr. Carleton Y. Ford of Montreal judged the breed and was complimented with an entry of 115 with eighty-two dogs actually benched. Winners, dogs, went to that very noted Champion Bogota Firebug, bred and owned by Miss E. G. Hydon of Bogota, N. J., which was best of breed in the Garden a year ago and went on to take the highest honors among the toys. Reserve was won by his kennel mate Sunbright Bijou of Bogota.

Best of the bitches was Minegold Junebird, owned by R. G. Schlegel of Pittsburgh, reserve going to the Pinegrade Kennels' Sunbright Fairy Queen. Bogota Firebug easily defeated the bitch for best of winners, but faced a different proposition when he came up against Orfort Golden Sprite. It is interesting to note that while Bogota Firebug went to the top a year ago, the Brown entry did not figure in the competition. It is a striking example of the shifting fortunes of the show game.

Golden Sprite has improved greatly since last year and also has gained his championship in the interval. He had to be a good one to defeat Miss Hydon's star. He is a beautiful deep orange dog, about as perfect in head as it is possible for a Pom to be. He has Pomeranian individuality of the highest type.

Chihuahuas were benched in goodly numbers, best of the winners being the bitch Larchmont Miss Columbia, shown by Mrs. Henrietta Proctor Donnell of Larchmont, N. Y.

For best of breed, however, she was beaten by that perennial champion, La Rex Doll Chicuelo, owned by Mrs. Harry S. Peaster of Philadelphia. He was best of breed a year ago at Westminster and has also gained his championship title through innumerable victories since that time.

Champion Dusty, the English toy spaniel shown by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence D. Barlow of Absecon, N. J., repeated his victory of a year ago. He was shown for specials only and beat the best of the winners, Ashton More Crystal, shown by Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Matthewson of Weymouth, Mass.

There was only a fair showing of Brussels griffons, best of them being the well known Plume des Vizors of All Celie, owned by Mrs. C. de la Torre Bueno of New Rochelle, a very fine specimen, put down in great condition.

The homebred Maltese Lady Clio of Arr, owned by Mrs. James Gardner Rossman of Plainfield, N. J., cleaned up in that breed, taking winners, bitches, best of winners and best of breed. It is the first time in several years that the breed has been represented in the Garden and thirteen were benched this year.

Six Papillons in Class.

Every year a few Papillons are benched among the toys and this year six were entered. The general show-going public never has a chance to see these attractive little dogs—"butterfly dogs," as they are called—outside of the Garden and then does not realize that the sprightly little fellows have been bred for three centuries in France. It is from his outspread, softly fringed ears that he takes his butterfly nickname. This is considered the hardiest of all the toy breeds. He is quiet and gentle in disposition, but bold and is generally free from nervousness and makes an ideal little pet.

Mrs. William D. Goff of Concord, Mass., always has a few and she showed the winner this year, as she did a year ago. This was the imported bitch Poulette des Giroflees, a typical specimen, put down in good shape.

Of the toy black and tans the best was the bitch La Rex Doll Princess, owned by Mrs. Harry S. Peaster of Philadelphia. There were only a few Yorkshire terriers, the one going to the top being Mead's Lady Gay II, shown by Miss Edythe Mead of Newark.

Best of the fair number of Japanese spaniels benched was the nice Keuwanna Fairlight Fugi, a homebred shown by the Keuwanna Kennels of Ardmore, Pa.

A record-breaking entry of Samoyedes was benched in the Garden this year, there being twenty-five individual specimens. Sheepherds of the reindeer herds, hardy sled dogs and intimate and faithful companions and guardians, this beautiful breed is steadily gaining in general popularity. He has a most admirable temperament, the Sammy, and his beautiful and deep white coat and dark eye make him a most striking individual.

Gorka Best of Dogs.

Best of the dogs shown was Gorka, the very fine young homebred shown by Mrs. Horace Mann of Trenton, N. J. He was beaten for best of winners by the bitch Norka's Tasia, shown by the Norka Kennels of Nanuet, N. Y. The latter went to best of breed, thereby defeating her sire, Ch. Toby II of Yurak, shown by the same kennels.

There are more bloodhounds in the world today than since the close of the war. Big breeds took a great slump in England during the world conflict, but the bloodhound is coming back on both sides of the water and the trend is toward a more useful dog. There are still many enthusiastic breeders of bloodhounds scattered over the United States, and in communities where his wonderful nose and persistency can be used for man-tracking he is becoming more popular than ever.

The bloodhound also has his place in hunting and as a companion, as he is very docile and full of affection for his master. They have great endurance, but are dogs of the open spaces and have no place in a city home. Last year not a single specimen was shown at Westminster, while five were entered this year. Leon F. Whitney of New Haven had first and second in the American-bred class with Barbara of White Isle, but in the open class the winner was Fosgate's Masterman, shown by Edward Abrams of Philadelphia.

Lassie of the Farm Wins.

There was a fair turnout of old English sheepdogs. The winner was the veteran Ch. Lassie of the Farm, shown by Mrs. Wilbur Kirby Hitchcock of Pleasantville, N. Y., a fine dog, but which has been shown in better coat. Mrs. Laura A. Dohring's famous Ch. Cliffwold Minstrel Boy, best of greed here a year ago, was not shown yesterday.

Not in many years has the old-time mastiff been shown until a few specimens were benched this week. The best of the lot was the imported bitch Mattesdon Tondelayo Goodbreed, shown by Joanna Chapman of Greenwich, Conn.

Newfoundlands are among the other breeds of big dogs that have had their ups and downs in the last half century. There are still a few great admirers of the noble breed that Landseer depicted so faithfully.

Best of those shown was the all-black specimen Sir Lavaine, exhibited by Edwin H. Morris of Sparkill, N. Y. He is a big, sound and active dog, with a fine body, tremendous bone and with a flat skull. With all his size and activity, he is a very affectionate and obedient dog. By taking best of breed he won the Northover Prince Memorial Trophy for the year. This $200 cup must be won five times before becoming the property of the owner.

Mrs. B. F. Lewis's famous old champion greyhound Rosemont Liskeard Fortunatus still is able to give the best of them a battle, and was judged best of the breed, defeating his kennel mate Ch. Lansdowne Liskeard Aurora, best of the bitches. The latter previously had been over George S. West's bitch Gamecock Daisy White, which had been the winner at the 1928 exhibition.

Field Spaniel Class Small.

Mrs. S. Y. L'Hommedieu Jr. of Morristown, N. J., dominated the small entry of field spaniels, her dog Wribbenhall Widgeon repeating his victory of a year ago.

Joseph P. Day's whippet Nora of Sion Hall took winners bitches, but was beaten for best of breed by her kennel mate Patricia of Sion Hill, which repeated her victory of a year ago.

The sole specimen of the Briard, the general purpose dog of France, was Patou, shown by Ida Quigley Whelan. The breed was recognized by the American Kennel Club less than a year ago, but has not struck the public fancy. There are few in this country, and they have been shown infrequently.

Champion Buccaneer, owned by H. H. Stewart of Wynnwood, Pa., received the award of best of breed in the bull terrier class on the first day of the show. Through an error on the part of those compiling the official list of awards it was stated that this honor had gone to another dog.

Van Ryn Beats Tilden in Straight Sets in Final of Casino Indoor Tennis Play

TILDEN IS BEATEN IN STRAIGHT SETS

Loses to Van Ryn in Final of Heights Casino Indoor Tennis by 6-1, 6-4, 6-2.

ALSO BOWS IN THE DOUBLES

Van Ryn and Hall Conquer Hunter and Tilden by Score of 6-2, 9-7, 4-6, 7-5.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

The same lack of success which marked the final appearance of William Tilden in 1928, when he was beaten by Fritz Mercur in the Eastern championship at Rye shortly before he was barred from amateur competition, attended the former champion's first attempt yesterday to win a tournament after his six-months' lay-off when he suffered one of the most decisive defeats ever inflicted upon him.

In the final round of the invitation indoor tournament of the Heights Casino in Brooklyn, John Van Ryn of East Orange, N. J., sixth in the national ranking, held a capacity gallery spellbound as he overwhelmed Tilden in the short space of fifty minutes by the conclusive score of 6—1, 6—4, 6—2.

It was this same young Princeton graduate who put out Frank Hunter on Monday, and his performance yesterday, coming on top of that victory over the No. 2 ranking player of the country, stamped him unquestionably as one of the greatest Davis Cup assets the United States has to put in the field this year.

In Command Throughout.

Against Hunter, Van Ryn was forced to assume a defensive rôle for the first half of the match, and averted defeat only by the margin of two points. Yesterday the hard-hitting, business-like young player from New Jersey held command from the outset, and the gallery, which packed every seat in the Casino, while scores sought vainly to gain admittance, quickly sensed the herculean task that faced Tilden.

In the final chapter Van Ryn got the jump in the first game and Tilden barely managed to prevent another break in the fifth. That game was the last he won. Van Ryn, hitting just as hard as at the outset, won the sixth on service, broke through in the seventh with a series of irresistible volleys and brought the play to an end in the eighth.

Tilden Misses Chance for Cup.

In winning the tournament, Van Ryn kept the Casino challenge trophy in competition another year. Tilden holds two legs on it and he would have captured it outright had he won the final.

The Jersey youth gained further honors later in the day when he returned to the courts with J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., and defeated Tilden and Hunter in the final of the doubles, 6—2, 9—7, 4—6, 7—5.

This was the third match of the day for both Tilden and Van Ryn. After losing to the Jersey youth in the singles, Tilden went on the court with Hunter to defeat Elmer Griffin and S. Howard Voshell in the semi-finals of the doubles, 6—4, 6—4. Van Ryn and Hall gained their final bracket by putting out Harry Brunie and Charles S. Garland, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3. In a second round match in the morning, Griffin and Voshell won from Melvin Partridge and A. Baisley Sheridan, 6—2, 6—4.

GRECO-ROMAN TITLE IS WON BY BUCHER

STRACK THROWS LEHR

The first Greco-Roman wrestling championship competition held in this city was contested yesterday at the Teutonia Assembly Hall, Third Avenue and East Sixteenth Street, under the auspices of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States. Six champions were crowned in all except the 112-pound and 118-pound classes.

Carl Bucher, representing the German-American A. C., outpointed Karl Kutelis of the West Side Y. M. C. A. to gain the heavyweight title in a rough bout that went into an overtime period. Bucher was credited with one point for turning his opponent's left shoulder toward the mat and two more for aggressiveness.

In the shortest bout of the evening Ernest Strack of the New York Athletic Club captured the 175-pound title by throwing Clarence Lehr of the A. T. O. House in 39 seconds. Lehr stepped into a head-and-arm chancery hold, and Strack threw him with a rolling fall.

Matthias Melsenbach of the German-American A. C. threw John Farmakitis, unattached, in 1:35 to gain the 135-pound title. The preliminary and semi-final rounds were held during the afternoon and the finals at night. Each man who won a championship defeated the one who finished in second place, and each third place winner came by that position by eliminating another loser in the semi-final rounds.

Greco-Roman wrestling differs from catch-as-can in that in the catch-as-can style holds are allowed on any part of the body, while in the former holds are permitted only above the hips.

The tournament was held by the German-American A. C., and its president, Dietrich Wortmann, predicted that America would enter a team in this field in the next Olympic Games.

The summaries:

126-Pound Class—Won by Jack Lichtenberg, German-American A. C.; Franz Schuite, German-American A. C., second; Ernest Behrndt, Bronx-Union Y. M. C. A., third.

SCHAEFER DEFEATS MATSUYAMA, 400-331

Gains Lead on Run of 182 in 11th Inning After Trailing by 242-54 in 7th.

PLAYS FOR TITLE TONIGHT

To Meet Cochran for World's 18.2 Crown—Horemans Rallies to Beat Hagenlacher, 400-315.

Although he enjoyed a lead of 242 to 54 in the seventh inning of his match with Jake Schaefer of San Francisco at the Level Club yesterday afternoon, Kinrey Matsuyama, the little Japanese cue wizard, whose playing in the current world's championship 18.2 balkline billiard tournament has been a sensation, fell before the coast star by 400 to 331 in eighteen innings.

The defeat, which was the second in succession sustained by the Oriental, resulted in Matsuyama's definite elimination from title possibilities. It was Matsuyama's final game of the tournament. The lead, which Matsuyama held from the start of the tourney by virtue of three consecutive victories, is now shared by Shaefer and Welker Cochran, each with a record of three victories and one defeat. They will meet in the deciding game tonight.

Edouard Horemans, the Belgian, who started in the tourney as the defending champion, made a good spurt to subdue Eric Hagenlacher, 400 to 315, in the evening contest. This game lasted twenty innings, and the high runs were 131 for Horemans, as against 92 for Hagenlacher.

This was the final contest of the tourney for both competitors.

Horeman's Victory Sent Him Into a Tie with Matsuyama.

Schaefer's 182 Is High Run.

Schaefer and Matsuyama each had only one big inning in their encounter. The latter's best session was the first, when he made his high run of 120. Schaefer tagged along in haphazard fashion until the eleventh inning, when he ran 182 to take the lead that his rival held from the start. The Japanese fought bravely to recover the advantage, but Schaefer played steadily, ending the game with an unfinished run of 52. He averaged 22 4-18, and Matsuyama 19 8-17.

Schaefer won the lag, but made only 2 points. Matsuyama took his turn at the table, and ran off his high streak of 120. The calm, deliberate methods that have marked all his performances were in evidence during the compilation of the string. Finding the balls scattered, Matsuyama played a cushion game well enough to bring the ivories together within a few shots. Then, when he had them grouped, the Japanese player nursed the spheres expertly, and reeled off his cluster with unusual speed.

Schaefer was unable to get started so early, and at the end of his eighth inning had only 78 points. Matsuyama, however, remained consistent up to the seventh session, when he ran his total to 242 with a cluster of 29. He had his first scoreless inning in the eighth. Each player failed to click in the ninth, but in the tenth Schaefer drew up with a 54.

Schaefer Plays Brilliantly.

After Matsuyama made 4 in his turn, Schaefer got in stroke to turn in his string of 182. The coast star gave a brilliant demonstration of real balkline play during the run, which ended when he failed on a cushion carom.

Matsuyama threatened in the following sessions, especially in the fifteenth, when he ran 55, but Schaefer had the situation in hand, and gradually approached the 400 mark. He ran his unfinished 52 quickly, playing the corners to perfect.

Pell Regains Gold Racquet by Defeating Mortimer in 4-Game Final at Tuxedo Club

Special to The New York Times.

TUXEDO, N. Y., Feb. 12.—Playing at the top of his form, Clarence C. Pell, national amateur racquets champion, regained possession of the gold racquet today when he defeated Stanley G. Mortimer, his doubles partner, in the final round of the annual racquet tournament at the Tuxedo Club. The score was 15—1, 12—15, 16—14, 15—3.

Mortimer, who is the only player other than Pell who has won the national championship since 1915, won the gold racquet last year by defeating C. N. Bruce of England in the final. He was not quite up to the form today that he showed on that occasion, but his defeat is to be attributed more to the sterling play of Pell than to his own deficiencies.

Pell's service, probably the greatest in the American amateur ranks, was an enigma to his opponent all through the match and particularly in the first and last games, in which Mortimer repeatedly was unable to put the ball in play.

Both men smashed with burning speed, hitting a wicked low drive close to the board. Pell's control was the better, except in the second game, and Mortimer's errors contributed to his downfall.

In the second and third games Mortimer played his finest racquets, attacking with tremendously fast drives and putting up a defense that Pell found it difficult to penetrate. Both games were decided by only the smallest margins. Pell faltered at the critical stage in the second, but rose to the emergency in the third after a game of 5 had been set at 13-all. After winning this game the champion hit into a streak of magnificent serving and driving, and won the fourth by an overwhelming margin.

The University of Pennsylvania captured its fifth straight game in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League last night, defeating Columbia, 39 to 33, before a crowd of 3,000 in the Columbia gym. It was Columbia's second defeat. Penn is unbeaten.

Columbia jumped off to a lead on a field goal by Smith shortly after the game started, but Penn quickly ran the score up and inside nine minutes had a lead of 14 to 3.

Columbia then braced, with Smith, Gregory and Tys doing most of the work, and finally drew up to 14 to 12. Columbia and Penn both played hard in the following minutes and at the end of the half Penn was in front by 20 to 16.

Columbia rushed into action in the second period and forced the pace, quickly tying the count at 20-20.

The lead then see-sawed. Penn was in front at one time at 24-21, and then, by some fine shooting by Captain Schaaf, topping the Blue and white, at 31—22.

Urbach and Smith then were put out of the game for personal fouls, resulting in the breakdown of the Columbia attack and defense. Penn took advantage of this and soon forged to the front, and once in the van played a clever defensive game that preserved its lead to the end.

WILLIAMS WINNER IN 45-YARD DASH

NURMI IS AN EASY VICTOR

By ARTHUR J. DALEY.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 12.—The king of speed, Percy Williams, maintained his record of never having been beaten indoors or out by capturing the international sprint series, one of the features of the annual Meadowbrook A. C. games at the Philadelphia Arena tonight.

Paavo Nurmi demonstrated that he can still make a show of a mediocre distance field by easily winning a special 3,000-meter event. The only runner in the race with even a slight chance of making things difficult for Paavo was Ove Anderson of Finland. However, it was one of Nurmi's good nights, and he won by half a lap from Anderson, with Bod Dalrymple of the Boston A. A. third, a circuit and a half behind. Nurmi was clocked in 8:38⅕, almost twelve seconds slower than his own record.

Bernie McCafferty, the best of the season's middle-distance runners, met his first defeat in six starts. With five victories already tucked away, he found the Meadowbrook 660 a bit too long for him, as Fred Veit of New York University outfooted him to the tape to win by three yards.

Williams flashed down the line to win his heat in 0:04 9-10 and then whizzed over the boards to take the final in 0:05 1-10. The 45-yard record is 0:05 1-5, and Williams beat this by three-tenths of a second in his heat. There is little likelihood that this will be accepted as a record, since the runners did not start at the proper mark. Their knuckles were touching the three-foot strip at the gun, and the 45-yard sprint was actually one yard less.

Race Cut From Fifty Yards.

The race had been intended to be at fifty yards, but this would have necessitated the athletes racing into a padded wall fifteen yards from the tape. To protect the men five yards were chopped off the finish to give the sprinters space in which to apply the brakes.

Williams got off to a splendid start in his heat when he beat Bowman by a yard, but he was a wee bit slower than Wildermuth and Bowman in starting the final. At thirty yards Williams was third but his wiry legs moved with piston like precision as he climbed up past Bowman and then Wildermuth to win by a clear foot.

The Meadowbrook 660 was the longest race that McCafferty has been called on to run this season. He holds one triumph at 500 yards, two at 440 and two at 600. The extra sixty yards he had to run tonight was the straw that broke the camel's back as the Holy Cross runner had not even a wisp of his reserve strength left in the stretch.

Veit ran a good race and well deserved his victory. The time bears mute testimony to the general excellence of his performance. He was clocked in 1:22 3-5, only one and two-fifth seconds slower than Jake Driscoll's six-year record.

Rounding the last turn, Veit passed McCafferty as well, and then sped down the final straightaway with the Holy Cross runner at his heels. Veit added steadily to his lead to win by three yards, with Conger five more in back of McCafferty. Oliver Proudlock was fourth and William Cox of Yale, the only other starter, last.

Conger with one leg on the trophy and firmly entrenched in the hearts of the crowd by his spectacular victory over Nurmi, was last for the first lap and then he moved up. There was a wild yell from the crowd, but Conger never got further than Veit's shoulder.

Furth Is Double Winner.

Sol Furth, the stocky sprinter-hurdler from New York University won both the 50-yard dash and 50-yard hurdles to capture two Middle Atlantic Collegiate A. A. titles. Furth took the flat race with plenty to spare from H. K. Emsworth of Haverford in 0:05 3-5 and with only a short rest went out and annexed the timber-topping event.

Mardi Gras Handicap Is Won by Sea Rocket as Fair Grounds Meeting Closes

SEA ROCKET SCORES IN THE MARDI GRAS

VICTORY WORTH $8,275

Winner, Which Pays $19.34 for $2, Makes Great Run in Stretch—Sandy Shore Triumphs.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 12.—The last day of the Fair Grounds meeting here was featured by a thrilling finish in the Mardi Gras Handicap which set the crowd roaring. C. A. Coyle's Sea Rocket came thrusting out of the press of horses in the wake of Solace in the stretch run and overhauled the leader stride by stride to catch him on the post and win by a nose.

Jockey K. Horvath had the leg up on the winner and turned in a sterling exhibition. He outrode Tony Pascuma on Solace after threading his way through a big field which very nearly shut off his closing spurt.

The triumph was the first for Sea Rocket in more than a year and earned $8,275 for Coyle, as the Mardi Gras ranks second only to the New Orleans Handicap at this meeting, which was one of the most successful ever staged by the Louisiana Jockey Club. A meeting of thirty-four days will commence tomorrow at Jefferson Park.

Solace, coupled with Edisto, was the odds-on favorite in the field of fourteen, while Sea Rocket paid $19.34 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels, being the fourth choice. The mile and a furlong was reeled off in 1:52 3-5 over a fast track and the winner carried 107½ pounds as against 122 for Solace.

The race was a hard one for Solace to lose as he had also been second in the New Orleans Handicap, and the same heavy impost that was his on that occasion counted against him today when Sea Rocket's great bid was made. The eventual winner was far back in the early running but began to move up on the turn. Solace's stable-mate had set the early pace and Solace took the lead in the stretch. At this time the next four horses were all running within a short distance of each other, when suddenly Sea Rocket came rocketing out of the group to run down the leader.

Hal Price Headley's colors again came home in front when Sandy Shore was an easy winner of the Seminole Purse, the secondary feature, which saw six three-year-olds test their speed over the mile route.

JORGENSEN GAINS SKI-JUMPING PRIZE

Clears 167 and 176 Feet to Score 226.6 Points in Lake Placid Event.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 12.—John Jorgensen of the Norway Ski Club, New York, jumping 167 and 176 feet, in form which gave him 226.6 points, defeated forty-seven other jumpers from American and Canadian clubs to win the Dunn Ski Jumping Trophy in the Lake Placid Club's annual tournament here today.

Second place in the Class A competition went to Rolf Monsen of Brattleboro Outing Club, a member of the 1928 United States Olympic ski team, whose point total was 211.2.

Jorgensen's standing jump of 176 feet set a record for Intervale Hill, bettering by one foot the 175-foot record made last February by Milkelson.

The summaries:

MASSEY DEFEATS NABORS.

Wins Decision in 10-Round Bout at 22d Engineers Armory.

Sergeant Tommy Donnelly won the eight-round semi-final from Larry Marinucci, while Frankie Liberman and Joe Kansas fought a six-round draw, as also did Freddie Anderson and Charlie Handford. In another six-rounder Johnny Tuesday defeated Mickey Polo.

HARVARD SEXTET BEATEN.

Loses to Boston A. A. Team, 6 to 4, in Overtime Game.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 12.—The Boston A. A. hockey team beat the Harvard varsity 6 to 4 tonight in an overtime game. The Crimson had a lead of 3 to 1 in the first period. In the overtime period Hardy broke the 4-to-4 tie and Nelson made a goal at the very finish.

ONDA WINS NET TITLE.

Beats Talmadge, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4, in Brooklyn Tennis Club Final.

Sadukadu Onda, former member of the Japanese Davis Cup team, defeated Reginald Talmadge yesterday to win the championship of the Brooklyn Indoor Tennis Club in straight sets, 6—1, 6—1, 6—4, at the Fourteenth Regiment Armory.

KOJAC SETS NEW MARK IN RUTGERS SWIM TEST

Breaks Own World's Record in 50-Yard Back Stroke—Rutgers Swimmers Beat Lehigh, 51 to 8.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 12.—George Kojac, Olympic swimming champion, gained new laurels today when he broke his own world's record of 29 seconds for the 50-yard back stroke by covering the distance in 0:27 2-5 in an exhibition event in Ballantine Pool. Prior to this event, the undefeated Rutgers swimming team had made an auspicious entrance into Eastern collegiate competition by breaking three E. C. S. A. records in defeating Lehigh 51 to 8, before a large alumni day gathering. The winners took every first place and all but one of the seconds.

The summaries:

200-Yard Relay—Won by Rutgers (Dryfuss, Johnson, Jelenko, Kojac); Lehigh (Pickseller; Hertzler, Jenkins, Cushman), second. Time—1:37 2-5 (new Rutgers and Eastern Collegiate record).

Fancy Dive—Won by Garins, Rutgers (68 points); Rose (Rutgers, second (63.8 points); Blood, Lehigh, third (63 points).

Fifty-Yard Swim—Won by Tilley, Rutgers; Harrison, Rutgers, second; Jenkins, Lehigh, third. Time—0:25⅘.

150-Yard Back Stroke—Won by Armstrong, Rutgers; Cushman, Lehigh, second; Burrington, Rutgers, third. Time—1:50 2-5 (new Eastern collegiate record).

440-Yard Swim—Won by Phillips, Rutgers; Djerf, Rutgers, second; Green, Lehigh, third. Time—5:35.

200-Yard Breast Stroke—Won by Marquette, Rutgers; Cronin, Rutgers, second; Pellisoni, Lehigh, third. Time—2:43 1-5 (equals Rutgers record and breaks Eastern collegiate record).

100-Yard Swim—Won by Dryfuss, Rutgers; Johnson, Rutgers, second; Hertzler, Lehigh, third. Time—0:57 2-5.

Exhibition Swim—George Kojac broke own world's 50-yard back stroke record of 29 seconds. Time—0:27 2-5.

NORTHWESTERN SETS MARK

Breaks World's Record for 300-Yard Medley by 2 1-5 Seconds.

EUGENE, Ore., Feb. 12 (AP).—The Northwestern University 300-yard medley relay swimming team shattered the world's record by 2 1-5 seconds tonight in a dual meet with University of Oregon, which Northwestern won, 41 to 26. Northwestern's time was 3:03.4.

The old record, held by Weissmuller, Peterson and Sasson of Illinois Athletic Club and established in Chicago in 1928 was 3:05.6.

JOHNNY DUNDEE WINS FROM LOU MOSCOWITZ

Former Champion Baffles Bronx Boxer in Main Event at Uptown Lenox Club.

Johnny Dundee, veteran of some 400-odd battles during a ring career of eighteen years and former holder of two championships, retained enough of his former speed and cleverness last night to win the decision from Lou Moscowitz of the Bronx in the main ten-round bout at the uptown Lenox Sporting Club.

A crowd of about 2,500 fans cheered the veteran with every blow he landed and every one he ducked. He brought cheers soon after the opening bell as he resorted to his old trick of bouncing off the ropes. He thrilled the crowd time and again as he beat his younger rival to the punch and repeatedly sent his head back with stiff lefts to the face.

Finds Three Bevies in Amateur Field Trial Clubs' Stake.

PETERSBURG, Va., Feb. 12 (AP).—Spectacular work by two entrants featured the second day's running at Camp Lee, near here, of the national championship stake of the Amateur Field Trial Clubs of America. Sandy McPherson, an English setter, owned by Ancell H. Ball, New York, stood out as high scorer tonight with three bevy finds to his credit. Wichita's Doughboy's Coin, pointer female, owned by J. F. Waldon of Buffalo, N. Y., made five covey finds in open country. Coin ran a consistent heat throughout and finished strong.

HOYT FAVORS CAREY AS HEAD OF GARDEN

Says Choice Lies Between Him and Hammond—No Outsider Being Considered.

HAS DOUBTS ABOUT MAYOR

Also Feels That Dempsey Would Refuse the Post—Says Present Owners Are in Harmony.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 12.—William F. Carey, first vice president and treasurer of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, or Colonel John S. Hammond, a vice president and acting general manager of the Garden, will become general manager and president, according to a statement made here today by Richard F. Hoyt, chairman of the board of directors and the leading individual influence in Garden affairs.

Mr. Hoyt came here today on his way North at the conclusion of a month's cruise. He rejected the reported probability of any individual or syndicate supplanting the present control in Garden affairs, insisted that the selection of an actual president and general manager will be made from Carey and Hammond, expressed the personal belief that neither Mayor Walker of New York nor Jack Dempsey would be interested in the Garden post and emphasized that there is complete harmony among these in control, adding that there is not even an indication of friction.

In view of the frankly open discussion by Hoyt, it is reasonable to assume Carey soon will be named actual president and general manager of the corporation unless he rejects the post. Carey is the nominal head of the corporation as well as the directing influence in the corporation's Boston Madison Square Garden.

Carey always has been a dominant influence in the Garden, but in an unobtrusive way. He would not discuss the probability today of accepting actual leadership in the New York and Boston plants.

"The matter has never been submitted to me, I assure you," he replied. "Perhaps all this is only speculation. At any rate I don't think it advisable for me to talk on the subject before it becomes a matter for my personal attention. Maybe a fellow like Jack Dempsey would fit in better than myself. You never can tell."

Hoyt, however, left no doubt as to his choice in the matter.

"If we can get Carey to jump in there, everybody will be satisfied, I feel sure," he said. "The choice rests between Carey and Colonel Hammond. I see no necessity for going outside our organization for a man for the position. And I see no reason for plunging headlong into a selection now when it can be approached carefully. The position requires of a man that he devote his undivided attention to it."

SHARKEY ENGAGES IN FIRST SPARRING

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 12.—Without attempting to add mystery to the proceedings here, Jack Sharkey today engaged in an unlisted boxing workout at the Kennel Club, where he is training for his bout Feb. 27 with Young Stribling.

Scheduled to start training at 3:30 this afternoon, the Bostonian went through a snappy drill, which ended at 3:15, with only a few spectators present. Spectators were pouring into the dog track at 50 cents per head as Sharkey disappeared from his working platform.

In explanation of the unannounced change in time, Sharkey stated that his manager, Johnny Buckley, had summoned him for the workout earlier than expected because of the threat of rain.

Sharkey's drill consisted of nine rounds in the afternoon and a road workout on the dog track in the morning. His session included sparring for the first time here, and the Hub heavyweight went through the workout snappily.

MAISEL BALTIMORE PILOT.

Appointment Made, Though Sale of Club Has Not Been Closed.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 12 (AP).—Choice of Fritz Maisel, Baltimore third baseman, as manager of the club for the coming season, was announced today by Charles H. Knapp, club president. Since the death of Jack Dunn, who was manager as well as principal owner, Maisel's name has often been suggested, but announcement was deferred while negotiations were under way for sale of the club.

That deal was still hanging fire today and in commenting on the appointment of a manager, Knapp said "it was impossible to wait any longer."

ULRICH, PHIL HURLER, DIES.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 12 (AP).—Frank Ulrich, pitcher on the Philadelphia National League club, died at his home here today of pleurisy and pneumonia, with which he had been ill for the last twelve days.

About a year ago he was taken ill with pneumonia and confined to his bed for thirteen weeks. The illness prevented his pitching last season. The second pneumonia attack, twelve days ago, resulting in his death, came at a time when he had put on weight and was preparing to go South with the Phillies for the Spring training camp.

SILVERS DEFEATS LEE.

Levine Outpoints Vaccarelli in Another Albany Bout.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 12 (AP).—Pal Silvers of Brownville, N. Y., defeated Canada Lee of New York City in a ten-round bout here tonight. Silvers weighed 151 pounds, Lee 147.

George Levine, 149, New York City, won the decisio nfrom Tony Vaccarelli, 147, also of New York City, in the other ten rounder.

Mrs. Riley Bows to Miss Hicks, 6 and 5, in Women's Miami Golf

MISS HICKS BEATS MRS. RILEY, 6 AND 5

MRS. FEDERMAN IS BEATEN

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 12.—Miss Helen Hicks, 18-year-old Long Island golfer, winner of the qualifying medal, continued her victorious march today in the first match round of the women's Miami championship golf tournament over the Miami Country Club course. Miss Hicks disposed of Mrs. L. A. Riley of Pittsburgh by 6 and 5.

Two upsets featured the inaugural round. The chief surprise was the elimination of Mrs. Leo Federman of Great Neck, L. I., who was beaten in a 19-hole match by Mrs. John Brophy, wife of the Cincinnati professional. Two up at the seventeenth tee, Mrs. Federman lost the next two holes and Mrs. Brophy triumphed at the nineteenth.

In the other unexpected defeat, Mrs. John March of North Shore lost, 6 and 5, to Mrs. William Ferguson of Chicago. The New York player was completely off her game today. Mrs. Ferguson will oppose Miss Hicks in the second round tomorrow.

For the second day in succession Miss Hicks was the only player in the large field to be under 80. She captured the medal with a 78, and today she played out the bye holes for a 79. She made this commendable score despite a poor start, taking seventeen strokes on the first three holes.

The metropolitan girl played her long game well. She invariably reached the greens on the long holes in two shots, but she lost many strokes on the greens. Starting at the fifth Miss Hicks matched men's par to the turn, being out in 39 and 5 up. She ended the match by winning the twelfth and thirteenth with par 4s. Miss Hicks was 3, 4, 6, 3, 5 on the bye holes.

The summaries:

Championship Division—Miss Helen Hicks, Hewlett Park, L. I., defeated Mrs. L. A. Riley, Pittsburgh, 6 and 5; Mrs. Joe Dyddelek, Buffalo, N. Y., defeated Mrs. Raymond Hubbell, Garden City, L. British Columbia Legislators Laud Williams in Resolution

VICTORIA, B. C., Feb. 12.—Appreciation of the British Columbia Legislature of the achievements of Percy Williams, Olympic sprint champion and native son of the province, was recorded on the journals of the Legislature yesterday afternoon on motion of R. K. Maitland in the form of a resolution unanimously passed. Both Premier S. F. Tolmie and opposition leader T. D. Pattullo paid high tribute to Williams' performances.

The resolution said:

"Whereas, the said Percy Williams has brought honor and distinction to his native province by establishing world records in athletic events, be it therefore resolved, that this House express its appreciation of the splendid victories won for Canada by Percy Williams, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to him."

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

KINREY MATSUYAMA, the newest sensation of the billiard world, looks like a working model of Wallace Irwin's Japanese schoolboy. He is knee high to a grasshopper, weighs about as much as a good plump canary bird, and a casual observer would take him for about 8 years old. With his gulleless and cherubic countenance, he could pass for a Japanese doll and could be given away as a birthday present except that the young recipient of the gift might have bad manners enough to complain:

"I wanna bigger one."

The committee at the Level Club could have added a touch of color to the championship tournament by having "Matsy" walk out from under the billiard table to start his matches. Though he looks like a small boy, he is really 28 years old, which will be taken in some quarters as proof that the Japanese are a deceitful race. A chap who knows Matsuyama rather well says: "He is the only Jap in the world who laughs out loud." But that isn't why he became famous.

Barred Out.

About eight years ago Mr. Y. E. Muraoka, then the Los Angeles correspondent for a Japanese newspaper, was called on the phone by the proprietor of a billiard establishment in Los Angeles.

"Please come down," said the voice on the wire. "There's a little bit of a Jap here, and we don't know who he is, where he's from or what he wants. He looks as though he had made his escape from a baby carriage. Come and straighten us out."

Mr. Muraoka went down. The "little bit of a Jap" was Kinrey Matsuyama, and he had a sad story to tell. He was born in Yokohama, where his father ran a billiard establishment, and as a youngster he had been brought up to play on a table instead of the floor. The game he played was four-ball straight rail billiards, and he had migrated to the United States to challenge the cue experts of the world at that game. He ran into difficulties immediately. No one would even let him into a billiard establishment.

"Beat it, boy," was the regular answer to his attempted invasions. "You're too young to be running around out of school. The truant officer will lock you up."

Matsy was then 20 years old. He had the papers to prove it, but, unfortunately, few owners of billiard establishments in Los Angeles could read Japanese script. They begged him to take himself and his laundry tickets off their premises before the chilly hand of the law was laid upon them and him.

Not the Same Game.

After being thrust out of numerous places, he finally interested one room owner to the point where he phoned for Mr. Muraoka to explain what it was all about. That got Matsy into the billiard parlor, but there a new difficulty was discovered.

Matsy was an expert at four-ball straight rail billiards. No good billiard player in this country played that game any more.

"What do they play?" queried Matsy.

He was informed that they played what a certain major league baseball player called "eighteen and two-tenths balkline" billiards.

"If they won't play my game, I will play theirs. Tell me the rules. I start now," said Matsy.

A Tall Story.

They tell this tale about Matsy, but no affidavits go with it. It sounds like something that Hans Christian Andersen might have dashed off in his less realistic moments.

Naturally, all Matsy's balkline opponents are a foot or more taller than he is. Planning to make it even tougher than usual for the Singer midget of billiards, one opponent had the table raised two inches above the regular height.

Matsy heard about the trick, went to a shoemaker and had a 4-inch sole put on his shoes. Thus the villain was foiled!

But even with the table at its regular height, Matsy has his difficulties. He can't reach all over the green baize like such tall chaps as Schaefer and Hagenlacher. If the ivories are more than a few inches from the rail, it's practically impossible for him to make a massé shot. He simply isn't big enough.

Matsy's reach is ten inches shorter than that of Young Jake Schaefer. Of course, the bridge can be hauled out to help in emergencies, but what Matsy really needs is a ladder.

Several Proposals.

Because of his handicap in height and reach, Matsy has made some novel proposals. He says:

"Schaefer is a foot taller than I am. Make him play on a table a foot higher. Or let me stand on a platform, or even a box, one foot high. Then we see what we see."

Welker Cochran, something of a wag, developed this idea while he was knocking the ivories around the practice table in the Level Club before going down to the big hall to defeat Kinrey 400 to 373 on Monday evening.

"That's fair enough," chirped Welker, "but they ought to extend the idea to other sports, too. Bill Tilden should be made to play with a higher net than a shorter opponent at tennis. I don't know how it could be done, but it should be done to give a little fellow like Bill Johnston an even break. There's Babe Ruth, too. When he's facing a little pitcher, he ought to be made to stand in a hole; the smaller the pitcher, the bigger the hole."

Here he paused to line up the ivories for a massé shot and said: "But it's generally the pitcher who is in the hole when Babe Ruth is at bat. It doesn't seem fair, does it? Anyway, when a big fellow and a little fellow are in a shot-put event, the little fellow should be allowed to heave a smaller shot. The same idea should go in hurdle races. Smaller hurdles for smaller men. That's my motto."

Asked how he was going to carry out that noble idea in his match with Matsy, Cochran said: "I should do something, shouldn't I? Well, he's the smaller fellow. I'll try to see that he gets the smaller score."

There's no doubt that these tall fellows have a physical advantage over the tiny Jap at billiards, but there is one career open to him that is closed to them. He would make a marvelous mannikin for a ventriloquist.

VOORHIES IS FIRST IN N. Y. A. C. SHOOT

Ties at 191 With Lewis, Then Wins Shoot-Off to Gain 2d Leg on Show Boat Trophy.

H. W. Voorhies and Tracy H. Lewis tied at 191 out of 200 targets for the Show Boat Trophy, offered by C. J. Winninger for the Lincoln's Birthday shoot over the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club, yesterday in a field of seventy gunners. Voorhies won a 25-bird shoot-off, breaking 24 to 22 targets by Lewis, and gained his second leg on the cup, Lewis taking second prize.

T. H. Lawrence took the third scratch cup with 190, and W. B. Ogden and S. O. S. Graham were deadlocked at 188 for the fourth cup. In the first shoot-off they again tied with 23 each, but Ogden ran 25 straight targets in the second shoot-off to win the cup. Graham's card was 23.

Seven gunners tied for the High Handicap Cup, with a full score of 200 targets. J. H. Forsman won the first cup in the shoot-off. The second prize went to S. M. Hodkinson, the third to L. G. Moffatt, and the fourth cup to O. C. Grinnell, while S. O. S. Graham took the fifth. The other gunners in the tie were J. H. Vanderveer and J. L. Meyer.

NATIONAL ELEVEN IN SCORELESS TIE

Giving a faultless exhibition of first class soccer before a crowd of 2,000 at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon, the New York Nationals and Fall River played to a scoreless tie in their American League game.

The honors were entirely with the defense. Both Murdoch, the New York goalie, and Harper of Fall River were at their best. Five corners were recorded, all in the first half, of which Fall River was credited with three.

There was little to choose between the two teams in the first ten minutes, a free kick by McAuley of Fall River sailing over the bar. Nelson, from Carlson's pass, almost breasted the ball into Fall River's net, but in this instance again a miss was as good as a mile.

The line-up:

Nationals (0).		Fall River (0).
Murdoch	G	Harper

Referee—T. Cunningham. Linesmen—J. Hume and J. Hayes. Time of halves—45 minutes.

Wanderers Triumph by 2 to 1

Sustaining their first defeat in twenty-five games, the First Germans, champions of the International Soccer League, succumbed to the Brooklyn Wanderers of the American League by 2 to 1 at Hawthorne Field in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon. The Germans held the American Leaguers to a 1—1 tie up to half time.

Max Schmeling, the heavyweight pugilist, kicked off at the start, and his appearance created a sensation among the soccer fans. Later he was honored at the headquarters of the First German A. C. and received a diamond ring.

The line-up:

Wanderers (2).		First Germans (1).
Joselit	G	Meyer

Goals—Nehadoma, Morris, Wanderers; Schroter, First Germans.

Referee—T. Dempsey. Linesmen—G. Meyer and L. Handler. Time of halves—45 minutes.

Hakoah and Giants in Tie.

Another tie resulted from the encounter in a soccer exhibition game between the New York Giants and Hakoah at Starlight Park yesterday afternoon, the final score being 2-2. The same teams had met in an Eastern League game on Sunday when the result was precisely the same. Yesterday they were practically on even terms all the way through. The half-time score was 1-1.

The line-up:

Giants (2).		Hakoah (2).
J. Brown	G	Fischer
Glover	R. B.	Drucker

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 12—Pressure is relatively low and falling from Missouri southwestward to the Rio Grande Valley. Pressure is low and falling rapidly over the Canadian Northwest. An area of high pressure is moving eastward over Pennsylvania. A second is stationary over the northern plateau. And a third is moving eastward over Ontario.

The outlook is for light snow on Wednesday in the lower lake region, the Upper Ohio Valley and the extreme north portion of the Middle Atlantic States for snow Wednesday night in Northern New England and for snow or rain on Thursday in the Ohio Valley and the lower lake region.

Elsewhere the weather will be mostly fair Wednesday and Thursday in the Washington forecast district. Temperatures will rise slowly on Wednesday and in the Mid and South Atlantic States and on Thursday in Tennessee, the Ohio Valley and the lower lake region.

COUNTRY-WIDE WEATHER CONDITIONS.

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday the temperatures given are the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. and the lowest during the preceding twelve hours, 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M., and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

All Business Closed for Holiday —Phases of an Absorbingly Interesting Situation.

Business on all financial and commercial exchanges of this country was suspended yesterday for the Lincoln Day holiday. The banks being also closed, there were no quotations for money or foreign exchange.

The situation which exists in the financial markets, as Wall Street returns from its midwinter holiday, is certainly such as to excite unusual interest and curiosity. Possibly many people, even among those of long financial experience, would say that it baffles prediction. The puzzle consists not only in the probable course of the stock market, or of the "brokers' loans" whose rise or fall is mostly determined by that market. The probable action of the money market, home and foreign, of the foreign exchange market, and the effect on general business of whatever movement may ensue in those directions, present perplexing uncertainties of their own.

No exactly analogous situation has ever arisen in this country; perhaps not in any other. In the mood which has been created among an extraordinarily large mass of people, the assertion is made emphatically—sometimes in quarters where it would have been least expected—that the stock market of 1928 and of 1929 to date has been a perfectly normal reflection of legitimate causes. The increase of brokers' borrowings of 52 per cent in the past twelve months, and of not quite 40 per cent since last July, is described as the natural effect of a natural growth in Stock Exchange activities. The extremely high rates for call and time loans on Stock Exchange collateral are explained as merely a consequence, first of our export of $500,000,000 gold in the Autumn of 1927 and the earlier half of 1928 and, second, of the meddlesome and highly injudicious policy of the Federal Reserve.

Admitting that, as measured by THE TIMES's "averages," representative stocks have advanced in price 32 per cent since this week of last February, 72½ per cent since January, 1927, and 115 per cent since March, 1926, it is insisted that this enhancement has merely reflected the growth of the earning power of industries and the expansion of American prosperity, and that a similar further enhancement will be logical to reflect its continuing expansion in the near future. It is because such ideas as these are held by so many people, able to back their ideas by money of their own or by borrowings from the banks, that the upshot of the existing situation is deemed uncertain. The stock market of 1928 triumphantly defied the Federal Reserve's restrictive moves, advanced on the warnings of the Bankers' Convention and ignored the repeated assertions of company managers that their own shares were grossly overvalued on the Stock Exchange. Why, then, should not 1929 repeat the picture?

No doubt an answer will be made, in quarters where a somewhat different view has been taken of the stock market's recent course. It will probably be to the effect that the result of all past experience has proved what result must ultimately follow a struggle of this character between the speculative market on the one hand and the central banking organism on the other. Equipped as it is with the largest financial power and the highest financial authority, the central banking organism has always eventually had its way. But to this contention the believer in another 1928 replies, as he replied last year, that we are living in a new financial world, in which old-time causes have ceased to operate and in which old-time experience has little or no value. Thus the controversy outwardly remains just where it was last Spring.

It is not surprising that unprejudiced observers, cool-headed business men and trained economists should watch with absorbing interest for the issue of this extraordinary situation. That interest is not diminished by the uncertainty whether the actual outcome of the deadlock, whatever it may be, will be determined only after further long delay or whether it is near at hand.

American Service Company

First Mortgage 15 Year 6% Gold Bonds, Series A

(With Stock Purchase Warrants)

Due January 1, 1944

Price 99 and Interest, Yielding about 6.10%

The First Mortgage Bonds will carry non-detachable Warrants, valid after December 31, 1933, entitling the holder to purchase Common Stock of the Company, subject to Indenture provisions, at the rate of thirty (30) shares for each $1,000 principal amount of First Mortgage Bonds at $16.00 per share. If the Bonds are redeemed prior to January 1, 1934, the Warrants thereupon become detachable.

Business and Territory: American Service Company owns and operates, including properties to be acquired, under centralized management ice utility properties located in 13 adjoining southern and south-central states. The principal cities served are Houston, Galveston, Beaumont, San Antonio and Fort Worth, Texas; Shreveport and Monroe, Louisiana; Montgomery, Alabama; Leavenworth and Pittsburg, Kansas; Davenport, Iowa; Joplin, Missouri; Hot Springs, Arkansas; Chattanooga, Nashville and Knoxville, Tennessee; Atlanta, Georgia; Asheville and Concord, North Carolina; and 27 other cities and towns in Missouri, Kansas, Texas, Oklahoma, Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia. The aggregate population of these communities is about 2,270,000, while the entire territory served by the plants has a population of approximately 4,600,000.

The properties include 72 ice manufacturing plants having a total daily capacity of approximately 4,402 tons, in addition to car icing, cold storage and other service facilities. These properties include land owned in fee, substantial buildings, complete ice-making machinery of standard types, delivery equipment, and cold storage buildings and equipment. The plants are without competition in supplying ice in 20 communities, and in the other cities the plants rank as important units in the ice business.

The Company owns all outstanding Common Stock of Community Ice Company, which owns and operates, including properties to be acquired, ice properties located in North Carolina, serving 8 communities having a population of about 120,000. This subsidiary has 11 ice manufacturing plants with daily capacity of 475 tons.

Security: These Bonds, in the opinion of counsel, will be secured by first mortgage on all fixed properties of the Company now owned, and on all such property hereafter acquired, against which any bonds may be issued under the mortgage. The net sound value of the fixed property of the Company upon completion of present financing, as recently determined by independent engineers on basis of depreciated value of the property, amounts to over $14,800,000. This issue represents approximately 47% of this sound valuation. The Indenture will contain provisions restricting the issuance of additional bonds.

Earnings: The properties have been independently audited for the 12 months ended August 31, 1928, except certain properties for the 12 month periods ended June 30 and October 31, 1928. The combined revenues, expenses and earnings are certified as follows:

Operating Costs and Expenses, including Maintenance and Local Taxes	3,117,424.95
Net Earnings before Interest, Depreciation, Income Taxes	$1,462,175.97
Net Earnings from Subsidiary Company, after all Charges	25,490.85
Total Earnings	$1,487,666.82
Maximum Annual Interest upon these Series A Bonds	420,000.00

The balance after deducting interest, depreciation, Federal and State income taxes, and preferred dividends, including American Service Company equity in wholly-owned subsidiary company earnings after all charges, is equal to more than $1.55 per share on 225,000 shares of Common Stock outstanding.

Management: The management is in the hands of experienced ice and public utility men, whose ability as efficient operators has been thoroughly demonstrated not only in connection with this Company's operation, but over long periods through formerly owning and operating ice and other utility properties in the territories served by American Service Company.

A circular more fully descriptive of this issue will be sent on request.

HALSEY, STUART & CO. INCORPORATED A. B. LEACH & CO., INC.

Dated January 1, 1929 and redeemable. Coupon bonds in $1,000 and $500 denominations. Semi-annual interest coupons, January and July 1 will be payable in New York or Chicago, without deduction for any normal Federal income tax not in excess of 2% per annum. These bonds are offered for delivery when, as and if issued and accepted by us and subject to the approval of counsel. It is expected that interim receipts of the Company exchangeable later for definitive bonds will be ready for delivery at the office of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc. on or about February 21, 1929. The Company will refund upon proper notice within 60 days after payment, any personal property tax not exceeding five mills to the dollar per annum, or any income tax not exceeding 6% of the interest per annum, as now or hereafter imposed by any state. TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

Business will be resumed in the financial centre today after being suspended yesterday in observance of Lincoln's Birthday. All financial and commodity markets and banks here and elsewhere in the North and West were closed for the holiday.

Investment Trust Buying.

Some of the buying in the stock market on Monday was attributed by Wall Street to investment trusts, which have raised large supplies of capital recently and which had been inclined to stay out of the market in the two days of last week that followed the Federal Reserve Board's credit announcement. The wide declines that have taken place in the prices of many stocks, in the opinion of the managers of at least some of the larger trusts, had brought about bargain values in some parts of the list which permitted advantageous buying if discretion were used in the choice of the individual stocks acquired. Investment trusts also were understood to have continued placing funds in the call loan market on a large scale.

Helping to Reduce Loans.

The concerted movement on the part of Stock Exchange houses to tighten up their margin requirements has been explained as a step for their own protection, but, coming soon after another increase in such requirements and coinciding with the latest indication that the Federal Reserve authorities are determined to reduce speculative loans, it is regarded by many in Wall Street as part of a general plan of cooperation in the efforts to solve credit problems. For the first time brokerage houses are working together on the margin situation, and this fact, it was pointed out, makes it easy to believe the story that there is a general agreement between the banking authorities and the brokers.

The Niagara Agreement.

The agreement reached between Governor Roosevelt and Paul Schoellkopf, head of Niagara Falls Power, was interpreted in public utility circles as a step which will have far-reaching importance in the future water power development of New York State. It was said in some quarters that recognition of State right to the control of water flowing over the American half of Niagara Falls set a precedent for the prospective development of the St. Lawrence, while in other circles it was said that it was still uncertain as to where State rights and Federal rights began and ended with regard to frontier waterways. It was said therefore that the Niagara Power Company's recognizance of a State right at Niagara Falls was a private matter and naturally had nothing to do with the attitude of the Federal Government, although there was no idea that a contest was likely over the question.

Speeding the "Car Movement."

Figures showing that the railroads moved freight with record speed last year came as no surprise in railroad circles yesterday. The trend in 1928 was indicated as long ago as October, when the average daily movement of freight reached the record figure of 36.2 miles. Final figures show that the average daily movement for all 1928 was 31.3 miles. Particular interest was shown in railroad circles in the fact that shippers aided in the performance by loading and unloading cars promptly. The figures also go to explain why the earnings for 1928 reached such favorable levels.

Automobile Exports.

Careful study was given in the financial district to the Department of Commerce figures covering automobile exports for last year, largely because continued expansion in 1929 is predicated by many authorities largely on fast growth of foreign distribution. Some of the most prominent executives in the industry issued optimistic statements during "show week" in January which included assertions that 1,000,000 cars would be sold for export this year. These statements were discounted, of course, but with actual figures for 1928 showing 507,110 units exported in 1928, Wall Street concluded yesterday that a closer approach might be made to the 1,000,000 mark than was at first supposed likely.

Signs of the Times.

The action of the Jersey Central in deciding to place an expensively equipped day-coach train in service between here and Southern New Jersey was said in railroad circles to afford another example of the unusual means railroads were adopting to meet competition from the motor vehicle. The New York Central recently interested the Eastern railroad field by placing a de luxe regular fare train between here and Buffalo, and the two railroads are thus in effect giving Pullman service without extra cost.

1928 EXPORT VALUES SHOWED BIG GAINS

PRICE STABILITY AN ASSET

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Calling attention to the fact that the total exports of the United States in 1928, including the re-exports of foreign goods, while less in money value than in some years during the period of war-price inflation, were the greatest in our history when adjustment was made for price changes, Secretary of Commerce Whiting, in a summary of foreign trade for last year, has drawn an optimistic picture of the position of the country. Exports rose in value from $4,865,000,000 in 1927 to $5,129,000,000 in 1928, a gain of $254,000,000, he reported.

In listing the division of exports by countries to which goods were shipped, he stated that those to "Canada and China showed the largest increases."

"Important additions were also made in exports to Argentina, Brazil and Columbia, in South America; to Japan and the Philippines, in Asia; to British South Africa and to Mexico.

"In Europe, the largest advances, which were substantially in the nature of recovery from declines the year before, were in sales to Soviet Russia and to Italy. Throughout the world many countries with which our aggregate export trade is relatively small showed high percentages of increase.

Price Changes Affect Imports.

"In contrast with exports, the value of imports in 1928, amounting to $4,091,000,000, showed a decrease of about 2 per cent from $4,185,000,000 in 1927, and was also less than the $4,227,000,000 in 1925 or the $4,431,000,000 in 1926. The recent downward trend, however, is due entirely to fall in prices of certain major import commodities, the quantities purchased having continued to increase. These price declines have affected very greatly the value of our imports from a number of leading countries, notable Cuba, with falling sugar prices; Japan, where silk has declined, and the countries whence we buy our rubber.

"The most conspicuous recent trend in export trade has been the swift expansion in sales of manufactured goods, and consequently, from the geographic standpoint, in shipments to countries which produce chiefly foodstuffs and raw materials and which are as yet but little developed in factory industry.

"Naturally the gain has been greatest in exports to those countries which are making most progress in the development of their natural resources. Even though such countries are also moving in the direction of greater industrialization, their takings from us rise because they are demanding more American machinery and capital equipment as well as more American automobiles and other conveniences that go with higher living standards.

"While here and there a temporary setback has occurred in the marked upswing of our sales to countries of this type—for example, some decrease in the last two years in those to Australia, previously rapidly rising—the increases in 1928 were in general in line with a whole string of previous gains. Our exports to a number of important countries of America, Asia, Oceania and Africa were from 50 per cent to as high as 200 per cent greater than six or seven years ago.

"Take Canada, our great neighbor, whose advance in prosperity and production since the war has paralleled our own. The exports to Canada last year were no less than $916,000,000. This is not far from one-fifth of our total sales abroad."

Gain With South America.

Mr. Whiting also called attention to the development of trade with South America; he pointed out that exports to that continent reached $480,000,000 in 1928, or one-tenth more than the year before and about twice as much as six or seven years ago. Imports from South America, he said, also have grown very rapidly, and at $570,000,000 in 1928 showed a gain of 10 per cent over the previous year.

"New investments of our capital in oil, mining, railway and other enterprises," he said, "have been a factor in this growth of trade in both directions."

Among conspicuous movements in 1928, as compared with 1927, he mentioned gains of one-tenth in exports to Argentina, Brazil and Venezuela, and of more than one-fifth to Colombia, a marked increase in values of imports from Brazil, and an increase of about 20 per cent in imports from Chile, marking a nearly complete recovery from the previous slump, which had been due to conditions in the nitrate industry.

"Gratifying not only from the standpoint of American trade, but still more as evidence of the better situation in China," added Mr. Whiting, "is the fact that our exports to that country, including Hongkong and Kwantung, last year reached $165,000,000, about one-third more than in the best previous year since the collapse of the war boom. Peace has restored the upward movement in the buying power of this great people."

Among other noteworthy developments mentioned by Mr. Whiting were heavy imports at lower prices from British Malaya, the Dutch East Indies and Ceylon, the chief sources of rubber and tin, and the steady increase of imports from Germany, which in 1928 reached $222,000,000, one-tenth more than in 1927 and about three times the 1921 figure.

Electrographic Corp. Expands.

The Electrographic Corporation has acquired four companies for extending its electrotyping and art divisions in Western cities. The acquisitions include control of the Independent Ad-Plate Company of Chicago, the Advance Electrotype Company, Inc., of Indianapolis and the Ford Electrotype Company of Detroit. A new subsidiary, the Reilly Electrotype Company of Detroit, Inc., has been organized to carry on the Detroit end of the business. The corporation also extended its art division by taking over control of the Vogue Studios, Inc., of Chicago.

NEW STOCK ISSUES.

Corporation Shares to Be Placed on the Market for Subscription.

Offering of 70,000 shares of First National Corporation of Portland, Ore., Class A stock is being made today at $48 by a syndicate headed by Schwabacher & Co. of San Francisco and including Dean Witter & Co., William Cavalier & Co., George H. Burr, Conrad & Broom, Inc., Freeman, Smith & Camp Company, Murphey Favre & Co. and Drumheller, Ehrlichman & White. The corporation, which has been recently formed as the investment affiliate of the First National Bank of Portland, will have an authorized capitalization of 300,000 shares of Class A stock, of which 70,000 shares will be outstanding, and 18,333 shares of Class B stock, all of which will be outstanding. The Class B will be offered to stockholders of the bank at $47.50 a share. The Class A stock, which is non-callable, is preferred as to cumulative dividends at the rate of $2 annually, and will participate on an equal basis with the Class B, after the latter has received $2 a share annually. The stock will be listed on the San Francisco Stock Exchange. This is the first financing done by the bank in sixty-three years.

A. Stein & Co.

Initial public financing for A. Stein & Co., amounting to approximately $5,000,000, will be made tomorrow by Lehman Brothers and Lawrence Stern & Co. The offering will consist of $2,500,000 6½ per cent cumulative preferred stock, par value $100, and 72,000 shares of common stock of no par value. The company, makers of Paris garters and Hickory Products, will have presently outstanding $2,500,000 6½ per cent preferred and 240,000 shares of common stock. In 1928 the company earned $3.38 a share on the common stock outstanding. Proceeds from the sale of this stock will be used to acquire two concerns manufacturing materials required in its business.

BRITISH FOREIGN TRADE UP.

January Business $110,000,000 More Than in January, 1928.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—British foreign trade took a forward spurt in January, according to Board of Trade figures announced today.

Imports and exports for the month amounted to £22,000,000 (about $110,000,000) more than those in January, 1928. Imports totaled £116,064,145, an increase of £14,612,255 over December and £15,670,572 over a year ago. Exports totaled £86,879,607, an advance of £6,485,273 ove r December and £7,136,874 over January, 1928.

Raw cotton and waste were the largest items among the month's imports, accounting for £7,012,200 of the total. Non-dutiable food and drink with £3,636,765, meat with £1,194,249, and grain and flour with £1,176,493, were among other outstanding commodities imported.

Locomotives, ships and aircraft accounted for £1,633,189 of the month's exports, while iron and steel totaled £1,203,894, cotton yarns £612,900 and coal £401,580. Exports of coal totaled £4,472,631 tons, an improvement of 567,931 tons over the January, 1928, figures.

Business circles were pleased that such substantial gains had been made in the export of coal, iron and steel, which long have been among the "depressed" industries of England. The January results are not quite as impressive, however, as they first appear, for the month contained one more working day than January, 1928, and three more than December.

MANY BANKERS AID NEW RUMANIAN LOAN

American Part of $102,000,000 Offering to Be Marketed by Syndicate Tomorrow.

GERMANS TO PARTICIPATE

First Financial Help for a Former Enemy—$2,000,000 Withdrawn for Sale in Sweden.

Plans for the $102,000,000 public loan to Rumania, the American part of which will be offered tomorrow by a syndicate headed by Blair & Co., Inc.; the Chase Securities Corporation; Dillon, Read & Co. and the International Acceptance Bank, Inc., call for the participation of what is said to be the largest group of bankers ever identified with an exchange stabilization loan.

As German bankers will participate in the financing, it will be the first time that investors of that country have had a part in the process of aiding a former enemy country in regaining its financial stability. Other enemies of Rumania in the World War that will assist in the flotation of this bond issue are Hungary and Austria.

Announcement was made yesterday that $2,000,000 of the $12,000,000 allotted to the American syndicate had been withdrawn for sale in Sweden by Skandinaviska Kreditaktiebolaget. In England £2,000,000 will be sold by Hambros Bank, Ltd.; Lazard Brothers & Co., Ltd., and Higginson & Co. The Banque de Paris et des Pays-Bas and a group of French banks will handle the French portion, consisting of 561,638,000 francs.

The Niederoesterreichische Escompte-Gesellschaft of Austria has arranged to dispose of $1,000,000 of the loan. A Belgian allotment of $3,000,000 has been taken by the Banque de Paris et des Pays-Bas, Banque de Bruxelles, Banque Belge Pour l'Etranger, Société Générale de Belgique and Banque Centrale Anversoise.

It is intended that in Czechoslovakia $1,000,000 will be sold by Zivnostenska Banka; in Germany $5,000,000 by Direction der Disconto Gesellschaft, Deutsche Bank, Berliner Handels-Gesellschaft, S. Bleichroder, Commerz und Privat Bank A. G. Darmstadter und National Bank K. A., A. J. Dreyfus & Co., Simon Hirschland, A. Levy, Norddeutsche Bank in Hamburg, Sal Oppenheim Jr. & Cie., Reichs-Kredit-Gesellschaft A. G., A. Schaaffhausen'scher Bankverein A. G., and M. M. Warburg & Co.; in Holland $3,000,000 by the Mendelssohn Company of Amsterdam, Nederlandsche Handel-Maatschappij, Banque de Paris et des Pays-Bas, and Pierson & Co. of Amsterdam; in Italy the Banca Commerciale Italiana will market $8,000,000, and in Rumania $2,000,000 will be sold by Banca de Credit Roman, Banque Marmorosch, Blank & Co. and Banca Romaneasca. Credit Suisse and associates will sell $4,000,000 in Switzerland.

American Service Company.

Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and A. B. Leach & Co., Inc., are offering today an issue of $7,000,000 American Service Company first mortgage fifteen-year 6 per cent bonds, Series A, due Jan. 1, 1944, with stock warrants attached. The issue is priced at 99 and interest to yield about 6.10 per cent. The warrants, good until Dec. 31, 1933, will entitle the holder of each $1,000 principal amount of bonds to purchase thirty shares of common stock at $16 a share.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

British Exchange More Active, With Improvements in Anglo-American Shares.

LONDON MONEY STRINGENT

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The fact that no change was made in the New York Federal Reserve Bank rate yesterday led to a widespread recovery among Anglo-American shares in the London market today. Although the New York Exchange was closed, some extra activity took place here owing to American business being diverted from Wall Street.

British funds improved slightly in response to these developments, but the monetary outlook was regarded as uncertain. The city is closely watching the sterling exchange, which closed today between $4.85 15-32 and $4.85½. War loan 5 per cents closed at £102½, conversion loan 3½ per cents at £77⅞, funding loan 4 per cents at £88⅜ and Victory bonds at £94⅛, all showing but little net change.

In the industrial list Columbia shares rose ¾ to £15¼, and Victor shares advanced 4 to $154. Radio Corporation shares closed 4½ higher at £74½, and United Molasses shares were 7-16 higher at £7 13-16, while Canadian Pacific shares were strong at 260½. In the tobacco list Imperial Tobacco shares were easier at 133s 1½d, but British-American shares at £6 21-32 and Carreras at £14⅞ were both slightly higher. Baird Television shares fell sharply on the disappointing report yesterday, but recovered somewhat, closing at 10s 6d.

Oil shares made some recovery, Mexican Eagle shares showing strength at 12s 7½d. Rubber remained at 11d per pound, but wherever share quotations changed they were higher. Russo-Asiatics jumped to 5s on strong buying and the revival of rumors of important developments pending. De Beers rallied 1-16 to £12 3-16, and Rand Mines closed at £3⅞.

Conditions were more stringent on Lombard Street, some borrowers having to seek assistance from the Bank of England at 6½ per cent for the week. Loans outside commanded 5½ to 6 per cent, while renewals brought 4¾ to 5 per cent. The discount rates were still tighter under the influence of dearer money.

Paris Shows Recovery.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The speculative selling movement of yesterday, due to the expectation of drastic action by the New York Reserve Bank, met with a reaction today, and though the decision of the American bank concerning the discount rate was not known here there was a movement toward recovery.

On the Curb Market selling continued, but the Bourse quotations were generally firmer and showed a decidedly upward tendency. The volume of trading, however, partly due perhaps to the intense cold, was considerably reduced.

Rentes, with the exception of amortizable 5 per cents, which fell off, were generally steady. Threes closed at 71.40; 1917 4s, 87.10; 1918 4s, 85.45; 1915 5s, 98.95; 1920 amortizable 5s, 116.75; 1928 5s, 95.50, and 6s, 101.95.

Berlin More Confident.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 12.—The chances the bears had yesterday had completely gone today and the Boerse was firm from the opening until the close. The failure of the pessimistic rumors to materialize and the reports from the United States that the intended restriction on speculation on Wall Street was at the same time meant to prepare the ground for a new German reparation loan had stimulating effects.

Foreign purchasing orders, including some from America, caused much comment in connection with the opening of the reparations experts' conference. The Rhineland showed great interest in the mining industry and in electro values, which gained two to four points.

Also sought were Reichsbank shares, which gained 6½ points, closed textiles, which gained 7 and Bemberg shares, which gained 5 points. The Boerse closed at the highest quotations. The money market continued easy with the rates unchanged.

Cities Service Completes 132,000-Volt Line, Welding State Network.

The electric subsidiaries of the Cities Service Company have just completed a standard 132,000-volt double steel tower transmission circuit, 220 miles long, linking into one system properties extending over Ohio which the organization has been welding together since 1912.

The new line crosses the centre of the industrial territory of Ohio, and in addition to connecting the several generating plants at the two Cities Service subsidiaries, the Toledo Edison Company and the Ohio Public Service Company, is tied in at Canton with the system of the Ohio Power Company, an Electric Bond and Share associate; at Lorain with the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company, a North American subsidiary, and at Warren with the Pennsylvania-Ohio Power and Light Company, a Pennsylvania-Ohio Edison subsidiary.

CAPITALIZATION

	Authorized	To be Presently Outstanding
Class A Stock	300,000 Shs.	70,000 Shs.

(Upon completion of this financing all of the Class B Stock except Directors' qualifying shares will be held in trust for the beneficial interest of the subscribing stockholders of The First National Bank of Portland.)

We summarize as follows from the letter of Mr. C. F. Adams, President of the Corporation:

Business: "The First National Corporation of Portland has been organized under the laws of Delaware for the purpose of supplementing and extending the facilities and service to the public of The First National Bank of Portland (the oldest National Bank west of the Rockies) and its affiliated institutions, and to invest the resources of the Corporation in pivotal businesses located in the territory tributary to Portland.

"It is expected that the activities of the Corporation will have a favorable effect on the earnings of the institutions in which it invests and should result in an increased return to the Corporation.

Assets: "The Corporation will acquire in the first instance (a) all of the capital stock of the Bank of East Portland, except directors' qualifying shares. This holding will be acquired at its cost to the present holders, $225,000. (b) 6,250 shares (25%) of the capital stock of The First National Bank of Portland, at a cost of $300 per share. (This stock was bought and sold at materially higher prices during 1928.) Upon completion of this financing the balance sheet of the Corporation will show total assets, including cash, of approximately $3,780,000, or $54.00 per share of Class A Stock.

"The capital stock of The First National Bank of Portland carries with it a pro rata interest in the Security Savings and Trust Company and an indirect pro rata interest in the Security Safe Deposit Company. As of December 31, 1928, combined resources of The First National Bank of Portland and the Security Savings and Trust Company were $53,387,816.55, and combined capital, surplus and undivided profits were $5,091,993.13.

Earnings: "The current dividend return from the securities to be initially acquired by the Corporation, plus an assumed rate of 5% per annum on the remaining cash is approximately $166,000 per annum or $2.38 per share of Class A Stock, without giving effect to the undistributed balance of earnings attributable to the securities held. The earnings attributable to these securities are considerably in excess of the current dividend return from said securities.

Management: "The Board of Directors of The First National Corporation of Portland will include Messrs. C. F. Adams, E. R. Corbett, E. A. Wyld, E. B. MacNaughton, C. C. Colt, Henry F. Cabell, H. F. Corbett, H. L. Corbett, Ben C. Dey, H. B. Dickson, H. H. Newhall, Joseph Simon, and Myron C. Woodard."

Application will be made in due course to list this stock on the San Francisco Stock Exchange.

We offer this stock when, as and if issued and received by us, subject to the legal approval of Messrs. Chickering and Gregory of San Francisco, and Messrs. Carey & Kerr of Portland, Attorneys for the Underwriters, and Messrs. Dey, Hampson & Nelson of Portland, Attorneys for the Corporation.

EXPERT SEES 'TEETH' IN RESERVE WARNING

Dr. Anderson Says Idea Board Has Lost Control of Money Market Is Illusion.

HOLDS POLICY CAUTIOUS

Declares Authorities Can Regulate Situation at Will Through Action on Rediscounts.

The conclusion which many have reached that the Federal Reserve authorities have lost control of the money market is an illusion, according to Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson Jr., economist of the Chase National Bank. In an address before the Pennsylvania Bankers Association, Group 3, at Allentown, Pa., last night, he contended that the Federal Reserve Board's warning against speculation and the use of credit for that purpose "has teeth in it."

"The heart of the matter, as an announcement of policy," Dr. Anderson said, "appears to be contained in the following passages: 'It is its (the Federal Reserve Board's) duty in the immediate situation to restrain the use, either directly or indirectly, of Federal Reserve credit facilities in aid of the growth of speculative credit. A member bank is not within its reasonable claims for rediscount facilities at its Federal Reserve Bank when it borrows either for the purpose of making speculative loans or for the purpose of maintaining speculative loans.'"

Dr. Anderson pointed out that "the Federal Reserve authorities justify their attitude by saying that, although they do not assume the right to set themselves up as arbiters of security speculation or values, they are concerned when speculative demands for credits have reflected themselves in a 1 to 1½ per cent increase in the cost of credit for commercial uses."

Not the First Warning.

"This," he continued, "is not the first warning which the Federal Reserve authorities have issued, and, indeed, the new policy implied in the statement quoted is not the first restraining policy which the Federal Reserve authorities have inaugurated. But, up to the time of this announcement, their measures have been inadequate, and it is worth while considering some of the unexpected developments which have made the measures which they employed in the first half of 1928 less effective than they were expected to be at the time.

"I want to call attention to two or three circumstances which have delayed the full operation of the increased demand and the diminished supply, leading many people to the conclusion that the Federal Reserve authorities have lost control of the money market.

"It cannot be made too emphatic that this is an illusion. The Federal Reserve authorities can control the money market if they will. So far they have used their power cautiously and moderately, apparently influenced on the one hand by a reluctance to increase rates for ordinary business, and, on the other hand, by an apprehension of pulling in too much gold from England. They were restrained in the Autumn also by a special situation in our acceptance market, which I shall discuss in a moment. The rise in the discount rate of the Bank of England has at last freed them from their concern about British gold, and they have already taken steps toward lessening the dependence of the acceptance market upon the Federal Reserve System, so that they appear today to be a good deal freer to carry their policies through than was the case during 1928.

Heart of the Money Market.

"In estimating the supply and demand of money, we must not look to the gigantic total of commercial bank deposits in the United States, which amounts to over $48,000,000,000. We must look to a much smaller figure, namely the reserves of the member banks of the Federal Reserve System, which stood last week at $3,388,000,000, this figure being the deposits which the member banks of the Federal Reserve System keep with the Federal Reserve Banks. Here is the heart of the money market.

"Indeed, the thing may be narrowed much more. The commercial banks use their funds closely, making new loans and investments when their reserves exceed legal requirements, and calling loans and even selling investments when their reserves are deficient. The real play in the money market is in a figure of $50,000,000, plus or minus, around the required reserves. The power of the Federal Reserve authorities to increase or decrease reserves by $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 through a more or less liberal policy in the matter of rediscounts, whether by discount rates or by other methods, or by a more or less liberal policy in buying or selling government securities and acceptances, is unquestionably adequate.

"The $400,000,000 of gold withdrawn by foreign countries from our bank reserves, and the reserve credit withdrawn by the sale of government securities during the first half of last year, made a very big gap in the $2,400,000,000 of member bank reserves, which had to be replenished and which could only be replenished by methods which made rates move upward. The biggest single source was rediscounting by member banks, and the rediscounts stand on Feb. 6 at $852,000,000 as against $450,000,000 on Feb. 8, 1928. Banks are properly reluctant to rediscount, and if rediscounting had been the only way in which the gap could be filled, money rates would have moved very much higher than they have moved."

LOADINGS INCREASED IN WEEK OF FEB. 2

Total of 946,892 Cars Was Above Preceding Week and Same Week Last Year.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Loadings of revenue freight for the week ended Feb. 2 totaled 946,892 cars, the American Railway Association announced today, an increase of 20,704 cars over the preceding week. Increases were reported in all commodities except coke and forest products, which showed slight decrease.

The total for the week of Feb. 2 also was an increase of 20,630 cars over the corresponding week of 1928, but a decrease of 18,772 cars under the corresponding week of 1927.

The car loadings in detail were:

To Stockholders of Close Corporations:

We have a plan which will accomplish these things:

1

2

3

Each stockholder will know that the surviving stockholders will have funds available to purchase his stock.

4

Each stockholder will be assured that there will be no introduction of unknown, outside interests to disrupt the smooth working of the affairs of his close corporation.

THE Equitable has prepared a booklet, "To Officers of Close Corporations," in which the method of accomplishing these four points is explained. Send for a copy today.

Clearing the Clouds from the Investment Horizon

To get the proper perspective of the investment horizon, it is essential to clear away the clouds that obstruct the view. This is the main purpose of an interesting booklet which is now ready for public distribution. It penetrates with the light of truth and logic the murky mists of popular misconceptions regarding the present security market.

Write NOW for your copy entitled "The 'Mystery Market' Explained".

The Investment Certificates will be available in denominations of $1,000 in Coupon and Registered form and $100 in Registered form only. Fractional amounts of Investment Certificates will not be issuable, but depositors may purchase them at the above prices. Interest will be adjusted so as to be continuous but not overlapping.

Class A Stock will not be delivered at the time of exchange but depositors will receive Convertible Debenture Certificates in the principal amount of $100 for each two (2) shares of Class A Stock deliverable, which certificates are convertible into Class A Stock at any time after six months from date of issue at the option of the holder or the Company; bear interest at the rate of 6% per annum payable quarterly and provide that, in lieu of cash interest payments, the holder will receive dividends in Class A Stock which he would receive on the Class A Stock into which the Certificate is convertible had he converted the same. Adjustments will not be made for accrued interest or dividend under this option.

All exchanges are subject to the terms of the offers to the holders of the securities to be deposited. Further information may be obtained from your Security Dealer or the undersigned.

Holders of coupon bonds should deposit them with the Chase National Bank of the City of New York, Agency Division, corner Pine and Nassau Streets. Preferred Stocks and Registered Bonds should be sent to the undersigned at Room 2015, 61 Broadway, New York City.

The above offers supersede all previous ones and are subject to withdrawal at any time.

A BANK LOOKS AT FOREIGN TRADE TRENDS

Sheiks and soda water

When Mohammed in A. D. 623 made Islam dry, he created trade possibilities in Egypt which should appeal particularly to American business enterprise.

By the immutable law of Allah, the overwhelming majority of Egypt's 14,000,000 inhabitants are "dry". This, coupled with a hot climate and air as dry as the law of the land, should make Egypt a paradise for enterprising American soft-drink manufacturers—so says the American representative on the International Tribunal at Cairo.

The United States now faces an adverse Egyptian trade balance of some $31,000,000. Our total annual exports to Egypt are only $10,000,000 despite the fact that Egyptian imports include coal, cotton piece-goods, cotton yarn, flour, iron and steel manufactured, kerosene, empty sacks, silk textiles, soap, raw and refined sugar, wheat, lumber, woolen textiles, tobacco leaf, dried fruits, motor vehicles, lubricating oils and machinery.

According to the report of the British Trade Advisor our share in this list consists chiefly of flour, machinery, motor vehicles and lubricating oils. As we undersell the world in some of the other goods which appear in the list it is the opinion of trade experts that we could do better in Egypt than we are doing at present.

* * *

To be sure, the Egyptian has ways of doing business which are all his own. Through years of contact with banks and commercial houses all over the world the Seaboard National Bank has acquired a fund of knowledge which our customers engaged in foreign trade find valuable. Our Foreign Department Officers will gladly discuss your particular problem with you whether it relates to Egypt or another land. And we have a booklet "Seaboard Foreign Banking Facilities" which we will mail at your request.

what outlook for

Copper Companies?

Significant developments are taking place in the copper industry. Between 1913 and 1928—see diagram—copper consumption in the United States showed a rapid increase. Note at the end of this time Europe was actually consuming LESS copper than thirteen years before.

But consider, at right, the trend NOW of copper exports. Out of the broadest basic changes in any industry is here taking place in the copper industry.

What further effect will this have on copper companies?
What outlook for each of these—

Anaconda?	Kennecott?	New Cornelia?
Magma?	Granby?	Calumet & Hecla?
Mother Lode?	Kay Copper?	Tennessee Copper?
Chile?	Seneca?	Calumet & Arizona?

All these companies are reviewed, and the whole copper situation analyzed, with this, in Special Report on Coppers prepared for our Clients. A few extra copies of this valuable report are reserved for distribution, free—as long as the supply lasts.

Simply ask for "Special Copper Report".

NET OF $13,167,906 FOR COAST UTILITY

Southern California Edison Reports 14% Gain in 1928, With $3.10 a Share Earned.

The gross earnings of the Southern California Edison Company for 1928 amounted to $35,281,927, as compared with $30,800,937 in 1927, an increase of $4,481,290, or 14 per cent, and net earnings after expenses and taxes were $23,466,981, against $20,615,686, a gain of $2,871,295, or 14 per cent.

Net income after depreciation and charges was $13,167,906, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $3.10 a share earned on 2,205,397 shares of common stock, as compared with $11,059,693, equal to $3.20 a share on 1,972,147 shares in 1927. "The increase in fixed charges on additional capital, which has not yet attained anything like its full earning power," the report says, "explains the slight difference in the earnings per share on the common stock."

The company is offering its holders of record March 22 of common and original preferred stocks the right to subscribe to additional common shares at $25 par, involving the issue of $6,400,000 additional common stock.

MERCHANTS FIGHT EXPRESS CHARGES

Five Shippers' Groups Protest to I. C. C. That Sub-Block Rates Are Illegal.

DEMAND AN INVESTIGATION

Allege Short Hauls in Many Cases Cost More Than Maximum Prescribed by Commission.

The Merchants Association of New York made public yesterday the text of the complaint it has made jointly with four other business organizations to the Interstate Commerce Commission against the so-called sub-block rates established by the American Railway Express Company and the Southeastern Express Company. The other organizations joining in the complaint are the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the New England Traffic League, the National Industrial Traffic League and the Shippers' Conference of Greater New York.

In their joint complaint the organizations representing shippers maintain that the sub-block express rates covering short distances have been set up by the express companies in violation of the order and formula promulgated by the Interstate Commerce Commission on May 17, 1924. They allege that in many cases the short distance rates exceed the maximum rates prescribed by the commission and are "unjust and unreasonable, in violation of section 1 of Interstate Commerce Commission act to the extent that they violate the formula prescribed."

It is specifically set forth in the complaint that the rates from New York City to some parts of suburban New Jersey and Southern New York State, also Long Island, are illegal because they are higher than those allowed by the commission's order. Rates out of twenty-one representative cities, including New York City are cited in support of the complaint.

The Merchants Association and associated organizations further complain that the express companies have ignored a written warning by the Interstate Commerce Commission to revise their rates where they were out of line, such a letter having been written by John J. Esch, chairman of the commission, following complaints last year.

After complaining that the express companies fixed their sub-block rates on the basis of a rule unlike any adopted by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Merchants Association and associated organizations further allege:

"That the ease of computation which the commission intended as a part of the rate system it prescribed has been largely destroyed and now it is not possible for any shipper accurately to check sub-block express rates without having a copy of the master map used in the construction of such rates, and only one copy of this map exists, so far as the complainants are informed, that copy being filed in the offices of the American Railway Express Company at New York City.

"That by reason of the facts stated in the foregoing paragraphs, complainants' members have been subjected to the payment of rates for transportation by express which were, when exacted, and now are, unjust and unreasonable, in violation of Section 1 of the Interstate Commerce act, to the extent that they violate the formula prescribed and used by the commission in the decisions herein referred to.

"Wherefore, complainants pray that the defendants may be required to answer the charges herein; that after due hearing and investigation an order be made commanding said defendants, and each of them, to cease and desist from the aforesaid violations."

The complaint was filed by Luther M. Walter, attorney representing the five organizations.

CORPORATION REPORTS.

The Richfield Oil Company of California for 1928 reports net earnings of $7,178,119, after all charges, including depreciation, depletion, Federal taxes and preferred dividends. This is equal to $4.65 a share on 1,543,771 shares of common stock and compares with $3,589,730, or $3.07 a share on 1,169,293 shares in 1927. Net profits for the fourth quarter of last year, after all charges and preferred dividends, were $2,189,063, equal to $1.16 a share on 1,887,128 shares of common stock, against 90 cents a share in the same period of 1927 when 1,169,293 shares were outstanding.

GOODYEAR TO GIVE RIGHTS.

Plans to Offer Holders 3 New Shares at $80 Each for Every 10 Held.

Directors of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company have approved the issuance to stockholders of additional common stock at $80 a share in the ratio of three new shares for every ten owned of record on Feb. 21. The subscription rights, calculated on the basis of the closing price of 128 for the common stock on Monday, are worth more than $11 apiece.

The proposed offering will increase the common stock outstanding by about 825,000 shares. Warrants for subscription will be good until March 16.

The increase in capital, it was announced yesterday by President P. W. Litchfield, would permit a further investment in raw materials, both crude rubber and tire fabric. It also will increase the working capital to take care of the company's expanding business in the domestic and foreign fields. The company will realize $28,840,000 from the sale of the additional stock to stockholders.

George W. Helme Company.

The George W. Helme Company for the year ended Dec. 31, 1928, reports net earnings of $2,301,060 after all charges, including Federal taxes, equivalent, after allowing for preferred dividends, to $8.42 a share on the 240,000 shares of common stock outstanding. This compares with $2,258,849, or $8.24 a share, in 1927.

BUSINESS NOTES.

C. A. Miller, for twenty-five years connected with the American Wholesale Corporation, has resigned to engage in the specialty knitted outerwear wholesale field in Baltimore under the firm name of the Millersknit, Inc.

The New York salesrooms of the Marigold Knitting Mills have been moved from 366 Fifth Avenue to the Garment Centre Capitol, 498 Seventh Avenue.

Number of Buyers Drops.

A drop was shown in the number of buyers in the market during the week ended yesterday. The total, however, was above that of last year at this time. For the week just ended 1,297 buyers were reported as compared with 1,762 in the preceding week and 1,170 in the corresponding week a year ago, according to the lists published in THE TIMES. Yesterday's arrivals were 524, as against 787 on Tuesday of last week.

Huth Fur Sale Brings $4,700,000.

The Winter fur auction of Frederick Huth & Co., which had been going on here since Feb. 4, concluded yesterday with sales totaling $4,700,000. Yesterday's selling was devoted entirely to the remainder of the silver fox collection, and the day's realization was $900,000. Compared with the average prices received for the various grades of silver fox sold at the last Huth auction here, yesterday's averages showed these percentage advances: Full silver, 25; three-quarter, 20; one-half, 15; one-quarter and one-eighth, unchanged, and black, 10. Prompt day for the sale just closed will be March 6. The Spring sale will begin on April 15.

To Merge or Not to Merge?

To merge or not to merge is far the dominating question in many retailers' minds. Since the recent organization of a prominent chain of department stores the whole retail situation has, in fact, become supercharged with merger atmosphere. Some retailers frankly confess a "compelling urge" to sell out while they have the opportunity because of the growing competition they face. In conservative quarters, however, a note of caution is being sounded. In one instance related yesterday the annual return on a store as a merger unit, taking cash and stock yield, was less than as an independent.

Cloisonne Buckles Set Shoe Vogue.

A vogue for fancy buckles is making strong headway in the women's shoe trade. Many of the newest shoes, it was said yesterday, are being styled with the buckle as a dominating motif. The trend is toward the cloisonné or buckle of jeweler's enamel, which is held to be replacing the cut-steel type. Sizes are smaller, in line with the swing away from Colonial effects. The buckles are featured in a variety of patterns and shades, the beige tones being most popular, as they match the favored shoes. The buckles are priced at $18 a dozen.

'Fashion Insurance' Gains Headway.

Not only are retailers finding analysis of fashion merchandising profitable, but there has been a corresponding development among manufacturers. Plans of "fashion insurance" are being worked out that are held to represent a significant forward step in the industry. New models are no longer being developed merely from a production standpoint, but are being carefully planned on a more scientific basis of both retailer and consumer acceptance. In some houses a special bureau, equipped with a skillful stylist and adequate fashion data passes on each style and its acceptance or rejection depends on its verdict.

Coat Orders Now Growing.

While the ensemble is still the big feature, a growing volume of business in separate coats of both the sports and dressy types is being placed. Retailers have apparently filled a large part of their early ensemble needs and are now turning their attention to coats. Fancy patterns dominate in the sports styles, with the more subdued effects taking well. Included are border designs, all-over patterns and tweed types. Broadcloths lead by far in the dressy coats in which black, middy blue, tans and greens are the preferred shades.

See Record for Electrical Devices.

Business in electrical devices for the home promises to set new levels this year, according to trade authorities. Not only is volume being produced by the wide variety of new and imporved accessories being put on the market, but a substantial replacement demand is looked upon as certain. A strong factor in the situation is the marked gain in the number of homes now wired for electricity. A favorable development for retailers is a better understanding between power companies and the stores as to terms of sale by the former to consumers.

Millinery Buyers Favor Straws.

The newest shade to bid for favor in high-grade millinery here is one of the Patou group on the nasturtium order. It has become particularly strong in the last week. Other colors in active demand at the moment are sand, red, various blues and black. The feature of the materials sought is the persistence of the call for baku bodies in the straw group. Prices of this straw are high in the primary market, as are those for ballibunti, which runs second to baku in favor. Retail milliners who make their own head sizes—a branch of the business that is growing steadily with the gradual return of longer hair—favor parisememe straw strongly. While felts are again picking up, sales of straw chapeaux exceed them in the higher-priced lines.

Profit Ideals Need Revision.

An outstanding factor preventing the improvement of profit margins in some lines, it was said yesterday, is the willingness of many producers to take a small total profit although the volume done may be very large. The women's underwear field, particularly the rayon division, was cited as an instance where this is notably true. Many producers in this field obtain what to them is a good profit and a comfortable living, but in relation to the total output of their factories the net return is smaller than other producers would willingly accept. Improvement was said to hinge more than anything else on the raising of the profit ideals of the former.

Fall Fabric Demand Lacks Snap.

The situation in men's Fall woolens shows a lack of activity that is ascribed mainly to the delay in showing fancy woolen and worsted suitings. Buyers here a while ago gave scant attention to staples but showed a fair amount of interest in overcoatings. Many have left the market to return during the last week of this month, when the suitings will be generally opened. Orders for special styles have supplied the mills with a large part of the orders they have booked so far.

CORPORATE CHANGES.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, Del., Feb. 13.—These notices of increases in capital were filed today:

LATEST DEALINGS IN REAL ESTATE

EAST SIDE BLOCK BOUGHT BY BUILDER

17 Old Flats to Be Replaced by Garden Type Apartments With Tall Towers.

PARCEL HELD AT $1,500,000

Several Other Transactions in Schurz Park Area, Where Plots Are Being Assembled.

One of the largest of numerous recent deals in the Carl Schurz Park area was closed yesterday, when the blockfront on the west side of York Avenue between Seventy-ninth and Eightieth Streets was purchased by Moses Ginsberg from the Dualin Holding Corporation, represented by Howard LeC. Roome. The plot has a frontage of 204 feet on the avenue, 179 feet on Seventy-ninth Street and 175 feet on Eightieth Street, being 1,493-1,509 York Avenue, 450-456 East Seventy-ninth Street and 431-437 East Eightieth Street. Thoens & Flaunlacher were the brokers in the sale.

There are seventeen old four and five story flats on the site, which contains 32,266 square feet. The holding price was close to $1,500,000, according to the brokers.

Mr. Ginsberg announced that he is having plans prepared for erecting on the entire site a garden apartment house with towers thirty-five stories or possibly more in height, making it, he says, the largest garden apartment structure in the city. Several new apartment houses have recently been completed or are nearing completion in the immediate vicinity, and just to the north at Eighty-fourth Street is the new building of the Chapin School for Girls.

This is the second large transaction closed recently on the east side by Mr. Ginsberg for apartment house development. A few days ago he purchased the easterly Madison Avenue blockfront from Seventy-sixth to Seventy-seventh Streets, where he is preparing to erect a thirty-six-story residential building.

The five-story tenement at 508 East Eighty-first Street, 25 by 102 feet, near the southeast corner of York Avenue, was purchased by Oscar Rosenbaum from W. Kerschenbluth. Adolph Oberlander was the broker.

Frank Schwartz sold for Fannie Stark the tenement at 502 East Seventy-third Street, adjoining the southeast corner of York Avenue, 25 by 100 feet. The purchaser was Mrs. Haibel C. Georger, who has bought several parcels in the Yorkville section.

The Wood, Dolson Company sold for Rhoda Armstrong to the Eskray Realty Corporation 28 East Ninety-fifth Street, a five-story American basement dwelling on a lot 17 by 100 feet, near the southwest corner of Madison Avenue. It was held at $80,000.

The five-story tenement with stores at 1,277 Third Avenue, between Seventy-third and Seventy-fourth Streets, has been bought by Adolph Weiss from Jacob Wass. Friedlander, Levin & Abramchick, in conjunction with Leon Stein and Louis F. Sommers, were the brokers.

The Freidlander firm also sold, in conjunction with the Eighty-sixth Street Realty Company, the four-story building at 1,614 First Avenue, 25 by 100 feet, adjoining the southeast corner of Eighty-fourth Street.

Harry N. Kohn sold to the Eighty-fourth Street and Lexington Avenue Corporation 1,235-1,239 Lexington Avenue, southeast corner of Eighty-fourth Street, a five-story apartment house with six stores. The property was held at $350,000.

OTHER MANHATTAN SALES.

Deals in Business and Other Parcels Reported Yesterday.

A syndicate headed by Arthur Cutler purchased 334-51 West Thirty-fourth Street, 98 by 100 feet, on the north side of the street, between Ninth and Tenth Avenues, from the Royce Realty Corporation, Irving Feldman, president. The broker in the transaction was Henry D. Bogatin.

The four-story residence at 46 West Ninety-seventh Street, 20 by 100 feet, has been sold through Cusack & Gallagher and the Harrison Realty Service, as brokers, for Mrs. Sadie B. Tillotson to Mrs. Mary Collins.

The four-story building at 257 East Thirty-sixth Street, 20 by 100 feet, has been resold by John F. Finneran to the Armax Realty Corporation. Robert J. Kelly was the broker.

The Sinclair Prospect Corporation, L. Eisen president, sold to the Bull Moose Holding Corporation (George S. Runk), 1,621 Madison Avenue, a five-story flat with stores on a lot 16.6 by 70 feet between 108th and 109th Streets.

Nall & Parker, Inc., sold for a client 17-19-21 West 137th Street, to the J. B. M. Realty Corporation, three six-story and basement new law apartment buildings on a plot 40 by 99.11 feet each, showing a gross rental of about $66,000.

The Combined Business Corporation sold to 236 West Seventieth Street, Inc., represented by Kremer & Kleinfeld the nine-story apartment house, 236 West Seventieth Street, subject to a mortgage of $378,250.

Harold M. Silverman sold for Hyman Lumer and Helen Fine to Dr. Henry W. Holling, 1-9 Sickles Street, northwest corner of Nagle Avenue, a five-story new-law apartment, containing forty-two apartments and five stores, on a plot 70 by 130 feet.

To Discuss Building Management.

Problems in the operation of office buildings will be discussed by Clarence T. Coley, operating manager of the Equitable Building, before the class in Building Management at Kent Hall, Columbia University, tonight. Applications for enrolment in the class, which began Feb. 6, may be made through the Registrar of the university. Lectures are made under the supervision of Charles F. Merritt, executive secretary of the Building Managers and Owners Association of New York, Inc.

REALTY FINANCING.

Loans secured by mortgages on the following properties were announced yesterday:

Manhattan.

Four-story apartment house with stores at 306 West Thirty-fourth Street, $45,000 at 5½ per cent to 306 West Thirty-fourth Street Realty Corporation, Moses Blumberg, president; Quinlan & Leland, brokers.

Parcel at 1,470-87 Third Avenue, southeast corner of Eighty-fourth Street, $150,000 at 5 per cent for five years; Duross Company, broker.

General.

At a meeting of its mortgage committee this week, the Title Guarantee and Trust Company approved seventy loans amounting to $1,049,700, distributed as follows: Manhattan, $231,500; Brooklyn, Queens, Nassau and Suffolk, $818,200.

Baptists Buy Riverdale Site For New Home for the Aged

The Baptist Home for the Aged has purchased from Jacob S. Mehlman a track of twenty lots in the Riverdale section of the Bronx as a site for its new home, Mrs. Frank L. Froment, president, announced yesterday. The tract fronts the Fairfield on Arlington Avenues, Spuyten Duyvil Parkway and 235th Street. A fireproof structure will be erected soon at a cost of more than $50,000, Mr. Froment said.

The old home on East Sixty-eighth Street, between Park and Lexington Avenues, occupied for fifty years, was bought in January by John D. Rockefeller Jr.'s Empire Trust Company. Mr. Rockefeller allowing the institution a profit of $800,000 to finance the new building.

The Baptist Home was represented in the Riverdale purchase by Van Doren, Conklin & McNevin and Mr. Mehlman was represented by Angus S. McCabe, Inc.

LEASEHOLD DEALS.

Manhattan Parcels Reported Under New Control.

The Frank Glover estate leased the five-story building at 39 peck Slip for a term of years to Charles S. Lyons, and the five-story structure at 45 Peck Slip, northwest corner of South Street, to Harry Weinstein. The aggregate rental in both deals is more than $50,000, according to Ryan-Brady, Inc., the broker.

The 120 West Seventy-first Street Corporation, Harry Alperstein, president, leased the three dwellings at 130-34 West Seventy-first Street for a term of years through Cusack & Gallagher and Harry E. Blatus. The lessee plans to alter the structure into non-housekeeping apartments.

SHIP BOARD TELLS OF CHAPMAN BID

Informs Senate Committee It Is Satisfied of Company's Financial Standing.

SEVEN NEW SHIPS PLANNED

Sheedy Says He Will Be Operating Head and Predicts Turning $547,000 Yearly Loss to Profits.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—T. V. O'Connor, chairman of the Shipping Board, informed the Senate Commerce Committee today of the board's approval of the bid of P. W. Chapman & Co., Inc., for the Atlantic merchant fleet. He said six of the seven commissioners favored accepting the New York City firm's offer of $16,300,000 for the United States and American Merchant lines and leaseholds.

The seventh commissioner favored a Pacific Coast bidder for the American lines, Mr. O'Connor said, but endorsed the Chapman bid for the United States line. Consummation of the sale has been temporarily delayed pending the outcome of the Senate committee's inquiry authorized by the McKellar resolution.

The committee also heard Joseph Sheedy, representing the Chapman company.

Montauk Terminal Plan Denied.

The hearing today served to bring a denial from both Chairman O'Connor and Mr. Sheedy of intimations that the Chapman company might be contemplating the use of Montauk Point as the terminal for any or all of the ships covered by the bid. This denial was entered in response to questions asked by Senator Copeland, Democrat, of New York.

The Senator said later that he had had intimations from unidentified shipping interests that such a move was projected and that he was still inclined to seek further information on that subject.

Mr. O'Connor told the committee that the Chapman bid provides for the construction by that company immediately of two sister ships to the Leviathan at an estimated expenditure of $56,000,000. For these two ships, he said, it is proposed that the government make a loan of 75 per cent of the cost after the company had spent the other 25 per cent in accordance with the merchant marine act.

It is also expected, he said, that the government will enter into contracts with the Chapman company for the carriage of transatlantic mails, which will give the company about $2,000,000 a year in revenue.

Financial Aspect Explained.

The money to be advanced for the construction of the new ships would be repaid within twenty years and would bear interest at a rate fixed by the Secretary of the Treasury to be based on the interest which the government is obliged to pay for its own borrowings. The $16,300,000 offered for the two lines would be paid at the rate of 25 per cent at once and the balance in equal annual instalments for fifteen years.

Mr. Sheedy told the committee that while the bid guarantees the construction of only two new ships the company plans to construct at least seven in the next ten years.

Senator Fletcher of Florida, an advocate of government ownership and operation of the merchant marine, questioned Mr. O'Connor whether the board's determination to accept the Chapman bid is based on a belief that such action would tend to the upbuilding of an adequate merchant marine or merely upon a desire to get the government out of the shipping business.

O'Connor Calls Bid "Ideal."

"I think it is an ideal bid if the government is to get out of the shipping business," Chairman O'Connor declared. "We went into the financial end of the proposition and the board is perfectly satisfied that the company will make good on this proposition."

"But is it an ideal bid if the government wants to build up an adequate American merchant marine?" Senator Fletcher asked.

"Absolutely," Chairman O'Connor replied.

It was at this point that Senator Copeland raised the question as to a possible connection between the Chapman bid and the Montauk Point development. He asked if Chairman O'Connor had any information concerning the company's plans with respect to the location of its terminals. Mr. O'Connor replied that the bid submitted contained an offer of $218,000 for the leases on piers and offices now operated by the board in connection with the operation of these two lines.

Sheedy Confident of Profits.

"Have you any reason to suspect that Montauk Point is involved in the bid?" Senator Copeland asked.

"It may be in ten years," said Mr. O'Connor, explaining that "anybody that is talking about Montauk Point is talking about something that is ten years in the future." He added that the promoters of the Montauk Point development are not connected in any way with the Chapman bid. This was repeated later by Mr. Sheedy when he was questioned by the committee.

Mr. Sheedy assured the committee that he felt confident that the company would be able to operate the two lines on a paying basis.

Senator Copeland pointed out that at present the government is losing $547,000 a year on the two lines and that the financing of the two new ships proposed would entail annual fixed charges of $2,702,000, which must be overcome in addition to the losses.

"I expect to make money out of this, but I don't expect to do it right away," Mr. Sheedy said.

He explained that an increase of 10 per cent in the business now done by the lines would overcome the present losses and provide revenue enough to meet the additional charges mentioned.

Cuts in Overhead Forecast.

"The administrative overhead will drop $500,000 a year under efficient private management," Mr. Sheedy said, explaining that many of the offices which the government is compelled to maintain in order to solicit business would be closed and their functions handled through commercial and financial connections of the Chapman company.

"If we lose a million dollars this year and another million next year, that doesn't matter," he said, "we are convinced that over a ten-year period we can make some money."

Mr. Sheedy explained that he has had thirty-two years of experience in building and operating ships, including several years with the Shipping Board, during part of which time he was vice president in charge of European affairs for the Emergency Fleet Corporation. He expects to be the executive head of the company which will operate the ships if the Chapman bid is accepted, he said.

Two Letters Stale Board's Position.

Senator Jones of Washington read two letters, one from Mr. O'Connor giving the position of the majority of the board, and one from Jefferson Meyers of Portland, Ore., the seventh member of the board, who favors the acceptance of a bid submitted by the Admiral Oriental Line for the five vessels of the American Merchant Line.

The Admiral Oriental Line offered $2,525,000 for these five ships and proposed to operate them between Pacific Coast ports and Europe. While favoring the Admiral Oriental Line bid as to the American Merchant Line, Mr. Meyers stated that he is in favor of the proposed sale of the United States Lines.

Chairman O'Connor's letter giving the majority view of the board was addressed to Senator Jones. It read:

"In response to Senate resolution 317, the board submitted to the Senate on Jan. 21 a summary of the bids resulting from the board's advertised specifications for the sale of the United States Lines and the American Merchant Lines.

All Bids Analyzed, Says Chairman.

"In response to Senate resolution 319 the board appeared before your honorable committee Feb. 7 and in accordance with that proceeding makes this statement. It is the opinion of the United States Shipping Board that the United States Lines and the American Merchant Lines with the leaseholds should be awarded to Paul W. Chapman on his bid submitted under proposition 3 in response to the board's advertised specifications.

"The board has arrived at this opinion after the most deliberate consideration of each bid and careful analysis and investigation of the bidders as to financial responsibility and operating plans to insure permanency for these lines.

"The board is now prepared to proceed accordingly, but will, of course, give its earnest consideration to any advice your honorable committee may suggest. The board is impressed with its responsibility for a prompt decision."

Both Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Sheedy will appear before the committee again tomorrow. Although the resolution under which the committee is proceeding authorizes an investigation of all bids submitted, Chairman Jones expressed the opinion that any further testimony should be confined to the merits or demerits of the Chapman bid alone.

LINERS GET REPAIRS AT SAN FRANCISCO

President Adams Delayed There —Federal Hearing Called on Grounding of Garfield.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12.—Contract for repairs to the Dollar liner President Adams, which grounded near the eastern entrance to the Panama Canal recently, has been awarded to the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation's plant there. Cost of the repairs will amount to about $35,000 and it will require ninety-five days to put the vessel in condition to resume her round-the-world schedule. The liner Ruth Alexander is substituting for the President Adams on the current tour.

Temporary repairs to the Dollar liner President Garfield, which arrived here Saturday morning after having gone aground in the Bahamas, have been made here and the steamer is sailing today on her westward cruise, omitting Honolulu. Captain Thomas P. Quinn is remaining ashore and Captain Gregory Cullen, formerly first officer of the President Adams, is taking over command.

Federal steamboat inspectors will hold a hearing here as to the cause of the grounding of the President Garfield and Captain Quinn, who was on the bridge at the time, will be the principal witness.

After a month spent in touring the United States, T. Asaka, general passenger agent for the Japanese N. Y. K. Line, has returned to his local office. Mr. Asaka went to New York by way of Chicago and other Great Lakes ports and returned by way of Philadelphia and New Orleans, visiting tourist and steamship agencies.

The California & Eastern steamer West Keats, which arrived yesterday from the Atlantic coast, is discharging cargo here and will proceed to Seattle, where the vessel is scheduled to be turned over to Kenneth B. Dawson, who recently purchasd the four steamers of the C. & E. fleet.

WILL OFFER 253 VESSELS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The Shipping Board voted today to offer for sale at new low rates 253 of its laid-up ships. No time was set for the return of bids, any offers being considered on their merits as received.

The ships constitute all of the laid-up fleet except those required as reserve vessels of Shipping Board operations. The ships are largely of the oil-burning, steel cargo type, suitable for ocean service after overhauling and repairs. The so-called "laker" type ships are not included.

N. Y. U. GRADUATES GATHER.

300 Arts and Engineering Alumni Reunite on University Heights.

More than 300 members of the Alumni Association of the College of Arts and Pure Sciences and the College of Engineering of New York University returned to the University Heights centre yesterday for mid-winter alumni day, which closed with the annual reunion dinner at the Waldorf last night. Among the speakers were Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown and former Federal Judge Edwin L. Garvin.

At the campus the returning alumni attended special chapel exercises in the Gould Memorial Library Auditorium, with Arthur Butler, '05, as speaker. At a business meeting in the afternoon the alumni elected the following officers:

SHIP MEN TO STUDY COST DIFFERENTIAL

SEEK TO AID THE BUILDERS

The launching of investigations into the two outstanding problems of the American merchant marine—the differential in the cost of building commercial ships in American yards over the cost of similar work abroad and means of aiding the construction of cargo ships—was announced yesterday. A committee appointed at the recent Shipping Board conference in Washington to study differentials will meet Friday at the offices of the American Steamship Owners' Association, 11 Broadway, and a committee to study cargo-ship construction aid will meet Feb. 21 at the United States Chamber of Commerce Building, in Washington.

In summoning the personnel of the committees the chairmen have asked for suggestions as to solutions of the two problems and they expect to submit programs to the Shipping Board that will comprise the best features of these plans. H. B. Smith, vice president of the National Council of American Shipbuilders and of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, is chairman of the committee on differentials and H. G. Smith, president of the American Steamship Owners' Association is chairman of the committee on construction of cargo ships.

Captain Charles A. McAllister, president of the American Bureau of Shipping, is a member of both committees, having spent several years in the study of the problems. He has submitted plans to both chairmen, he said yesterday, and his ideas are said to have brought favorable comment. While declining to set forth his plans in detail pending their consideration by the committees, Captain McAllister said that he held government loans and mail contracts to be necessary in taking the cost differential from the shipowners' shoulders.

"The committees have much in common, he said, and should try eventually to come together in joint discussion. The cost differential to be considered by one committee is the main reason why cargo ships are not being built in American yards, which condition is the subject of the investigation of the second committee.

"The amount of differential" Captain McAllister said, "is the first detail that the committees must dispose of. We are told by shipbuilders, owners and operators and others interested in ships that it costs more to build a ship in this country than abroad, but each party when asked to estimate the amount names a different figure.

"Some official body must make a study of conditions and get the facts and figures in the international shipbuilding situation. It may not be a simple task but it is a necessary one. Then, when we have agreed that the cost in the United States is definitely so much more than in foreign yards we can tackle the problem of placing the differential where it hurts least."

Captain McAllister is agreed with most shipping men that the cost in American yards must be greater so long as the standards of living here are higher than in foreign countries. But he is convinced, he said, that the difference of cost can be taken from the shoulders of the men who want commercial ships and are willing to build them at home if they can do so at a suitable cost.

The merchant marine act of 1928, which is based on the Jones-White bill, passed at the last session of Congress, has proved a valuable factor in easing the expense to Americans by the granting of contracts for the carrying of mails and the lending of funds by the government at a low rate of interest to the extent of three-quarters of the cost of ships built in American yards, according to standards set by the Shipping Board. Captain McAllister considers this the most progressive legislation ever enacted for American shipping men, but he holds that it does not eliminate the differential over the cost of building abroad.

"The differential as it finally reaches the man who pays for the ship," he said, "is less than before, but it is still there, to a degree."

The plans submitted by Captain McAllister approach the mail contract and the loan ideas otherwise than does the merchant marine act. He will explain his ideas at the meeting of the committee Friday. Other members of the committees also have advanced plans and they will be spokesmen for them. The committees are among several appointed at a conference in Washington in January, presided over by Chairman T. V. O'Connor of the Shipping Board.

Boston & Maine Dividend.

BOSTON, Feb. 12 (AP).—The directors of the Boston & Maine Railroad today announced a dividend on unstamped first preferred stock which clears up accruals on that stock from July 1, 1920, to July 1, 1926. The dividends range from $19.35 on Class E stock to $43 on Class D stock. The Class A dividend is $21.50, B $34.40 and C $30.10.

SHIP BOARD ALLOWS ATLANTIC COMPACT

Conference Organization to Function in Passenger Traffic to Europe and Mediterranean.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—An agreement among transatlantic carriers was approved by the Shipping Board today in respect to transportation of passengers from Atlantic and Gulf ports of the United States to European ports and to ports of Asia and Africa bordering on the Mediterranean. It also includes westbound transportation on prepaid tickets sold on the North American continent and, subject to unanimous vote, transatlantic cruises from or to ports of the North American continent, except Mexico. It establishes a conference organization to function in two groups, comprised respectively of carriers in the North and Continental European trade and carriers in the Mediterranean trade.

"Any carrier engaged in transatlantic passenger traffic between ports to which the agreement is applicable is eligible to membership. Lines in the North Atlantic-Continental group may withdraw upon six weeks' notice and lines in the Mediterranean group upon thirty days' notice. Withdrawal of a member line will operate to release the other lines from the obligations of the agreement unless they elect to continue the arrangement," the compact states.

Under the agreement member lines retain the right to determine and fix their own fares, but are not to take any action resulting in decreased revenue without thirty days' prior notice to the other members.

Disputes, claims and complaints among member lines are to be adjusted by arbitration and each participating carrier is required to deposit a promissory note as a guarantee of good faith and to insure compliance with any award of arbitration. Action under the agreement in respect to matters of general interest will be by unanimous vote of all members and by vote of all interested members in matters not concerning all lines. Action violating any of the regulatory provisions of the shipping act is expressly prohibited.

Other agreements approved by the board today were:

Munson Steamship Line with Redwood Line, Inc.—Arangement covering through movement of shipments from Pacific Coast ports to ports of Mexico. The commodities to which the agreement is applicable, the through rates, divisions thereof, ports of destination and the conditions to which transportation under the agreement are subject are to be as set forth in Pacific Coast-Gulf eastbound outport minimum rate list No. 1 and supplements to or reissues thereof. Cost of transshipment at New Orleans is to be included in the through rate.

Bull Insular Line, Inc., with Dollar Steamship Line.—Through billing arrangements covering movement of shipments of general cargo from foreign ports of call of the Dollar Steamship Line to San Juan and other Porto Rican ports. The through rates, which are to be based on direct-line rates, are to be divided three-sevenths to Dollar and four-seventh to Bull Insular, the latter to absorb cost of transshipment at New York City.

Oceanic and Oriental Navigation Company with Dimon Steamship Corporation.—Agreement covering movement of shipments on through bills of lading from Atlantic Coast ports to Far East ports and apportioning the through rates, which are to be based on Far East Conference direct-line rates, and cost of transshipment at San Francisco to be shared equally between the participating lines. Outward State tolls at San Francisco are to be borne by the transpacific carrier and inward State tolls by the intercoastal line.

British Ship Beached After Collision

GRAVESEND, England, Feb. 12 (AP).—The British steamer Highland Pride, from Buenos Aires, was beached near here today after being in collision with the Norwegian steamer Bras, which sailed from Savannah on Jan. 12. The Highland Pride, of 4,700 tons, suffered damages on her port side, but the Bras, of 1,300 tons, was able to proceed on her voyage to Tyne. Tugs are standing by the Highland Pride.

To Inspect Naval Reserves Here.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The Naval Reserve Inspection Board, headed by Captain O. A. Blakely, will inspect reserve units at North River, N. Y., on Feb. 25 and at Brooklyn on Feb. 26. He will be assisted by Commander A. W. Spears, who is on duty at the Navy Department, and Lieutenant John B. Barrett, who is attached to headquarters of the Third Naval District at New York.

Biggest South American Motor Ship.

A special cable dispatch from Panama printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Feb. 6 described the two British motorships Asturias and Alcantara as the largest vessels calling regularly at Buenos Aires. This was an error, the Cap Arcona of the Hamburg-South American Steamship Company being larger.

DETAILED TO NAVAL STUDY.

Five Officers of Army Branches Ordered to Newport College.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—With the consent of the Navy Department, Lieut. Col. Clifford Jones, Coast Artillery Corps; Major LeRoy P. Collins, Field Artillery; Major Herbert Dargue, Air Corps; Major William A. Johnson, Corps of Engineers, and Major Kennag Eastham, Cavalry, have been detailed by the War Department as students to the Naval War College at Newport, for the 1929-30 course.

All except Lieut. Col. Jones are students at the Army War College and will be graduated in June. Lieut. Col. Jones was graduated from the War College in 1922, and is now a student at the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth.

The former detail of army officers to the Naval War College has been increased to five to include one from the Air Corps.

CLASH AT ALBANY OVER VIVISECTION

FLEXNER DEFENDS TESTS

Anti-Vivisectionist Suggests Use of Murderers Instead of Dogs for Experiments.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 12.—Anti-vivisectionists, in suggesting that surgeons do their experimenting on murder convicts awaiting execution, invoked the name of Lincoln today in an effort to have the Assembly Codes Committee approve liberation of dogs from the experimental knife on the birthday of the emancipator.

For once, however, at a public hearing on the time-honored bill to outlaw experiments on dogs the attending opponents of the measure headed this year by Dr. Simon Flexner, director of Rockefeller Institute, outnumbered the anti-vivisection group and marshaled an array of medical lore to prove the value of dogs in the operating room.

The bronchoscope to extricate from the windpipe objects accidentally swallowed was exhibited as an instrument, the use of which was made possible by experimentation on dogs, and medical experts testified to an increasing control over human diseases through surgical studies of the animals.

Assemblyman Edward L. Vaughan, Democrat, of Staten Island, who introduced the bill, suggested the human substitute for dogs.

"We hear a lot about the abolishment of capital punishment," he said to the physicians. "Wouldn't it be a good idea to turn over murderers to you instead of putting them in the electric chair?"

Surgeon Voices Disapproval.

Dr. Horatio Williams, of the medical department of Columbia University, who was addressing the committee at the time, gave the suggestion no encouragement.

"I'm not certain we would like to do that," he said. "The doctor is not an executioner."

The Assemblyman was insistent that some other animal, at least, should replace the dog on the operating table. "Would it not be appropriate," he insisted, "to emancipate the dog and give him his liberty on this birthday of the man who freed mankind?"

Dr. Wilbur J. Murphy, who said he was a general practitioner representing the New York Anti-Vivisection Society and the Bronx Kennel Club, said he knew of no accomplishment in medical knowledge that could be traced to experimenting on the living dog.

"Ten million Christian Scientists and the great increase in chiropractice are the results of the popular reaction against vivisection," he declared.

He told of visiting experimental rooms in two medical institutions and asserted that the kicking of one dog on the operating table, even though it was under an anesthetic, indicated it was in pain. He admitted that he could find no fault with the way operations had been conducted, but he insisted that the results were of slight value in application to human beings. Other doctors in the room said the kicking of the dog in question was probably a reflex movement.

Mrs. Lillian R. Sire of the Anti-Vivisection Society concluded the case for the proponents of the bill with what she said was a direct appeal to sentiment.

Others Support Dr. Flexner.

Dr. Flexner told the committee that the control of diabetes had been developed through the study of dogs and that other experiments on the animals had at last assured the control of pernicious anemia, which once had condemned its victims to death. The knowledge of the behavior of the human heart and arteries was found on dog experimentation, he said.

The same studies had shown what happened in the case of a failing heart in a human being and had resulted in the production of drugs to restore normality, he stated.

Due to the structure of its blood vessels, the dog alone was fitted for this experimentation, Dr. Flexner said.

The dog, according to Dr. Joseph Sweet of Cornell Medical College, was the only animal that could be practiced upon with the bronchoscope, an instrument which had saved many lives through its combination of forceps and electrical illumination of the depths of the windpipe.

Dr. Frederick E. Sondern of the State Medical Society was another speaker.

ALUMNI MEET AT RUTGERS.

President Thomas Tells of Need for More Funds and New Buildings.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 12.—More than three hundred alumni of Rutgers University registered today for the fifth annual midwinter alumni day and visited the campus to renew school acquaintances. Athletics and an address by President John M. Thomas were features of the day.

At the annual luncheon President Thomas told of the need for more buildings and additional funds. He declared that the department of chemistry was unable to provide for additional students under present conditions and emphasized the need of new buildings at the College of Agriculture and the New Jersey College for Women.

President Thomas also commented on faculty conditions, saying:

"If Rutgers is to become a strong institution, it must have a faculty composed of real scholars, some of whom are leaders in their field.

"If Rutgers is to be a strong institution in all its divisions, we must turn out men who hold their own in the point of scholarship and character. They can't all be Parker Gilberts, but we can have a Parker Gilbert now and then."

"Meet Me At CRUGER'S 12 Noon Today"

IT will be a red letter day this noon, from 12 to 1 o'clock, when we will be honored by a visit from the World's most famous and popular dog,

RIN TIN TIN

LEE DUNCAN

from Hollywood, California

We let the Master talk for both:

"Cruger's shop has always seemed to me to be just as hospitably inclined towards dogs as it is towards its many friends and customers. For this reason Rinty and I always make it a point of dropping in to see Freddy Cruger and Terrance O'Toole, his colorful Irish Terrier, who is constantly with him, and plays no small part in the management of the business.

"Out at the club in Hollywood, Doug Fairbanks, Adolphe Menjou and some of our friends are always enthusing over the smart things they find at Cruger's. Now that we have come again, we can see just why that is so. At the first whiff of the shop, we sensed immediately that it was the place to go when you want things to 'put on dog.' We think Cruger's shop is a wow!"

Lee Duncan and Rin Tin Tin
